Grand jury charges extortion, conspiracy, perjury

U.S. agents arrest Stavros, 5 others

Agents were primed for big arrest

by RICH HONACK

Federal agents were scattered throughout the Wheeling area yesterday morning awaiting word from the U.S. Attorney's Office in Chicago to arrest current and former officials of Wheeling and Cook County.

The first arrest was that of James "Jimmy" Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman. He is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion and extortion.

Stavros' home at 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, reportedly has been under surveillance for several days. When Herald reporters and photographer arrived on the scene at approximately 9 a.m. yesterday FBI agents were parked half a block from the house.

At approximately 11:10 a.m. Stavros and his wife left the residence by car with the agents following.

WHEN THE STAVROS car turned east on Willow Road and approached the Tri-State Tollway the agents curbed the vehicle. One of the agents asked Stavros to step from the vehicle and began to frisk him.

When asked by The Herald how he felt, Stavros said, "No comment." When asked if he had a "statement for the people of Wheeling," Stavros said: "No!"

Agents then handcuffed Stavros and walked him to their car. They drove off in the direction of Chicago, while Mrs. Stavros reportedly sought out her husband's attorney. The attorney said Stavros was on his way to surrender at (Continued on page 4)

Former Democratic committeeman James Stavros, who has ruled village government in Wheeling from behind-the-scenes for almost a decade, was indicted Thursday on federal extortion and conspiracy charges.

Stavros, two village officials, two county zoning officials and a former village trustee were named in six indictments returned by a federal grand jury and announced yesterday by U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

The six are accused of extorting a total of $300,000 from several developers and from Wickes, Inc., in return for village zoning approval, permits and other favors between 1968 and 1973, Thompson said.

Others indicted were:
William Bieber, 43, of 100 N. Sixth St., Wheeling, the village building and zoning director. He is accused of extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury before the grand jury, and filing a false income tax return.

Michael Valenza, 50, of 236 E. Jeffrey Ln., Wheeling, a former trustee who operated as village zoning head for several years while on the village board. Valenza, charged with conspiracy, is head of the village environmental commission.

William Hart, 41, of 912 Garden Ln., Wheeling, a village trustee from 1968 to 1970 and former co-owner with Valenza of Nite and Day Sign Co. Hart, who now is sole owner of the firm, is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with Nite and Day activities.

Nicholas Phillips, 39, of 410 W. Marion St., Prospect Heights, a cousin of Stavros and a $16,600-a-year employee of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals. He is charged with extortion in connection with an alleged $50,000 cash payoff by Wickes to obtain village zoning approval.

Ira Colitz, 58, of 1000 N. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, a member of the county zoning board and former Democratic state representative from Chicago's 12th District. He is also accused of extortion in the Wickes case.

Thompson said the Wheeling investigation will continue and predicted more indictments will be returned in the probe.

FBI AGENTS NETTED political kingpin James Stavros yesterday shortly after a federal grand jury returned indictments charging him with extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. The agents followed Stavros, who is a former Wheeling Township committeeman, from his Northbrook home to the intersection of Willow Road and the Tri-State Tollway, where he was searched and arrested. Five other officials also were arrested.

They're innocent until proven guilty: Scanlon

Officials here 'shocked,' but business continues

by JILL BETTNER

Wheeling village officials yesterday said they were amazed and shocked at the six indictments, but village affairs will continue "business as usual."

"The village fathers are still here and the village will continue to run smoothly," said Village Pres. Ted Scanlon.

Along with Scanlon, The Herald contacted several trustees for reactions to the arrests yesterday of William Bieber, director of building and zoning, and former village trustees Michael Valenza and William Hart. Valenza is current head of the Environmental Commission.

Despite rumors of impending indictments that have been circulating in the village for the past several months, Scanlon and others said yesterday's arrests came as a shock.

"Certainly no one likes this kind of publicity or to get involved in something like this," he said. "You always say it can't happen here, but it has."

DECLINING TO comment on the charges, Scanlon and the rest of the officials contacted said all are innocent until proven guilty.

"Right now they're just charges," the village president said. "They haven't been proven guilty of anything yet. I guess when they go to trial the truth will be brought out."

"The thing we have to remember is that an indictment is not a statement of guilt," added Village Trustee Ron Bruhn.

"Each person is entitled to his day in court."

Scanlon said he may call an executive session at Monday's village board meeting to discuss whether or not Valenza and Bieber will be asked to resign their posts.

VILLAGE MGR. George Passolt believes Valenza and Bieber should be allowed to continue in their positions.

"They're innocent until proven guilty—that's the American system," Passolt said. "It's difficult for me to believe that the sums of money they're talking about have been handed out. It's hard for me to see how somebody could bury $20,000 or $30,000 without some auditor finding out," he added.

Passolt said he doesn't think the indictments will have much effect on the village or its reputation.

"There's been so much in the papers recently that I don't think the indictments will have much effect one way or the other," he said. "Of course, the final outcome could have more effect."

"I guess it will be a black eye for the village if they're proven guilty of something while they were officials," Bruhn commented. "I think it will be almost business as usual with maybe a little more citizen participation. Maybe more people will start attending board meetings and showing interest, particularly in the initial stages of a development in the planning and zoning."

VILLAGE CLERK Evelyn Diens said she was surprised at the persons named in the indictments, and she hopes the arrests will put an end to further rumors and suspicion of additional wrongdoing.

"I think a cloud's been hanging over us simply because of all the rumors that have been flying fast in the village since last summer," Mrs. Diens said. "I would hope this cloud could be lifted now."

"I'm just shook up over the whole thing," said Village Trustee John Koepen. "I pray to God that it isn't true for the sake of the village and for the sake of the people involved."

RICHARD MASSA, 358 Stone Pl., is planning to organize a nonpolitical citizens' group for better government in the village.

Commenting on the indictments, Massa said, "I don't believe the U. S. Attorney's Office would bring this matter to the grand jury without proper evidence nor do I believe that the grand jury would have indicted these people without probable cause."

Massa feels the village board should immediately request Valenza's and Bieber's resignations.

"I believe that Mr. Valenza and Mr. Bieber should be called upon to resign," he said. "If they refuse to do so, I think it is incumbent upon the village board to dismiss them forthwith, or at least suspend them without pay until they are either convicted or vindicated."

Village Trustees Edward Berger, Albert Lang, Donald Jackson and William Hein could not be reached for comment.

Zoners to study request for heliport facility here

Zoning hearings are being scheduled on whether to allow a heliport to operate from Asplundh Tree Expert Co., 412 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

For the third time since 1968, Earl Reynolds, vice-president of Asplundh, is asking that the board consider allowing heliports to operate in the village. The matter has been sent to the zoning board.

In a letter to the village board, Reynolds said the heliport would be used by the company's two helicopters, which patrol electric utility lines for various companies in the Midwest.

THE REQUEST for a heliport has already been denied twice by the village. In 1968, when the heliport ordinance was first proposed, there were six heliports operating in the village. After the board voted 5-1 against the ordinance, all such operations in Wheeling became illegal.

Asplundh tried in 1970 to have the matter reopened so a heliport could be built. The board once again voted 4-3 not to allow it in the village.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon, an employee of Asplundh, said he will not participate in any decision on the heliport issue. "I'll not be able to take a stand as I am an employee of the Asplundh Company. However, I'm not connected with the aviation department," he said.

Scanlon had previously voted against the heliport.

Asplundh is requesting the heliport so it can do its own maintenance on its helicopters. The 'copters are now kept at Pal-Waukee Airport, which does not have hangars available for maintenance.

REYNOLDS HAS offered to allow the village to make use of the helicopters for emergency medical, fire or police work. He said he will try to keep one of the helicopters in Wheeling for such emergencies.

According to Reynolds, the helicopter pilots are instructed not to fly over residential areas. He said flights are scheduled so that the helicopters are often gone for two or three days at a time.

Several village residents, however, have already begun objecting to the heliport, saying it will cause increased noise. The residents of the Cameo Terrace condominiums have been most vocal on the issue, and have presented the village board with petitions against the heliport.

Instrumental league will recycle paper

The Wheeling High School Instrumental League has placed a paper bin behind the Wheeling Village Hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd., to collect paper for recycling.

Members of the league will collect paper and sell it to raise funds for Wheeling High School bands. The league also will sponsor a paper drive March 29, 30, 31 and April 1.

$2,000 burglary loss

Burglars took $2,000 worth of merchandise Wednesday from the Ronald J. Halperin residence, 901 Green Ridge Rd., Buffalo Grove police said.

Apparently, the burglars broke a window in the rear door to gain entry. Once inside, they took jewelry, stereo equipment, a camera and an electric hair brush, police said.

High court upholds county 'wheel tax'

The 166,000 residents of unincorporated areas of Cook County apparently will have to continue to pay that hated $10 wheel tax. The Illinois Supreme Court ruled yesterday that the contested tax is valid.

The Illinois high court said it was not "unreasonable" for the county to tax vehicles in the unincorporated areas since all but three municipalities in the county levy their own vehicle taxes, explained Assistant State's Atty. Paul Biebel. Biebel, who handled the case for the county, filed an appeal before the Illinois Supreme Court after a Cook County Circuit Court had ruled Aug. 23, 1972 that the Cook County Board of Commissioners overstepped its home-rule powers by levying the tax.

The tax was levied for the first time early in 1972, but almost immediately was challenged in a lawsuit filed by the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. and the Cook County School Bus Co. of unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

Biebel, while "very pleased" with the high court's ruling, said he expects others not to be so pleased. "There'll be a lot of heat over this," he told The Herald in a short interview yesterday.

Jack Gilligan, spokesman for the PHIA, was unavailable for comment yesterday. Earlier, however, he had said he was confident the Illinois Supreme Court would uphold the lower court's decision.

Money paid by residents to obtain the required county vehicle stickers has been placed in an interest-bearing bank account. Biebel said he doubts the money will be paid to the county board immediately. He said he believes an appeal will be filed with the U.S. Supreme Court. However, The Herald could not confirm this with the PHIA's attorney.

It is unlikely, according to Biebel, that the U.S. Supreme Court would reverse the Illinois Supreme Court.

Pettee death to grand jury

The case of the Elk Grove woman who died while her husband waited for an ambulance to come from a distant suburb will be presented to a Cook County grand jury for deliberation.

The controversial death of Mrs. Jean Pettee, eight months pregnant with her sixth child, will be presented to a county grand jury by the office of Bernard Carey, Cook County state's attorney. Carey's office is seeking to determine if official misconduct was committed by Elk Grove Village officials.

$3,000 apartment fire

Fire in a storage area in International Village Apartments, Algonquin and Meacham roads, Schaumburg Township, caused an estimated $3,000 damage yesterday. The fire was contained within 15 minutes by firemen.

'Business as usual'

Despite federal indictments yesterday of six prominent members of Wheeling's political circles, village fathers said Wheeling will continue with "business as usual" and that the flow of government will not cease. Wheeling Village Pres. Ted Scanlon said he did not think two persons indicted who still hold appointive office in the village should be asked to step down from their jobs. Scanlon said the federal indictments prove no guilt and the men should retain their village positions.

Nike site park?

It looks as if the Arlington Heights Army Nike site may be turned over to local government for a park after all. A new federal budget to be presented to Congress Monday reportedly has no provision for maintaining the local military facility, thus possibly opening the way to make the site a regional park.

He brought Chicago-style politics to the suburbs

The saga of Jimmy Stavros

by BOB CASEY

In May, 1971, Jimmy Stavros was in an expansive mood. His favorite slate of candidates had triumphed for the sixth consecutive time in suburban Wheeling's village elections and he was enjoying it.

"We won eight years ago," he said to a reporter as the latest group of Stavros-backed trustees took office, "and we will win two years from now. Write that, will you?" The point was simple, as Jimmy explained it. "They're out. We're in. We'll do as we want."

Just what Jimmy Stavros has been doing in Wheeling was the subject of a federal grand jury probe that resulted yesterday in the indictment of Stavros and several key cronies.

A self-proclaimed millionaire and one-time wonder boy of Cook County Democratic politics, Stavros is accused of extortion and conspiracy.

Though he was never a village official, Stavros reportedly had the keys to village hall, both literally and figuratively.

HE LEARNED his politics Chicago-style and practiced it with great success in suburban Wheeling. When they started digging early last year, federal investigators were puzzled at the considerable influence over local affairs held by a man with no political office who lived outside the village limits. It soon became clear that in recent years Wheeling has been run like a West Side ward: tight rein by an absentee boss who rules through patronage, money and clout.

Politics Chicago-style is based on a sound business principle — make as much profit in as many ways as you can while minimizing the risks involved. Mix money with the ability to come up with favors like zoning or tax breaks and you've got the Chicago formula.

A $100,000 Northbrook home, a farm in Woodstock, Ill., a swimming pool, a Cadillac — all are indications the formula worked for Jimmy Stavros. Indeed, during a dispute in May, 1971, when he was accused of using his influence with the village board to get a property rezoned for his mother, Stavros declared:

"I DON'T HAVE to use my influence with the village board. They're intelligent men. It's my mother's property."

I've got nothing to do with it. I'm a millionaire. I don't care."

That was another puzzle. How does a man who has held a succession of public payroll jobs, albeit occasionally more than one at a time, become a "millionaire?"

In its case against Stavros, the government will have to trace both the lines of his political control and the flow of earnings that brought his self-proclaimed wealth. The prosecutors will have to show how things work in Wheeling, to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Jimmy Stavros had the power to squeeze money out of developers and actually did so.

It's not clear just when Stavros began to play a role in village politics. He took over the Wheeling Township Democratic Organization in 1958, becoming, at age 28, the youngest Democratic committeeman in Cook County.

The son of immigrant Greek parents, Stavros was born on a Buffalo Grove farm. He was a star athlete at Arlington High School and served as a precinct worker when he was 18. After an auto accident ended a professional baseball career with the White Sox organization, Stavros came back home and his life was soon absorbed with politics.

HE RAN UNSUCCESSFULLY for a seat in the Illinois House of Representatives in 1956, establishing a hard-working, aggressive style that contrasted with the tired, minority-party mentality of the township Democratic leaders. The Wheeling Township organization, fighting for votes in a heavily Republican suburban area, was languishing. There were conflicts with downtown (meaning Chicago Mayor Richard Daley) and by 1958 Committeeman Jack Clark was to be shunted aside.

Stavros apparently got Daley's blessing as replacement. His list of poll workers instead of Clark's was approved by the county clerk. He had money to rent a campaign office, print up "Stick With Stavros" gum wrappers and stage free wing dings reminiscent of the ward parties thrown by Chicago bosses.

Jimmy beat Clark in 1958 by 1,440 votes to 420 and was on the way. His youth, his vigorous approach to politics, his access to downtown patronage — all made him stand out among the other suburban leaders of his party. Those qualities helped overshadow the Chicago Democratic flavor his organization was developing, something that would normally leave a bad taste with suburbanites.

STAVROS LIVED in the Village of Wheeling, only municipality in his township that wasn't indelibly Republican. Later, he would move to Mount Prospect but Wheeling would be his power base.

Vote sweeping impeachment probe powers

The House Judiciary Committee, investigating the possibility of impeaching President Nixon, voted unanimously to seek sweeping powers enabling it to subpoena any material and require Nixon's appearance if necessary. Meanwhile, special prosecutors reported they have no evidence that John Dean III lied when he linked President Nixon to the Watergate coverup. In other developments, an official of the American Bar Association estimated 20 or 30 attorneys may have been implicated in the Watergate scandal. An ABA unit is working with the Watergate committee to be sure no erring lawyer escapes a stern look in his home state.

Mansfield to answer Nixon tonight

From Herald news services

Congressional Democrats generally reserved overall judgment Thursday on President Nixon's State of the Union message, not wanting to overshadow a formal televised response tonight by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

Mansfield told reporters that the $304 billion budget Nixon proposed in his speech Wednesday night was "too much" and he said the President's remarks on Watergate did little to change the situation.

Noting that Nixon's budget requests have risen 57 per cent since 1969, he said the proposal for fiscal 1975 only "adds to the yearly deficit."

"I think it can be reduced," he added.

Mansfield indicated he was saving his full response for the nationally televised speech tonight, when he will reply to Nixon on behalf of the Democratic party. The speech will be carried locally on Channels 2 and 7 at 9 p.m.

In seeking to achieve the "10 key landmarks" Nixon has proposed for 1974, he will need the close cooperation of Congress. Only one of his goals might not require direct participation by Congress.

SEN. MIKE MANSFIELD

He said in his State of the Union speech he would "continue work toward lasting peace in the world by negotiations with adversaries."

Unless the negotiations lead to a formal treaty — which would have to be ratified by the Senate — Congress would only play a limited advisory role in any international negotiations.

But the House and Senate will have to pass judgment on the other nine goals, and legislative battles may well come on varying approaches to shared goals.

The top priority has been given to "break the back of the energy crisis" by providing short-term emergency powers to deal with the current crisis and long-range projects to make the United States self-sufficient.

Despite stumbling around so far, Congress is considered certain to give Nixon the emergency powers he needs — such as gasoline rationing — but they may be subject to congressional vetoes. Congress is sure to give him the funds he wants to develop alternate energy sources for the future.

The major battle will come over how to curb "windfall profits" which may come as a result of the energy crisis. Congress appears intent on cracking down harder on the major oil companies than Nixon would like.

Prospects for his other goals:

- The President will get strong congressional support for a national health insurance plan although attempts will be made to broaden it and have the government run it, rather than working through private insurers.

- Neither Congress nor the President has found the key to checking the rise in consumer prices. Wage-price controls have not worked.

- Nixon's proposal for a $900 million increase in federal aid to education will get a favorable reception unless it is tied to anti-busing legislation.

- The trade bill, also listed by Nixon, has passed the House but it appears he will have to swallow a rider denying the Soviet Union favored treatment until that country liberalizes its emigration policy for Jews.

- Reform of current welfare regulations is under active consideration by the Senate Finance Committee.

- The biggest surprise was Nixon's request to make federal funds available for local mass transit systems, a total reversal from previous policy. This has strong congressional support.

Parents of area couple survive

91 die in Pan American jet crash

Nine persons, including the parents of a Rolling Meadows couple, apparently survived a fiery plane crash early yesterday in Pago Pago on the South Pacific in which 91 persons died.

The crash of a Pan American World Airways Boeing 707 took place in a violent thunderstorm as the plane was approaching Pago Pago Airport. The plane crashed into a hill, killing 91 of the 101 persons aboard.

Among the survivors last night were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kinderman of Sun City, Ariz. The Kindermans are the parents of Robert and Nancy Kinderman Jr. of 1 Wildwood Drive in Rolling Meadows.

Contacted last night, young Kinderman said his father, 61 and mother, 60, were on an around-the-world vacation. Kinderman, a lawyer, said he was unaware of the exact condition of his parents but was in contact with airline officials.

The elder Kinderman, also a lawyer, is a former resident of Park Ridge who moved from the Chicago area 10 years ago, according to Margaret Johnston of Des Plaines, a friend of the couple.

Spokesmen for Pan American said last night the condition of the Kindermans was as yet unknown.

According to Pan American officials, most of the victims burned to death when they were trapped in the flaming wreckage. Spokesmen said the jetliner crashed about a mile short of the runway, careened down a dirt road and into heavy jungle-like foliage.

Two of the victims died later of burns. One person was missing.

Five of nine survivors, most of them Americans, were taken to Samoa's hospital in serious condition.

Government information officer Neal Corbett said the spectators, many waiting to get on the plane, which was to continue on to Honolulu, were panicked when the crash occurred.

Four-three of those aboard were Americans.

A temporary morgue was set up at the airport, but rescuers were hampered in efforts to get most of the victims out of the plane because it was still blazing hours after the crash.

Authorities closed the airport immediately after the crash at 12:52 a.m. (5:52 a.m. CDT). Pago Pago is 2,600 miles south of Hawaii and a frequent stop for trans-Pacific flights.

The Pan American flight, No. 806, was preparing to land at Pago Pago on a stopover en route from Auckland, N.Z., to Honolulu.

The Federal Aviation Administration said the aircraft crashed into a 400-foot hill about a mile short of the runway.

- While Middle East leaders try to piece together a peace in his backwash, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is taking aim at Panama. He's due there next Thursday to sign a declaration opening new talks for the United States to bow out of its 71-year-old Canal Zone agreement. U. S. domination of the zone will be one of eight issues at a Feb. 21-23 gathering of Kissinger and 22 Latin American counterparts in Mexico City.

- All in the family: Tricia Nixon Cox, attending a pro-Nixon rally with husband Edward Cox across from the White House, said she felt a "sense of outrage" over the attacks on the president, and asked why he should resign when "he hasn't done anything wrong." Her husband went a bit farther, calling former White House counsel John Dean a "coward" and saying Nixon was the victim of "one of the most vicious witch hunts in American history."

- Smiling, bearded and a touch pale, Gerald Kosh of Lafayette, Ill., Pa., was released by Communist Chinese authorities in Hong Kong — 11 days after he was captured in the bloody two-day battle in which China took the Paracel Islands from South Vietnam. - It's big news when an American president even gets in a game of golf, so consider this: Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau dazzled officials of Switzerland's Cresta bobsleigh run — where more than 50 persons have been killed since 1882 — by roaring down the run alone at 80 miles an hour... Jordan's King Hussein is shopping in Britain for the new Jaguar jet strike plane, so to be sure of the merchandise he personally took it out for the test flight.

He said he told the owner he didn't believe it, identified himself, and got a fill-up.

- From California, which yesterday gave us the story of a padded bat recommended for marital therapy, comes this story: Mr. and Mrs. Roger Thompson of Fairfield got into an argument in a tavern, stormed out into separate cars, drove to a nearby muddy field and settled things by ramming each other until both cars were destroyed.

Reopening of Suez Canal, rebuilding of Suez cities planned by Egyptians

From United Press International

Government officials in Cairo said Thursday Egypt will start clearing the Suez Canal in March. It will follow immediately with development of the waterway to accommodate bigger ships with the financial help of the United States and other countries.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said he expected Egypt to carry out its part of the military disengagement accord with Israel and go on to reopen the canal.

He also told a meeting of Jewish fund raisers from the United States that Israel wanted to "reach a satisfactory agreement with Syria" over the Golan Heights cease-fire line.

The Egyptian cabinet decided Thursday to allocate $46 million for the reconstruction of the Suez canal cities, government sources said.

The meeting, presided over by Vice Premier Abdel Kader Hatem, also allocated $34.5 million for the first phase of clearing the waterway, the sources said. They said the cost of clearing and deepening the canal will amount to $280 million.

The Middle East News Agency said Egypt will issue an international appeal for assistance in rebuilding the canal cities. Several countries have already declared their readiness to help, the agency said.

Press reports in Beirut and Cairo said U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, with the help of Egypt, is pressing hard for troop disengagement agreement between Syria and Israel.

Damascus officials have said Syria will continue to boycott the Middle East peace conference in Geneva unless an agreement on separating troops on the Golan Heights front has been achieved first.

In Beirut, the newspaper An Nahar said Egypt has informed Washington it will not attend the second phase of the Geneva peace talks unless Syria does.

Prime Minister Golda Meir said Wednesday that Israel was ready to return all Syrian territory captured in the October war, but only in negotiations following receipt from Damascus of a list of Israeli prisoners of war and International Red Cross observation of their condition.

Arabs doubt embargo lifting

From United Press International

Despite a hopeful note raised by President Nixon, the Arab embargo on petroleum exports to the United States is not likely to be lifted at the conference of Arab oil officials next month in Libya, Arab officials said Thursday.

The issue depends on the Arab oil ministers. But the withdrawal of Israelis from occupied Arab territory is a precondition of this action," said Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad.

"They will probably discuss the embargo but they are not likely to lift it," said an Arab official at the Vienna headquarters of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

President Nixon, citing the U.S. role in the Middle East troop disengagement between Egypt and Israel, said in his State of the Union address Wednesday night that he had "been assured by my personal contacts that an urgent meeting will be called in the immediate future to discuss the lifting of the oil embargo."

The White House indicated Nixon was probably referring to the previously announced ministerial conference of OPEC starting Feb. 14 in Tripoli, Libya.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday he felt the oil embargo would end in late February or early March but was less than optimistic about a companion rollback in recent sharp price increases for Arab oil.

Other energy developments Thursday: • Federal energy chief William E. Simon was expected to urge service station dealers to require minimum purchases of five or 10 gallons of gasoline to discourage motorists from "topping off" their tanks.

• The Chicago Motor Club reported the outlook for gasoline supplies for Chicago and Cook County was "guarded" with the situation expected to improve with the distribution of February gasoline allocations.

The survey showed that 75 per cent of the stations in Chicago and 55 per cent of the stations in suburban Cook County imposed "some form of rationing" while 90 per cent of the downstate stations were filling tanks without restrictions. Average prices for the week for regular gasoline was 51.8 cents in Chicago and suburbs compared to 48.9 cents in downstate Illinois.

• Independent truck drivers roamed Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia seeking to gain support for a planned nationwide industry shutdown, which they claimed was already 80 per cent effective. One driver was killed in a crash near Allentown, Pa., and another was forced off the highway and kidnapped briefly at Barborton, Ohio.

Farm prices jump again; food costs may show it

From Herald news services

Prices for raw farm products jumped another 9 per cent in the month ending Jan. 15 to continue a trend which may push retail food costs to a new record this month.

In its monthly price report issued Thursday, the Agriculture Department said the increase in the average for all raw farm products was spurred by sharp gains for wheat, which hit another new record, and by increases for cattle, hogs, potatoes, corn and cotton, which also set a record.

The report showed that the index of farm prices rose from 184 per cent of the 1967 base on Dec. 15 to 200 per cent of the base on Jan. 15.

Wheat prices surged under heavy export demand which has drained the U.S. supply so low that President Nixon last week authorized imports from Canada to protect consumers against any possible bread shortage. Wheat prices on Jan. 15 rose to a record $5.29 a bushel, up 51 cents from the record set in December and far above the $2.91 a bushel a year earlier.

The gain for all raw farm products was the second straight monthly increase, following a three-month decline. It left the farm price average 39 per cent above a year earlier and only 3.4 per cent below the all time record set last August.

Wheeling rocked by officials' arrests

residents should draw from the charges, Thompson said the grand jury believed that in Wheeling "widespread extortions was the rule as far as public officials were concerned."

Stavros, 43, of 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, served as Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman from 1958 to 1967. He left the party post because of an ulcer but continued to exercise considerable influence in village affairs through political associates.

THE SIX defendants were released about 3:30 p.m. yesterday after more than four hours in the U.S. Marshal's lockup. Bonds for Valenza and Colitz were reduced from $4,500 to personal recognizance. U.S. District Judge William Bauer consolidated four indictments against Bieber and reduced his bond to $4,500. Stavros posted $1,350 cash bond for release.

The six indictments include a total of 25 counts. Among the builders allegedly shaken down by one or more of the defendants are:

• Meister Neiberg Co. and owners Al Neiberg and Jerome Meister. They allegedly were forced to pay $30,000 to Stavros and Bieber to build a planned unit development.

• Ben Pekin, Ben Pekin Corp. and Peachin-Pekin, Inc. Pekin was allegedly forced to buy a Miami Beach vacation for Bieber, to buy six cases of liquor and forced to install water and sewer lines to a Stavros residence, the grand jury said. Pekin was also forced to hire subcontractors Rock Road Construction Co. and County Service Excavating, the indictments charged.

(The Herald disclosed last year that County Service, which employs zoning board member Al Martin, and Domas Plumbing Co., which employs zoning board member Roman Domas, had subcontracts on 14 of 16 major village developments in the previous five years.)

(The Domas firm was mentioned yesterday in one of the perjury counts against Bieber. The grand jury charged that Bieber lied when he denied that he recommended to Meister-Neiberg and to Chesterfield Development Corp. that they hire Domas.)

• Zale Construction Co., which allegedly was forced to pay $30,000 to Stavros for permission to build townhouses and apartments in the village.

• Chesterfield Development Corp., reportedly forced to pay $15,000 to Stavros for permission to build townhouses and apartments, and $3,000 for permission to use plastic sewer pipe.

• Hollywood Builders, allegedly forced to pay Stavros $3,250 for permission to build a Dominick's Food Store and to give Stavros two acres of land in the Chelsea Cove development.

• Harmony Builders and owner Bernard Kron, required to pay $30,000 to Stavros to construct a planned unit development, the grand jury charged.

• Northern Illinois Construction Co. and owners Richard Harwood and Ralph Harwood, allegedly forced to pay $30,000 to Stavros.

Bieber also is charged with extorting two $500 bribes from Zale Construction; a $1,000 bribe from Tony Marcuccilli, a subcontractor; $700 in bribes from Celsel-McGuire Industries, Inc.; with filing a false 1971 income tax return and with several counts of perjury before the grand jury.

The extortion charges are alleged violations of the Hobbs Act, which prohibits interference with interstate commerce through threats or extortion. The indictments are merely formal accusations and the six will be assumed innocent until proved guilty in court.

STAVROS, VALENZA and Phillips will all plead innocent to the charges against them, their attorneys said. Joel Murray, Stavros' lawyer, charged Thompson is handling the Wheeling case in "typical headline hunting fashion."

In the Wickes case, Phillips and Colitz allegedly extorted $50,000 cash from the company, which needed zoning for a huge furniture store at Wheeling and Dundee Roads. According to sources close to the investigation, Phillips may have passed in the $50,000 to another person.

Also, according to the indictments, Valenza and Bieber both received truckloads of furniture valued at $1,700 from Wickes in December, 1971 as part of the alleged shakedown. Bieber is also charged with lying about the alleged furniture bribe in testimony before the grand jury.

WILLIAM BIBER, Wheeling director of building and zoning, was arrested by federal agents in his office at village hall yesterday after a federal grand jury returned indictments against him charging extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, lying to the grand jury and filing a false income tax return with the government.

U.S. agents were primed for arrest

AT ALMOST THE same time, three agents from the Intelligence Division of the Internal Revenue Service went into the Wheeling Village Hall to arrest William Bieber, village director of building and zoning.

Bieber, of 100 Sixth St., Wheeling, is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion, extortion, perjury before the grand jury and filing a false tax return.

When asked if he planned to resign Bieber said, "Nope." He also had "no comment" about the charges brought against him and said "nope" to making any comment on the situation in general.

Like Stavros, Bieber was placed in the back seat of an agent's car and taken to the Federal Building in Chicago.

THE FINAL ARREST that The Herald covered did not take as long as the first two Federal agents walked into Nite and Day Electric Signs Inc., 61 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, at about 11:15 a.m., after waiting outside for almost an hour.

When agents emerged a few minutes later they opened their car door and whisked former village trustee William Hart into the back seat. Hart has been charged with conspiracy to commit extortion.

Correction

The Foremost Liquor Stores advertisement that appeared in Thursday's Herald incorrectly listed the price of popular brand gin or vodka as $1.99 a fifth. The price should have been listed as $2.99 a fifth. The Herald regrets any confusion that may have been caused.

Pentagon has no comment on future of site

Federal funding of Nike base may end

by JOE SWICKARD

Funding for the Arlington Heights Nike Base is expected to be eliminated in the federal budget to be presented to Congress Monday.

According to sources in Washington, the facility will be shut down some time between April and December of this year.

The Pentagon refused to confirm or deny the reports of the pending halt of operations that have circulated for the past several months.

The same source, however, said all Nike-Hercules missile installations manned by the National Guard, such as the Arlington Heights base, will be closed except for some more advanced facilities in Florida.

A Pentagon briefing of the Defense Department budget is planned for noon Saturday in Washington. However, specific base closings will not be formally announced until Monday, when the full budget reaches Capitol Hill.

THE NIKE-HERCULES facilities originally were going to be phased out over a period of years, The Herald was told. But late last year the Army decided in favor of shutting down the bases during 1974, the source said.

All inquiries at the Nike base were referred to Fort Sheridan, which operates the base as a satellite facility. A spokesman at Arlington Heights would only say, "It's just a rumor, that's all."

A spokesman at Fort Sheridan said, "I can't verify this. It's news to me."

Federal civil service workers and National Guardsmen work at the Nike site and if the base is abandoned, will be forced to transfer to other stations or find new jobs.

An information officer with the Army Air Defense Command, Colorado Springs, said, "I can't substantiate that information. You can expect some definite word shortly with the budget announcements due this Saturday."

PENTAGON-WATCHERS, however, said it was significant that the Army refused to deny the reports outright. In the past, base commanders and Army officials have termed Arlington Heights "vital to the air defense of the Chicago metropolitan area."

The base is part of the air defense corridor protecting the lower Great Lakes population and industrial centers from missile attack. The site has served in the past as a prisoner-of-war camp, a training air field and an equipment depot for the National Guard.

The Arlington Heights Park District has been engaged in a 10-year struggle to have land at the base declared surplus. In the past year, the parks have gained title to 13 acres there.

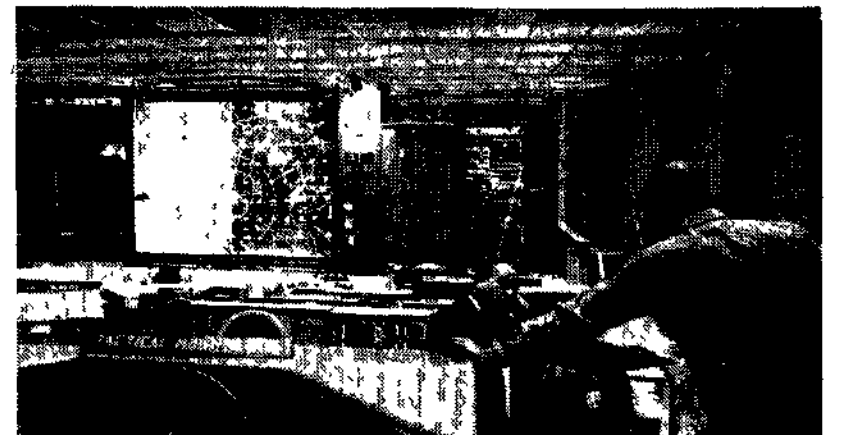

The parks recently engaged a golf course architect to prepare plans for a course on the rest of the 125 acres. Fifty-two of those acres were previously held by the Navy for use as housing, but scrapped plans in the face of strong local protests.

THOMAS THORNTON, park district director, said of the possible closing of the base, "That's good. We had thought it was going to happen. That's why we had our architect make plans for all the land and not just the bit we've gotten so far."

Army Times, a newspaper aimed toward Army personnel, carried a story several months ago indicating the Nike-Hercules bases were slated for closing. Since then, the publication has reported that unions representing civilian employees of those facilities have expressed concern for their positions.

Should funding for the base be cut off as expected, the future of the site is still uncertain. Under Federal regulations, other branches of the armed forces as well as other governmental agencies could lay claim to it before it is declared surplus.

Judging by past timetables of declaring land surplus, this process could take six to 18 months to complete.

NIKE DEFENSE room 10 years ago. The base will reportedly be shut down this year because of Defense Department budget reductions.

Library district may change name

The Wheeling Public Library District may become the Indian Trails Public Library District as of June 30, if the library board is successful in obtaining the name change.

The library board recently agreed to change the name of the district and is presently involved in seeking the required approval of several agencies.

According to Kenneth Swanson, head librarian, the name change must be approved by the state, the library district's bonding company and its banks.

BECAUSE THE library district serves Buffalo Grove and the surrounding area, the library board feels the new name better describes the district, Swanson said.

"There has been some feeling on the part of both Wheeling and Buffalo Grove library board members for some time that the name Wheeling Public Library District isn't representative enough of the entire district," Swanson said. "Indian Trails is felt to be a good choice considering the area and the closeness of the forest preserves."

The head librarian said the library board considered renaming the library district the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Public District, but decided to adopt a neutral name.

"IT'S MAINLY AN image-building thing," Swanson commented. "We want to establish a separate image."

If the name change is approved by the agencies involved, it will become effective June 30 because that is the end of the library district's fiscal year.

Library to show 'Guys and Dolls'

"Guys and Dolls" is the first film to be shown in the Wheeling Public Library District winter film series.

The movie, starring Frank Sinatra, Marlon Brando, Jean Simmons and Vivian Blaine, will be shown at 8:30 tonight at the library, 850 Jenkins Ct.

Other films in the series include "Anatomy of a Murder," "The African Queen," and "The Ipcress File." The films will be shown on alternate Friday evenings.

All films are free and open to the public.

Other activities at the library include a demonstration on finishing and mounting needlepoint and crewel works set for 10 to 11:30 a.m. next Tuesday.

Craft workshops that will be given during February will deal with polydromes, yarn flowers and yarn pillows.

All workshops are free and available to all Wheeling and Buffalo Grove residents. Materials for the workshops are provided by the library.

MEG agents make undercover bust

Undercover police narcotics agents have arrested two persons on drug charges on successive nights at a Buffalo Grove restaurant.

An agent for the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) said Gregory Schams, 17, of 1006 Crabtree Ln., Arlington Heights, was arrested about 9 p.m. Wednesday after he handed over 200 "hits" of LSD, a hallucinogen, to an undercover agent. The drugs are valued at about $146. The arrest was made at the Golden Bear Restaurant, 1300 Dundee Rd., the spokesman said.

Schams was charged with delivery of LSD, possession of a controlled substance (LSD), possession of a controlled substance (amphetamines), possession of marijuana and possession of hashish.

About the same time Tuesday night at the same restaurant, Janeyce Lynn Houser, 24, of 180 N. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, was arrested after she allegedly sold 1,000 "hits" of LSD for $730 to an undercover MEG agent.

Miss Hauser was charged with sale of a controlled substance (LSD) and is being held in Cook County Jail, pending posting of $5,000 bond, the MEG spokesman said.

The saga of Stavros

the center from which his growing organization would expand in the late 50s and early 60s. It would also be his stronghold in the late 60s and early 70s, when Jimmy had given up the idea of being a powerful committeeman and settled for behind-the-scenes control of a village that was on the verge of tremendous growth and development.

Jimmy Stavros became an issue in local Wheeling politics the year after he won election as committeeman. He favored a slate of candidates, dubbed the Associated Party, and their opponents objected to the use of Democratic organization resources in a local village contest.

The two major parties often play a role in local suburban elections. In communities with a tradition of non-partisanship in village government, however, their activities are downplayed and party workers often become involved only on an informal basis. That was the tradition in Wheeling in 1959 and, Jimmy declared, he wasn't doing anything to violate it.

"Let me make it clear," he said in a letter to the editor during the village campaign, "that the Wheeling Township Democratic organization is not supporting any party or candidate in this election."

"Those members of the Democratic organization who are residents of the village will and are participating in the elections. In doing so they are free to support any candidate they choose," he said. "I shall vote for the candidates of the Associated Party, Edward Gieseke, Fred Cargill and Otis Carter."

ALL WERE WINNERS. Jimmy's blessing became the way to reach village office in Wheeling. His opposition would lead to defeat.

In 1961, the village presidency and three trustee posts were open. Two slates appeared and the campaign was closely fought. Incumbent president A. R. McIntyre and his Planned Progress Party ticket opposed the Community Party slate, headed by Otis Carter Jr.

The Community Party made what was described at the time as an 11th-hour appeal to Stavros for help.

"Jim Stavros is a resident of the village, is a homeowner and taxpayer and is entitled to support anybody," Carter said, defending Jimmy's activities on behalf of his party.

"We are grateful for his support as an individual but with no strings attached. We will accept support of any individual. Let people draw connections if they want. I feel Jim personally can help us."

He did. Carter was defeated but the other three members of the Community Party slate — Roman Domas, Alvin Nelson and William Shea — were elected with Jimmy's support. Some reportedly said afterward that they should have called Stavros in sooner.

IN THOSE EARLY years, when Jimmy was still testing the political waters in Wheeling, he'd respond to charges of interference by his organization with long, carefully composed letters to the editor. He wrote another one in 1963, this time when the Greater Wheeling Party was the object of his support.

"I support the candidates of the Greater Wheeling Party because I believe their election will be good for the community in which my family lives," he said.

"I urge all residents of Wheeling to do the same. I am confident that the people of Wheeling will respect my right along with theirs to participate in the selection of those who govern me," said Stavros.

Supporters of the unsuccessful Planned Growth Party and the People's Economy Party were saying Jimmy participated in that selection a little more than the average resident.

In future village contests, opponents would drop their complaints of national party interference and charge that the village was ruled by machine politics. Every two years the machine would change its name. In 1965, it was United Village Party. Then Greater Village Party (1967), Continued United Party (1969), Active Citizens Party (1971) and To Overall Progress Party (1973). But every two years it was the same — the Stavros Party. Jimmy no longer wrote those responsible-sounding letters to the editor. He didn't have to.

In the late 50s and early 60s, Stavros had a job as chief investigator for the Metropolitan Sanitary District, home ground of Vince Garrity, one of Jimmy's political mentors. Another guiding light in his career was Seymour Simon, Cook County Board president who was later dumped by the Daley organization and became an alderman.

JIMMY WAS WITH the sanitary district until 1962. When it was discovered he had a construction business in Libertyville, he resigned. He then became an investigator for Simon and from 1963 to 1966 was listed in county records as holding two payroll jobs at the same time.

His success as committeeman also helped Stavros get important patronage jobs for his supporters and Jimmy's power grew. The Democratic organization was starting to catch up with the township's massive Republican pluralities. A dinner-dance held each year attracted more than 1,000 guests, including party biggies Mayor Daley, Sen. Paul Douglas, Seymour Simon, P. J. Cullerton, Paul Powell and Michael Howlett.

The Stavros record as committeeman led him to think about moving on to something more important.

"I can't say I haven't got aspirations for higher office," he told a reporter in 1966, "but right now I don't know what office I'll be seeking in the future. Some day, I'd like to be elected on the Big Team."

WHILE DREAMING of something better, Jimmy was carefully guarding his flank in the village of Wheeling. The Republicans mistakenly backed a slate (the Greater Opportunity Party) against his United Village Party in 1965 and were trounced by a 3 to 1 margin.

Two years later, his efforts in the village election again came to light when the village board discussed reports that Stavros and Don Norman, the village prosecutor, were handing out literature on the streets for Jimmy's Greater Village Party.

The line was that the Democratic organization didn't get involved and Jimmy's activities seemed to indicate otherwise. Besides, Norman was a village employee and they weren't supposed to be campaigning. The village board decided to ban politicking by municipal employees and incumbent Trustee Ira Bird, elected in 1963 on the Greater Wheeling Ticket, commented on the Stavros-Democratic Party involvement:

'Go-getter' meets JFK and Lyndon

Mayor Daley introduced his go-getter Wheeling Township committeeman, James "Jimmy" Stavros, to all the stars of national Democratic politics. "We're very good friends, the mayor and I," Jimmy once said.

He met President John F. Kennedy, left in 1962 and shook hands with vice presidential hopeful Lyndon B. Johnson, below, at election time in 1960. Stavros brought Mayor Daley's Chicago-style politics to the Northwest suburbs where it went over big in the village of Wheeling.

"I can't say I haven't got aspirations for higher office," he mused in 1966, "but right now I don't know what office I'll be seeking in the future. Some day I would like to be elected on the Big Team." Jimmy gave up his committeeman post in 1967 but by that time was in complete political control of a community on the verge of major growth and development.

Others indicted:

Michael Valenza

Michael Valenza, 238 E. Jeffrey Ave., Wheeling, was elected a Wheeling trustee in 1969 on the Continued United Party. He served on the village board until May, 1973, after deciding not to run for reelection. He is now the chairman of the environmental advisory commission, which reviews all planning and zoning in the village.

Valenza served as acting director of planning and a member of the Wheeling Plan Commission for eight years. He resigned as plan commission chairman in 1971 after being charged with conflict of interest for holding the commission seat and village board post at the same time for two years.

In the 1973 village election, Va-lenza was the campaign manager of the To Overall Progress Party.

Valenza has been a Wheeling resident since 1959.

William Bieber

William Bieber, 100 N. Sixth St., Wheeling, was appointed director of building and zoning in May, 1970. Before his appointment, Bieber was a plumbing inspector in the Wheeling Building Department.

A Wheeling resident for 18 years, he worked as a plumber out of Chicago before taking the village job in October, 1969. Bieber still holds his plumber's license and is originally from the West Side of Chicago.

William Bieber

William O. Hart

William O. Hart, 912 Garden Ln., Wheeling, was appointed to the Wheeling Village Board in August, 1968. He was elected to remain in office in the 1969 election, but resigned in September, 1970, to move to Florida. He returned to Wheeling in December, 1971, and opened Nite and Day Electric Signs Inc., 61 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

Before becoming a trustee, Hart served for three years on the police and fire commission. He first moved to Wheeling in 1958.

William Hart

Ira Colitz

Ira Colitz, 59, is a former Democratic state representative and vice president of the 42nd Ward Regular Democratic Organization and has served as a precinct captain in the ward for the past 15 years.

Colitz has been president of Continental Sales and Enterprises Inc., Chicago, for the last 14 years and holds executive positions with Appleton Machine Co., Poloron Products Inc. and Built-Rite Folding Products Inc.

Ira Colitz

Nick Phillips

Nick Phillips, 410 W. Marion St., Prospect Heights, is currently a zoning land planner for the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals. He has served in the position since 1963.

Before joining the Cook County Zoning Board, Phillips worked for the Cook County Building and Zoning Department.

Phillips is a cousin of James Stavros, former Wheeling township Democratic committeeman.

Nick Phillips

"I HAVE PUBLICLY stated from the beginning of the campaign that the Greater Village Party was an independent party and was not controlled by any national political party. We are running on local issues and not on national issues and because we have different beliefs and party affiliations."

"I also stated that we welcome the help of those people who normally help the two major political parties," Bird said.

The Greater Village Party, with a slate of Bird, Peter Egan and Frank Wojek, had no trouble that year with the opposition Best Representative Party. And Don Norman still holds the job of village prosecutor.

Jimmy apparently enjoyed the demands of the political life and plunged into it vigorously. He once explained that he got up at 5:30 every morning and arrived at his county office one or two hours before the working day began.

"I never get home before 9 or 9:30 p.m.," he said. "I try to relax then if I don't have any meetings. But the phone rings up until midnight, and between then and 1 a.m. I get to bed. But I am on call at all times."

SOMETIMES, STAVROS said, he went for 48 hours without sleep. Building an organization took hard work, he said, in outlining the role of a successful young committeeman.

"My responsibility is to try to solve the people's problems, to help the community. When somebody comes in with a problem, I am his servant. I believe that is the way the leaders should feel," he said.

When there's a problem, "the average person does not know where to go. People have to come to us and we find out why. You could tell them to go to the county highway department on a road complaint but the department might give you five people," said Stavros. The committeeman, he said, knows which one to talk to.

Stavros lost his county employment when Simon met Daley's disfavor in 1966 and was pushed out from the county board presidency. An ulcer developed early in his political career was becoming serious and Jimmy was hospitalized four times. He decided to call it quits as committeeman in November, 1967.

STAVROS WANTED James McCabe to succeed him and his precinct captains went along by a vote of 65 to 2. One dissenter was Don Norman, the village prosecutor, who complained McCabe's nomination had been railroaded. Stavros recovered enough to attend the meeting and give him a dressing down.

"I recruited you and converted you from a Republican. You can't please everybody but loyalty is important to an organization," he told Norman. "This isn't a stacked meeting and when I meet with the chairman (Daley), this whole matter will be resolved."

(McCabe remained as committeeman until last year, when he resigned and his successor, Norman, was elected by Democratic precinct captains.)

Jimmy was 37 when he retired from his party post. He left the day-to-day demands of the committeeman job but relinquished none of his clout. Many of the Democratic patronage workers in the township owed him their loyalty and he still held sway in the organization's important decisions.

But more and more, Stavros was concentrating his attentions in the Village of Wheeling. His brother, August, was an officer and major stockholder in Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank. Two other brothers, Ted and Ernest, had a local business and soon were to be involved in a trailer park that came to life after a controversial rezoning case.

JIMMY HAD THE loyalty of the village board members he put in office. Gradually, other allies were installed in key posts on the zoning board, plan commission and the village administration. Village jobs were awarded as patronage and most departments were under Jimmy's control.

Stavros was rumored to have a set of keys to the village's new municipal building and occasionally attended important village board meetings. He was often seen meeting with friends or political associates at the Union Hotel, Clayton House Hotel or Hartman House or at the Two Doves coffee shop.

In 1970, Jimmy built a luxurious house in the exclusive Citation Lake Estates subdivision of Northbrook. Stavros also had a farm in Woodstock that provided a nice retreat for a man who had been brought up in a farming family.

Jimmy was careful to keep an eye on village politics. In 1969, his Continuing United Party faced only write-in opposition. The two write-in challengers were defeated by a 5-to-1 margin.

TWO YEARS LATER, a group of residents who felt there was something wrong at village hall coalesced into the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP). Rumors of deals in zoning cases, unexplainable twists and turns in village policies, officials who seemed to jump at once as if pulled by the string of an unseen puppeteer — those kind of things helped draw WHIP together.

But rumors and uneasy feelings don't make for good campaign issues. The new party also found it difficult to rent a hall for meetings in Wheeling.

WHIP was doomed when its candidates were ruled off the 1971 election ballot by village officials after a WHIP slate member was found ineligible. The attorney for the village electoral board was Don Norman and the attorney representing the citizen who challenged WHIP was Gerald Chapman, husband of State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

So in May, 1971, when his latest batch of trustees took office, Jimmy Stavros had reason to feel confident. As far as the Village of Wheeling was concerned, he and his cronies were the "Big Team."

The pace of development in Wheeling was quickening. Big apartment and townhouse projects were coming before the village boards and commissions asking for rezonings, variations, special-use permits. There was money to be made in Wheeling in the 1970s.

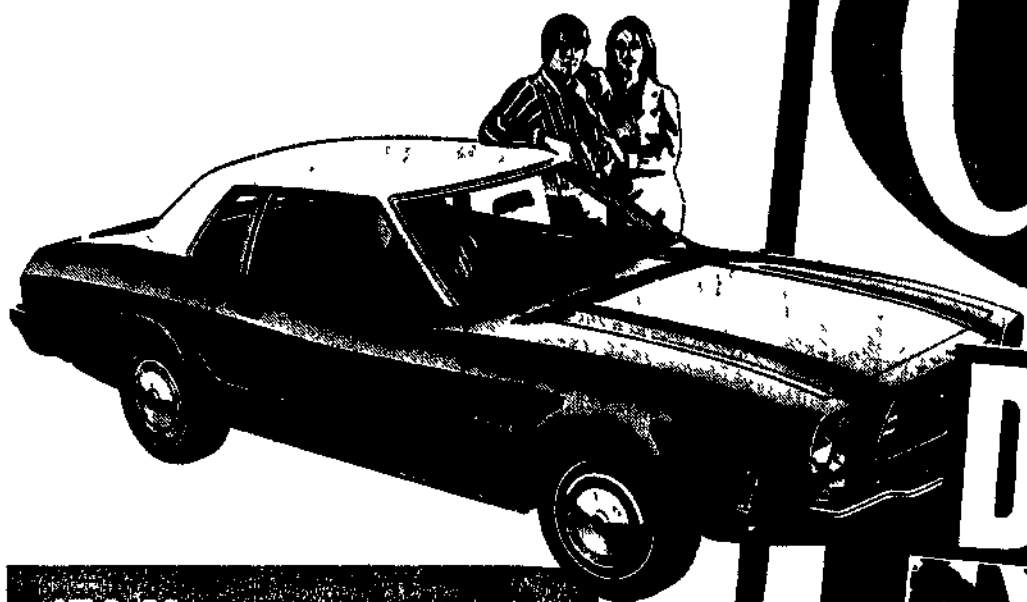

WHIP REAPPEARED in 1973, the rumors and uneasy feelings made even stronger by two more years of Jimmy's control. This time his candidates were running under the To Overall Progress (TOP) banner. Jimmy and TOP campaign manager Michael Valenza, a former trustee and Stavros stooge, presided over a series of strategy sessions with their candidates in the weeks before the election.

But for the first time in 12 years, things didn't go as planned. WHIP captured a trustee's seat and almost won the village presidency, a portent of what was coming. By then, evidence of a shakedown had been brought to federal officials and U.S. Atty. James Thompson's office decided to take a look at Wheeling.

Wearing sweatshirt to bed aids bursitis

Your article about bursitis prompts me to suggest something to your readers that I discovered several years ago by accident. I suffered from bursitis for many years. Extremely painful shoulders caused me to have exercise each morning, but the exercise was painful and time-consuming. One cold night I wore a sweatshirt to bed and discovered the next morning that my shoulders felt better than they had in years.

Cool nights in the Southwest and cold winters in the East probably expose many people to situations similar to mine. People don't seem to realize that with conventional blankets on our beds that our shoulders are frequently exposed to the night cold without our being aware that they are much colder than the rest of our bodies.

My acquaintances often kid me about the habit I have developed of wearing a sweatshirt to bed, but I can assure you that it works very well to ward off aching shoulders. My condition had been diagnosed by a physician as bursitis, and I was told that the only thing to do was to continue the exercises that were already a part of my daily routine.

An excellent suggestion. Many readers have found that warm socks at night help prevent leg cramps. Cooling the muscles leads to muscle cramps and stiffness. I'm sure that a warm garment over the shoulders and neck could help a number of people. In this winter of fuel crises your suggestion is particularly welcome.

In reference to your column on the mother who was an alcoholic, my family was appalled that you made absolutely no mention of Alcoholics Anonymous. This organization and its related group, Al-Anon, help millions of families that haven't found the least bit of comforting advice in a psychiatrist's office.

Alcoholism is an illness — not a sign of severe problems. It might be to your advantage to become better informed about Alcoholics Anonymous and, if you see fit, in the future give more prudent and realistic advice to those in need of help. I myself, am not a member of A.A.

Don't get so excited! If you were a regular reader of my columns you would know that I have previously recommended both Alcoholics Anonymous and Al-Anon. The latter, as you know, is for the families of persons with an alcoholic problem. I think they are both fine organizations, and both serve a real need.

Now, won't you admit you overstated your case a little bit? And, won't you consider that regardless of your own experience with alcoholics, perhaps in your family, that not all such problems are alike. Alcohol is often part of a serious psychological problem needing psychiatric help.

Individuals who have evidence of real psychological problems, as the mother in the case you asked about did, need professional help. Why try to downgrade either the psychiatrist or Alcoholics Anonymous. Both serve a useful purpose. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Gas stations can ease shortage hassle

You're driving down the street with the turtive grace of a ferret following a field mouse. Your mind races through the locations of all the gas stations you can remember, stations which months ago were as unimportant as bumps in the road.

It is the end of the month blues, brought on by a gasoline shortage that leaves us at once panicked and puzzled: like average citizens everywhere, we watch incredulously as the nation slides toward the brink of harsh reality over diminishing oil.

What happened this week in the Northwest suburbs as gas supplies dwindled is at first hard to accept. Some drivers became abusive and intolerant; others seemed to feel that gasoline was a product they were entitled to buy when in fact the only way to get through this mess is to use only the gasoline each of us needs, no more.

Several possibilities emerge from last week's moment of panic buying:

—motorists are going to have to resist the temptation to buy gas if it is not actually needed. Pulling into a station with more than a quarter tank of gas does not make sense and deprives someone with real need of what could amount to a very important few gallons of gasoline.

—just as motorists must act together, so should gas stations in the same neighborhoods. If four stations close to each other are all open at the beginning of the month and all closed at the end of the month, little is gained. The oil companies are asking us to voluntarily ration our use, their outlets should voluntarily stagger their hours of business as well.

—if the stations do not, local municipalities with home rule powers should investigate their ability to regulate gasoline sales. Village and city ordinances may be needed to assure a month-long flow of fuel in the suburbs.

And finally, like the majority of the people, we too are puzzled by the mysterious way gasoline is abundant in one location and scarce in another. We have for some months been skeptical of the way gasoline is distributed in the Midwest and elsewhere.

On the day Northwest suburban residents found themselves desperate for fuel, there was no problem getting gasoline in St. Louis and Milwaukee. Florida has seemed to fare better than Illinois in this shortage, yet Southern Illinois seems to have much more fuel than Chicago and its suburbs.

Readers view - again - ambulance tragedy

To Channel 7 (WLS-TV) news:

I have been a faithful fan of Channel 7's Ten O'Clock News for several years now, but I am sorry to say that I am very disappointed in the way that you handled the Elk Grove Village tragedy.

I feel that your reporting was grossly unfair to the people of EGV and their fire department in not informing your viewers of all the facts involved.

Enclosed is a newspaper article showing the transcripts of the tapes concerning the tragedy, but I'm sure that you know all about their contents, even though you didn't bother sharing the information with your audience.

Don't you think it's time that you tell the people the truth?

—That it was Mr. Pettee who chose the cheaper, smaller, farther fire department, instead of the larger, closer, fully-manned service.

—That the EGV Fire Department appealed to the residents of the unincorporated areas regularly to contract with their more readily-available service. Unfortunately, it's a bit more expensive, but then, EGV has to support more equipment and manpower than the much smaller suburb of Roselle.

—That Mr. Pettee, who lives only a few blocks from the hospital, chose to wait for the rescue squad, instead of taking his wife there himself.

—And, most importantly, that according to the tapes, that Mr. Pettee told the fire department that he thought his wife was having a miscarriage and never indicated that he thought it was a "matter of life and death."

If the death of Mrs. Pettee is the result of neglect or indiscretion, the evidence does not point to the village of Elk Grove.

In case you're wondering, I do not live in Elk Grove Village. I live in the suburb of Schaumburg, but I am sure that the firemen and paramedics of Elk Grove, as in Schaumburg and the other neighboring communities, are among the finest, most dedicated men anywhere. It is unfair that they should suffer, because Channel 7 News and especially Joel Daly, were so eager to get a "juicy" story, they neglected to get the truth!

I have always felt that you were a team of intelligent, informative, and objective reporters. I hope that you are also fair and honest. Fair enough to reveal the whole, true story to the public, and honest enough to admit your mistake and apologize to the village and fire department of Elk Grove for the terrible injustice that you have done them.

An iceberg drifted slowly through dark waters, now troubled, now calm, but always dark. Its huge bulk lay largely hidden below the surface, only a small portion glistened brightly in the sunlight above. Below, a large whale sensed danger.

He pushed with all his might against the oncoming mass, but he could not slow its approach to a narrow sandbar. He rushed to the surface, and shouted as loudly as a whale can shout, but his voice was only a plume of water in the cold, clear air, and it fell harmlessly back into the ocean.

Finally, the sandbar was struck by the iceberg. Those animals in its path were angry and afraid and some of them were hurt. But the iceberg only suffered one casualty, the very top of its tallest spire above the water broke off and fell into the ocean with a loud splash.

A tiny bird, who had never really noticed the iceberg at all until it suffered violence, was attracted by the falling spire and flew down to investigate. He went immediately to the broken spire and found there a frozen insect exposed to the bright rays of the sun. Triumphantly, he looked at the sun and said, "Look what I have found. Surely this insect moved, causing all this violence."

The whale below heard the bird and rushed to the surface. "No," he shouted. "That is not the problem. Please listen to me, I know how big this iceberg really is and how many more sandbars it may destroy. I know because I have been to the bottom of it and around all its sides." But, of course, a whale can only spot water, some of which fell on the bird. He ruffled his feathers in self-indignation, took the frozen insect in his beak and flew off, shouting to the sun, "Do you see this insect? It stinks!"

Cast of characters:
—Iceberg: municipal service problems faced by unincorporated areas in Illinois
—Dark water: life itself
—Whale: those who really understand the problems and have worked for years to rectify them.
—Sandbar: unincorporated areas themselves
—Frozen insect: fee charged for emergency service contract —Air: news media
—Sun: public opinion

'Make Palatine pretty'

I would like to suggest Palatine downtown proprietors make the triangle a mall, plant flowers along curbs, put benches and fill in the streets up to curbs with old bricks and sand and water fountains and keep the cars in commuter parking lots — outside. A little walking would do some good.

Also, a city bus every hour or half hour the full length of Palatine Road and the full length of Plum Grove Road. You could really get the people back into town.

The senior citizens and kids could all meet in the triangle. We need some new art shows, sidewalk cafes. Palatine could be the "Left Bank" if people had enough guts to try something new.

We owe a lot to Palatine. In 20 years, I've educated three beautiful sons and earned a good living and now we're retiring to Albuquerque. Palatine should be known to all these new lovely people as "A Hometown Away from Home."

Assessor race warming up

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Metropolitan Affairs Editor

Tom Tully showed the empty smile of many speeches, many campaign stops, many questions and vague answers.

"How am I doing out here?" he asked the homeowners and students who surrounded him after this week's appearance at Oakton Community College.

No one answered Tully's question. In fact, many people are wondering who the Democratic Party's newest boy wonder actually is.

At 36 years old, Tully is the youngest candidate in recent memory for the politically influential post of county assessor. Tully has party backing after bitter infighting that surrounded possible candidacy of Assessor P. J. Cullerton.

But, this is 1974.

Tully has strong opposition in this primary. A Democratic upstart with reasonable credentials is bucking the machine. Some call him the leader of the "coffee rebellion" against Daley in the Chicago City Council. Others call him a "young Turk." Tully prefers a simply "my opponent" tag and refuses to call Ald. Edward Vrdolyak by name.

The Tully-Vrdolyak tussle has become the most interesting sideshow in town.

A big Democratic primary in Cook County is a sign for licking of chops by

Vrdolyak

Thomas

the metropolitan newspapers and blood-letting en masse by the candidates.

This campaign is a step above the rest, however.

Tully is a political step-child of Cullerton. When the heat to clean up the assessor's office reached boiling a few years ago, Tully was summoned to make things ship-shape. His reforms won praise from most newspapers; the office became more accessible to the media and public; and political stooges were dismissed.

But some Democrats and most Republicans feel that Daley has reaped the benefits of assessor's office control for too long.

Vrdolyak entered the battle with a shot at the almighty. He hinted, in what has become a weekly ritual of press conferences, that the Chicago Tribune was negligent in payment of personal property taxes in 1968 and 1969.

With heartstopping dispatch, none other than the assessor's office called a press conference the next day to clear the "cloud" from the Tribune's reputation. Copies of a blue on white press release that exonerated the Tribune from Cullerton's office were mailed throughout the county.

Seldom has the assessor's office bent so far to defend any taxpayers.

The same week, Cullerton officials offered a repeat performance. The Daily News was reporting that assessments on the politically influential White Way Sign Co. mysteriously fluctuated between 1966 and 1973. When the Flannery brothers sold the firm, the assessment soared from $2,118 to $118,000. When the Flannerys repurchased the giant firm, the assessment dropped to $83,000.

Behold, another press release.

"Any organization in which humans are involved can make mistakes," the release stated. The Daily News facts were "erroneous. A grievous error" represented "an apparent attempt to besmirch the reputation of this office..."

Both incidents followed unsuccessful attempts by campaign workers and reporters to find related assessment records in the County Building.

One tax record is clear. It shows that Vrdolyak has failed to meet tax payment deadlines on Chicago property he owns. The $400,000 a year lawyer said the delayed payments did not cost the county money and were used for a tax advantage.

One message of good news has come from this primary. A fourth group of newspaper stories attempted to link lawyers who are personal friends of Tully and repeated filing of late tax complaints.

Cook County taxpayers will be happy to know that, according to Deputy Assessor Theodore M. Swain, "The assessor's office has had a long standing policy of taking complaints at any time prior to the closing of the assessment books in order to provide relief when justified."

Congressional wrapupHouse rejects loan to World Bank fund

From Roll Call Report

Following is a summary of how members of the Illinois congressional delegation voted on major issues during the first week of the 1974 congressional session, from Jan. 21 through Jan. 23.

Included are the votes of Illinois' two senators, Republican Charles H. Percy and Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson III, and Northwest suburban congressman Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, and Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

House

THIRD-WORLD LOANS: A bill authorizing a $1.5 billion U. S. contribution to the World Bank's International Development Assn., rejected 248-153.

The money was earmarked for easy-term loans to nations with per capita incomes of less than $375. Borrowing nations pay no interest and have 40-year terms. India, Pakistan and Bangladesh receive a majority of the IDA loans.

Some opponents argued against no-interest loans for foreign nations while U. S. consumers face high interest rates.

Crane No

Others: Ralph Metcalf, D-1st; Gardiss Collins, 7th; Sidney Yates, D-9th; Robert McClory R-13th; John Erlenborn, R-14th; John Anderson, R-16th; Paul Findley, R-20th, and Melvin Price, D-24th, yes.

Morgan Murphy, D-2nd, Robert Hanrahan, R-3rd; Edward Derwinski, R-4th; John Kluczynski, D-5th; Harold Collier, R-6th; Dan Rostenkowski, D-8th; Frank Annunzio, D-11th; Leslie Arends, R-15th; George O'Brien, R-17th; Robert Michel, R-18th; Thomas Rallsback, R-19th; Edward Madigan, R-21st, and George Shipley D-22nd, voted no.
Kenneth Gray, D-24th, did not vote.

Senate

SEN. METZENBAUM: A motion to delay the final seating of Ohio Democrat Howard Metzenbaum to the Senate post vacated by Atty. Gen. William Saxbe, a Republican, tabled 53-22.

The motion would have temporarily seated Metzenbaum while the Rules Committee investigated his dispute with the Internal Revenue Service over a $118,000 tax-deduction he claimed in 1967 and 1968.

In tabling the proposal, the Senate cleared the way for Metzenbaum to take his seat.

Supporters of the tabling motion pointed out that Metzenbaum has a private citizen's right to argue with the IRS.

Stevenson Yes

DEPLETION ALLOWANCES: An amendment to give a $2 million tax break per year to a handful of companies that mine trona ore and process it into soda ash. Soda ash is used to make soap, glass and cement, passed 60-38.

The amendment would reverse a 1971 ruling by the Treasury Department, which stopped soda ash producers from treating, for tax purposes, their profit from processing trona as income from mining the ore.

Supporters argued that without a tax break for the refiners, it is cheaper to buy soda ash overseas.

Stevenson No

STUDENT UNEMPLOYMENT: An amendment to exempt students who have on-campus jobs from paying unemployment insurance taxes, rejected 45-35.

In rejecting the amendment, the Senate affirmed the existing law requiring certain students to pay into the federal unemployment insurance fund. These are students who work on campus in establishments not directly administered by the institution.

Opponents argued that non-student employees would lose their jobs to students if students were exempted, because the employers would not have to pay matching unemployment taxes.

Nixon 'helped himself': Crane, Young

by BOB LAHEY

U.S. Representatives Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Samuel H. Young, R-10th, agreed yesterday that President Nixon had strengthened his hand in his State of the Union appearance before Congress the previous night.

Both congressmen cited the welcome given the President by both Republicans and Democrats when he entered the House chambers as a sign of easing the intense pressures under which Nixon has been laboring.

Young said he found the "warm and sustained" applause "surprising," and said the President's strong, confident appearance contradicted recent press reports that his health was suffering.

Crane said the "intensity and duration" of the applause that greeted the President was partly a result of "what the members of Congress heard from their constituents at home during the holidays. 'It certainly is not indicative of an air of sentiment for impeachment or resignation,'" said Crane.

CRANE ALSO said the applause, that greeted the President's plea to bring the Watergate investigations to a swift conclusion, though "partisan," reflected the consensus in Congress.

Crane was one of about two dozen congressmen who signed a letter sent to the President earlier this week informing him that calls for his resignation were not widely agreed to in the House and were improper from those who might be called upon to decide the question of impeachment.

Samuel Young

Both Crane and Young applauded the positive message in the President's address citing the accomplishments of his administration in achieving an end to Vietnam War, a Mideast settlement and other diplomatic accomplishments.

Young also praised the stress that Mr. Nixon placed on national health care, and said his promise to return "more power and control to states and local governments." He said such action, especially in the field of transportation "will be particularly welcome in the 10th District."

CRANE, HOWEVER, expressed "a certain apprehension" over the President's domestic proposals. He said he thused" about an outline on national health care which the President has submitted to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

But Crane said the over-all effect of the President's message was that "he helped himself enormously."

Crane said he counted 38 times when the President was interrupted by applause in the 45-minute speech.

The most enthusiastic applause, said Crane, was to his reference to the legacy of his Presidency, "a generation of peace," and to his reminder to freshmen congressmen that they may someday recall that they began in government "at the end of our longest war, and at the beginning of our longest peace."

First representative on Harper board

He wants student voice to be heard

by WANDALYN RICE

Between now and June 30, Gerald McGlothlin intends to make sure the Harper College Board of Trustees knows he's around.

McGlothlin, a 19-year old sophomore from Wheeling, is the first elected non-voting student member on the Harper board. He was seated in January under terms of a new law that requires every college board in the state to have a student member. His term will expire June 30.

At the board's February meeting, McGlothlin says he hopes to bring up his first major topic of student interest. He wants the board to consider changing the college calendar so that first semester classes end before Christmas.

"That one may be a problem because they've already adopted a calendar," McGlothlin says. "But 99 per cent of the students I've talked to want the change. It would mean registration in August and classes would start right after Labor Day and run until just before Christmas. Then the second semester would start in January."

THE CHANGE. McGlothlin says, would eliminate the letdown that now occurs during the last week of class before Christmas vacation and would mean students would leave on vacation with finals completed.

He has done his homework on the issue and says it would fulfill all state requirements for number of days students must attend class and would also make transfer to four-year colleges easier for students who finish their Harper programs in midyear.

The one possible problem, he says, is that college administrators are afraid the changed schedule would make registration hard for the college's part-time students, particularly for housewives with small children who do not start school until after Labor Day.

McGlothlin says he hopes he can find out if that worry is realistic. "I hope if the change would cause anybody hardship and make it impossible for them to get an education, they would let me know or call the administration or something," he says. "I think it would help a lot more people than it would hurt."

ANOTHER SUBJECT. McGlothlin plans to work on during his time on the board is car pooling. He has asked the Harper computer center to run a list of students including addresses so that prospective car poolers can find each other and can even envision a "jitney cab" service developing among Harper students.

The jitney system could cause problems, he admits, because many auto insurance policies don't cover drivers carrying passengers for hire. But if the problems can be worked out, he thinks the system could help solve problems caused by the gasoline shortage.

"The only thing I'm really against is having the college buy buses," he says. "That never works out unless the buses are full."

In addition to those two immediate projects, McGlothlin says he plan to do his best to bring the student voice to all board discussions. "In discussion when something pertains to the students, I want to bring the student views in," he says.

HE IS informed about some of the areas of controversy that have arisen during recent months between the Harper administration and faculty. And in most of the areas of dispute, he sees both sides of the controversy.

For example, he favors the idea of student evaluation of faculty, despite fears expressed by faculty leaders that the system will result in teachers "playing to the crowd." "I can see why the faculty is afraid," he says. "One of the questions on the evaluation form asks if the student thinks the course material is at the 'appropriate level.' If you say 'no' it could mean the course was too hard or it could mean the course was too easy."

The student evaluation system, he says, should be retained, "but it should be changed somewhat. The evaluation should be geared to help the teacher."

In addition, McGlothlin sees nothing wrong with having the faculty evaluate administrators, something faculty leaders have been requesting for some time. "The administrators don't feel the faculty can do a good job evaluating the administration, because they don't see enough of what the administrators do," he says.

However, he points out that if that assumption is correct, "it should show up. If half the people doing evaluation say someone is doing something well and the other half say he isn't doing it at all, that should tell you something. I don't think it would hurt the administration. Maybe it would help them find out what the faculty thinks."

DURING HIS brief tenure on the board, McGlothlin says he has found the board members to be "very concerned about the needs of the community." And he believes sitting in on the sessions at which the board interview prospective appointees who wanted to fill a board vacancy was valuable. "In a candidate interview," he says, "the board members learn more about Harper College and about themselves than at any other time."

When he finishes his Harper career in June, McGlothlin says he thinks he'll transfer to Northeastern Illinois University, so he can still be a commuter student. Harper, he says, is a good school. "It provides an excellent way to get transferable credits to other colleges and universities and it also fulfills vocational needs."

Art spans generation gap

Margaret Gardner 'chalk talks' to kids

by GENIE CAMPBELL

A piece of chalk and a sketch pad bridge a difference in age that spans decades.

Since moving to Des Plaines a couple of years ago, Margaret Gardner is becoming increasingly well-known as a "chalk talker" presenting special half-hour art programs for school children, first grade through junior high. And no program is ever the same.

She draws quick sketches of individual children and demonstrates how a complete figure can be formed from a few well-positioned lines. She urges the children to participate by giving chalk to several of them to create their own lines. They are delighted when from their scribbles, a finished picture appears.

WHILE DRAWING, Miss Gardner entertains the young children with stories and fables. The older children receive history lessons. But whatever their ages, Miss Gardner makes sure all her pictures utilize lots of color.

"Children like that," she said.

Her age is a secret. It's not that she minds admitting her years . . . "I just don't want to become a curiosity," she laughs.

But age is irrelevant. What counts is keeping up with the times, a tribute to Miss Gardner who, after giving up her own studio in Chicago where she taught art for almost 30 years, was able to move to the suburbs and develop a new outlet to channel her talents and interests.

As a private instructor Miss Gardner accepted children as pupils though she has never actually entered the classroom before. She was just beginning to experiment with her new project two years ago when her programs were first reported in the Herald. At that time Miss Gardner was addressing primarily clubs and organizations in the area.

TODAY SHE frequently receives drawings from some of the youngsters she has inspired. And many classes have asked her to return.

On off days when Miss Gardner is not visiting schools, she paints in the basement studio of a house she shares with two other women, one a piano teacher with young pupils of her own. She also retains a few private students.

Watercolor and oil paintings stacked along the walls of her studio have been completed from sketches made during numerous summer vacations. This summer is no exception. Miss Gardner is headed for the Ozarks.

Yet one can simply benefit from the elderly Des Plaines artist by listening to her relate her many experiences as a free lance Chicago artist.

THOUGH SHE was reared in South Dakota, she has lived in the Chicago area most of her life and for five years, studied at the Chicago Art Institute.

Having always been a professional artist, Miss Gardner has done quite a bit of illustrating for various publications including the cartoon characters for the Peter Pan strip when it ran in the comics sections.

"Drawing the same people over and over again in every conceivable pose helped me to learn a certain versatility," she said.

While she has remained single and always supported herself, the liber before her time recalls no discrimination because of her sex in the art world.

"BUT WHEN I was getting started there were more important worries," she explained. "It was during the Depression and artists were taking anything they could get. It was rough for both men and women."

She recalls participating as a sketch artist in the Chicago World's Fair held in 1933-34 and talks about the first outdoor art fair held in Chicago in Grant Park in the summer of '42.

"It gave artists the gleam of light. We were all selling sketches for $1 and $2. It attracted many people. The regular galleries were so formal and beautiful that people who didn't have very much money to spend were afraid even to go in and look because they knew they couldn't buy."

But, of course, nothing has really changed except the number of summer art fairs has greatly expanded.

MARGARET GARDNER enjoys drawing she presents at schools. She completes drawing in just seconds.

WHEN SHE ISN'T visiting classrooms, Margaret Gardner works at home in her basement studio. She moved to Des Plaines from Chicago two years ago, where for nearly 30 years she taught art.

Honolulu man collects them

Tuned in to music boxes

Wally Yee's hobby is literally crowding Yee and his wife out of their home in Honolulu.

Yee, 54, has one of the largest private collections of music boxes in the country, but they're not the kind that adorn dressers or hold cigarettes.

Yee's giant music boxes range up to 20 feet long and are filled with real musical instruments programmed to play automatically from old perforated music rolls by a system of bellows. His house is so packed with boxes, tubing and parts that he's planning on building another house next door for himself and his wife.

Yee has searched the world and spent a small fortune obtaining the music boxes that once were a standard feature of movie houses in the days of the silent screen, of taverns and carnivals and, in simpler versions, of many homes. Many of the machines had been relegated to yards of idleness before Yee came along.

"One of the biggest thrills for me is finding a music box that has been lying dead in a warehouse for 20 years," Yee said. "I work and work on it and then it comes to life again. It's so exciting when I hear a machine play for the first time."

YEE, SEMI-RETIRED after years of producing carnivals and circuses in the Hawaiian Islands, explained that he acquired the hobby after purchasing a merry-go-round in the early 1940s.

"It had a broken organ that had to be rebuilt," Yee said, "but I couldn't find anyone in Hawaii who knew how to do it."

So Yee started tinkering with the organ and soon had it running again. Next came his purchase of a ferris wheel with a broken music system.

"The rubber tubing inside had deteriorated," Yee said. "I took it apart, got it working and realized what fun I was having."

Now Yee's house is bursting with giant music boxes. He has 65 of them, some dating back to the early 1900s. A broken Orchestron, the machines that produce the sounds of many instruments, costs as much as $10,000 and Yee places the value of his restored collection at $200,000.

The complicated machines take hundreds of hours to restore. Yee has made modern, costly improvements to many of them, and is frequently approached by other collectors for advice.

WHEN YEE'S music boxes are going, piano keys are rising and falling, hammers pound xylophones, accordions squeeze, tamborines shake and bows caress violin strings. The boxes designed for the silent movie theaters are equipped with the fire engine sirens, doorbells, train whistles, horses hoofs, Indian Tomtoms, sleigh bells, boat horns and automobile horns.

Although almost all of Yee's machines work from paper rolls, he has one old handcranked disk organ which came from a beer cellar in Munich, Germany, during the 1930s.

"Hitler was there making a speech," Yee said. "The man who owned the place didn't like Hitler, and he left the machine on while Hitler raved."

What's going on behind scenes at natural history museums

by GENIE CAMPBELL

What is a museum of natural history?

For small children, it's the only place to see a life-size dinosaur. Geology students use the facilities to study soil samples. Entire families enjoy it as an inexpensive Sunday outing.

Though many people are familiar with the numerous plant, animal and evolution of man exhibits to be found in a museum of natural history, few are aware of the problems in maintaining and caring for collections, the number of employees needed or the amount of scientific output acquired through daily research.

PATRICIA M. WILLIAMS, a resident of Hoffman Estates who has been managing editor of scientific publications at the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago for the past 12 years, thought it time that the public go behind the scenes.

Her first book, "Museums of Natural History," the only published work that concerns itself only with natural history museums, explains in layman's terms exactly how a museum operates.

Published by St. Martin's Press, the book is being made available to area book stores by the middle of this month.

To compile all the information, Mrs. Williams relied on her own background, visited the more prominent museums throughout the country and wrote to many more.

Names and addresses of the larger museums of natural history are listed at the end of the book.

"NATURAL HISTORY museums are in a time of change. Most are in trouble financially," said Mrs. Williams, who added that most people are not aware of the amount of money necessary to actively maintain a sizable museum.

Though some are governmental-funded, most must rely solely on private donations as does the Field Museum, one of the four largest museums of natural history in the U. S.

It houses one of the largest collections of natural history and also employs a full-time staff of scientists.

"There are three million specimens in the insect collection alone and 25,000 specimens were added just this last year" to the botany collection," emphasized Mrs. Williams.

"THE SMITHSONIAN Institution has more than 50 million specimens altogether which are fed into a computer bank so the museum can keep track of what they have," she continued.

Further research and new exhibits demand more space. Like many older museums, the Field Museum does not have adequate room to expand and is also in desperate need of physical repair and modernization.

Most museum buildings were built before World War II and some even around the turn of the century.

Marshall Field's initial gift of $1 million opened the Field Museum in 1894, but more than $1 million is being spent today on just the new exhibit at the Field Museum, "Man and his environment."

"Natural history museums help us to understand man and his natural world," writes Mrs. Williams. "They are specifically concerned with geology, botany, anthropology and zoology and all the divisions and sub-divisions of these sciences."

"Museums of natural history work to explain nature as it is, not after man has changed it or put it to work. They explain coal and how it is formed, but not coal mining."

MUCH RESEARCH done by the staffs at museums winds up in medicine or provides valuable records for environmentalists.

"It shows how and why some of our natural resources are being lost and what we can do so we don't lose more," said Mrs. Williams.

In addition to keeping up with scientific changes, the cost of running a museum is exorbitant for the work and time that go into every new exhibit. There are no shortcuts. Everything must be accurate.

Teams of scientists go out into the field taking pictures, and soil and plant samples. Reproductions must be exact. If animals are to appear, they must be mounted just the way they are viewed in nature.

"THERE ARE FEW taxidermists to do this," said Mrs. Williams. "The ones who mount the fish you catch in Florida are not doing the same thing."

Also, before an exhibit opens, film strips, booklets and school materials are made up to supplement the display.

Because museums of natural history operate on a tight budget, they must rely heavily on volunteer workers who help care for the collections and also go out into the field to help uncover new specimens.

"Most people don't realize museums have a volunteer program," said Mrs. Williams, who believes it is excellent training for students who think they might want to become a geologist or anthropologist.

Though museums of natural history are much patronized (some 700 million people visit natural history museums per year), Mrs. Williams feels that many suburban people don't take advantage of the Field Museum or the new Milwaukee Public Museum which is only an hour and a half drive away.

SHE ADVISES that no one should attempt to see everything in one day, particularly if it is the Field Museum which encompasses acres of exhibits and collections.

"One should concentrate on certain areas of interest, take time to absorb the displays and read all the labels. Trying to take in all the halls only leaves one with an impression of the immense size of the museum — and very tired feet."

An odd assortment

My notebook contains an odd assortment of facts which I have copied down from time to time, thinking one of them might develop into a column. It's rather like saving bits of leftover vegetables in the refrigerator until you get enough for soup — or a trivia column.

Making peanut brittle is one of the most satisfying and easy things to do because it never fails. It doesn't look like much until you add the soda; then it bubbles up with its peculiar foamy consistency. Its invention was a happy accident. About 1890 a woman in New England was making peanut taffy in her kitchen and she added baking soda instead of cream of tartar to the syrup bubbling on the stove. Result: an American novelty — peanut brittle.

WITH MEAT prices going up, ducks sell for much more than they did in 1940. But one duck, which sold for 10 cents in that year, now commands a figure of $1000. That's the price being asked for a first edition of Donald Duck in comic book form. But having the cash probably would not be enough anyhow, for the owners of these rarities count their possession to be a better investment than AT&T. All early comics are much sought after, especially those printed prior to World War I by George McManus, "The Newswyds" and "Spare Ribs and Gravy." McManus, a cartoonist for some 50 years, is more famous for his "Bringing Up Father" starring Maggie and Jiggs.

How much would a gold-plated auto be worth? Answer: $300,000 at a recent auction of the U.S. Antique and Classic Car Association in Scottsdale, Ariz. The glamour vehicle is a modified 1920 Pierce Arrow, with right hand steering post and headlights in the fenders. The same auction sold a Hitler parade car for $176,000 and the Bonnie and Clyde death car for $175,000 during earlier classic sales.

DID YOU EVER hear an ominous clatter when you turned on the disposal and find one of your best spoons in the bottom, somewhat the worse for wear? If only the bowl part is damaged, you may have the handle made into a ring. These can be made from your own spoon for only 50 cents, or you may purchase a spoon ring from a company in Ohio. (Name on request.) The same company will make bracelets and napkin rings from either spoons or forks.

Recycling bottles is now "in" and returnables appearing once again in the stores. One ingenious man in Halifax, Nova Scotia, used his non-returnables, 35 000 of them, to build a house, which is said to be strong, light and well insulated. I hope he doesn't throw stones.

World War II fine fodder for readable action novel

"THE BORMANN BRIEF,"
by CLIVE ENGLETON
Coward, McCann &
Geoghegan, $6.95

World War II lacks the historical patina of the Civil War, but despite its newcomer status it is approaching the War Between the States in its attractiveness to writers and historians.

The fanaticism of the Nazi regime, the righteous and triumphant Allies, the terrible but controlled destruction of pre-atomic bomb warfare, the plight of crumbling Germany — all these black and white qualities combine to make it fine fodder for dramatic writing, fact or fiction.

It's the black hats against the white hats again in a world-wide shootout. Engleton uses the drama in a novel that is an unpretentious piece of good entertainment that keeps the reader flipping the pages in expectation of the next bit of action.

Col. Ashby, an English ex-spy, persuades his superiors to allow him to train a group of anti-Nazi Germans as an assassination team, a sort of Dirty Dozen. Their target: Martin Bormann, that shadowy figure who now seems a piece of fiction himself.

Engleton's technique is a trifle episodic — we jump from deepest Germany to Wales and back with sometimes bewildering effect — but his writing is clean and bright and his story intriguing.

"THE PLUNDERED PAST,"
by KARL MEYER
Atheneum, $12.95

The voracious appetite of museums, private collectors and dealers for great art has resulted in the pillage of archae-

with Grace Carolyn

Businesses which boast a hundred year-old history should take note of the Caswell-Massey Company in New York, at 518 Lexington Ave. and 40th Street. It has served as an apothecary since 1752, serving such customers as George Washington, Dolly Madison and much later, Sarah Bernhardt. The shop may be visited today for such creations as Irish oatmeal, Swiss Alpine cow's milk, French mink oil, cucumber and elder powder, Spanish seaweed and the finest old-fashioned mustache wax. The 1973-74 catalog is a quaintly designed, colorful work of art.

DON'T LISTEN to those irritating commercials on T.V. which make your headache worse than it really is. Try my remedy (copied from an old cook book). Soak the feet in hot water about 20 minutes, drinking at the same time penny royal, catnip or mint tea. Then get into bed, cover up warm and keep up a sweating process for an hour. This will relieve the headache, unless it is due to an overloaded stomach.

Do you remember give away dishes at the movies? We received "Fiesta Ware," which was various solid color pottery in bright shades of orange, green, blue and yellow. Sure enough, it is being collected, but like the 10-cent matinee, not for old-fashioned prices.

I had a question from a reader concerning what to do with some good pieces of woolen camel hair cloth from her grandmother. I would suggest a quilt such as one I saw at a linen shop at Plaza Del Lago in Wilmette. It was made of squares of camel hair, checked and plaid woolens and lined with soft flannelette. It didn't appear to have any filler or "stuffing." It would be very handsome for a boy's bed. It used to be the fashion to make quilts from discarded men's suits and coats, and I have one from my husband's "Mor-Mor" which is now more than 50 years old with no sign of age.

If you have a question, please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope or phone number.

The book stall

ological sites, thefts from museums, private collections and churches, and international smuggling. This is the first major survey of the 20th Century's rape of the art legacy of the past.

"ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT,"
by EDWIN P. HOYT
Chilton, $6.95

Detractors can point out that Woolcott's writings proved as durable as yesterday's newspaper copy, and his personality, a creation of willful, indulgent pre-World War II society, seems more appalling than appealing now. But he was representative of his time and it certainly is fun to read about him, his life style and such of his friends as Harpo Marx and George S. Kaufman.

"LANDMARKS OF THE REVOLUTION,"
by MARK M. BOATNER III
Stackpole, $10

Here is an incomparable picture story of the American Revolution, a detailed description of the actual places where the battles were planned and fought and of the men involved. This is no mere roadmap. The author, a military historian, tells superb stories within historical context.

Competition winners featured at Harper concert Tuesday night

Competition winners Marcia Stilgebauer of Hoffman Estates and Kenneth V. Duke Jr. of Barrington will be soloists at the Harper College Community Orchestra concert Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the college center.

Both are members of the orchestra. They competed in auditions held last spring for solo spots at concerts.

Mrs. Stilgebauer, first flutist with the orchestra, will play "A Night Piece" by Arthur Foote. She is a teacher of flute and piano and directs the children's choir at First Methodist Church of Palatine.

Thirteen-year-old Kenneth will play the piano solo in the "Piano Concerto No. 12 in A, K414," by Mozart. The young musician is cellist in the Harper orchestra. He won scholarship awards the past three summers at Interlochen Music Camp and was third place winner in Steinway and Lyon-Healy piano competitions in 1972 and 1973.

ALSO FEATURED in the orchestra performance of Antonio Vivaldi's "Concerto Grosso, No. 3 op. 11," will be violinists Ruth Wall of Park Ridge and Dr. George Makas, professor of music at Harper. Cellist Richard Noyes of Arlington Heights will also be featured.

Dr. Robert Tillotson of Harper's music faculty will be guest conductor at Tuesday's concert and other faculty members will also perform solos.

The program will include "G minor Symphony No. 40, K550" by Mozart.

There is no admission charge to the concert.

Musicians desiring to be soloists at a Harper Community Orchestra concert during the 1974-75 season may obtain application forms from Dr. Makas for the auditions to be held May 22.

Joni Mitchell: beautiful as singer and songwriter

Each new Joni Mitchell album is preceded by high anticipation and great expectations. The talented Canadian singer-songwriter never disappoints, as her newest and sixth album, "Court and Spark" (Asylum records), very amply proves.

Beauty in her poetry and beauty in her music. There is no other way to describe Miss Mitchell's performance — whether it is on a record such as "Court and Spark" or in a live performance such as last week's appearance at the Auditorium Theatre.

Time after time and song after song, she maintains an amazing quality in her work. I don't believe any other songwriter — with the possible exception of Bob Dylan — has written as many memorable pop songs. Each of her songs has a meaning, too — whether it be about the attitudes and emotions of love or the detailing of human relationships, long-range or spur-of-the-moment.

"COURT AND SPARK" could be her best album ever, mostly because she has very successfully broadened the musical tones to include both rock and jazz beats. More than in any other album, the solo performance has been reduced to a less important level.

Yet I can't say it is her best album because I like the other five just as well. It is certainly the best album of its type — songwriter doing her own material — in over a year and a half or since her own "For the Roses" album (also Asylum).

Of the 11 songs (10 originals), four became immediate favorites and five others soon followed. The four were "Help Me" (nice tempo, sparkling performance and good arrangement), "Free Man In Paris" (about a performer's agent with David Crosby and Graham Nash helping out), "Raised On Robbery" (what she called "boogie," her best rock song with Robbie Robertson of the Band on guitar) and "Twisted" (the 1965 Ross and Grey jazz tune done in an Ella Fitzgerald vocal style with Cheech and Chong along).

THOSE SONGS have the strong music to go along with the words. The others rely more on the words, but Miss Mitchell plays very fine guitar too. Among these are "People's Parties" (the unsuredness of being among strangers in a group situation), "The Same Situation" (the feelings of a man's newest girl, a girl searching for love) and "Just Like This Train" (in which lovers become railroad cars).

The last song gives a good example of her lyrics: "The station master's shuffling cards/Boxcars are banging in the yards/Jealous lovin'll make you crazy." "Court and Spark" could be the album of the year for 1974, but we'll have to wait and see. If it had come out a month earlier, it certainly would have ranked with Elton John's "Goodbye Yellow Brick Road" and the Who's "Quadrophenia" at the top of last year's list.

"THE WAY WE WERE," the soundtrack album from the movie of the same name (on Columbia records), is a fine album of background music. In addition it features Barbra Streisand singing the title song twice. Streisand's single of the tune (slightly different) is currently the No. 1 song across the country and the song itself just won the Foreign Press Association's Golden Globe Award for best movie song of last year.

"Bright White" (A&M records) is a disappointing effort from Shawn Phillips. Other than the title song, which is bright and catchy, the album lacks strong, unified songs. As usual, Phillips is trying to get his message across (he's a latter day protest singer of sorts), but his music suffers. The best part of the album is his haunting voice, which many may remember from the title song of the movie "Lost Horizon."

Area women help Chicago symphony fund campaign

The Countryside Committee of the Chicago Symphony Women's Association recently held a luncheon to kick-off a fund raising drive for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

In return for contributing to the orchestra, patrons receive a newsletter about the orchestra and the youth concerts which are sponsored by the Women's Association.

Also, all programs of the popular concerts and chamber music concerts are sent to contributors, and they are invited to attend an open rehearsal.

"Most important, of course, is that Chicago can continue to have one of the greatest orchestras in the world today," said Mrs. Gilbert McIntosh of Palatine, chairman.

Her co-chairman is Mrs. John Gelitz of Barrington.

Other members from the area include Mrs. John Coates, Mrs. Charles Foxgrover Jr. and Mrs. Henry Howland, all of Inverness; Mrs. Henry Doehland, Des Plaines; Mrs. Wilbur Inman, Arlington Heights, and Mrs. Rudolph Schaefer of Des Plaines.

'Flowers' cast

Schaumburg Festival Theatre will stage "Send Me No Flowers," a comedy described as "sexy and zany," as its next production. Play dates are Feb. 22 and 23 and March 1 and 2.

The cast, just announced, includes Harding Stephens, seen most recently in Festival Theatre's production of "Oh Dad! Poor Dad!" as George Kimball a hypochondriac who mistakenly believes he is dying.

Kimball's wife, Judy, will be played by Sandy Reimann and her former boy friend, a Texas millionaire, by Bill Jackson. Ray DiCoco has been cast as the drunken next door neighbor. Dick Kelly is the cemetery lot salesman and George Wadja the doctor.

Others in the cast are Rita DeMarco, Toni Pallaro, Bob Mattel, Andy Pallaro and Bill Paige.

Joe McAuliffe is directing the play assisted by Marian Wasche.

Creperie a unique eatery

by GENIE CAMPBELL

If the long lines over the noon hour in front of the MAGIC PAN at Woodfield Shopping Center intimidate you from experiencing the new creperie, I suggest you return for dinner. It's worth a special trip.

In fact the meal might be more enjoyable if you enter directly into the restaurant that is very tastefully decorated in a Scandinavian motif. One is secluded and far removed from all the Woodfield garishness and bustle. So why join it if you don't have to.

Five dollars will buy two crepes of your choice (and that choice might be a stuffing of seafood, meat or vegetables) preceded either by soup or salad. If you're hungry for crepes only, your bill will be less.

Combinations are available to try several different kinds of crepes or a complete dinner may be ordered which might include either soup, salad or a dessert crepe with the main dish.

Along with the crepes Potage St. Germain is a specialty of the Magic Pan. It's a blend of French country pea soup, chicken and vegetables.

The Magic Pan is a unique eating experience... if you don't have to wait in a long line for a seat.

All kinds of surprises are being announced at ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE. What is the most recent one? ART CARNEY and DON KNOTTS will star together in "THE ODD COUPLE" filling in the vacant period after "DANCE ON THE COUNTRY GRAVE," the current production, closes Feb. 14 and before "ONE FLEW OVER THE CUCKOO'S NEST," a return engagement with JAMES FARENTINO, opens March 7.

The two celebrated comedians will open Feb. 21 and play for 10 days only through March 3.

Art Carney, who created the role of Felix on Broadway opposite Walter Matthau, will for the first time have the opportunity to play Oscar while Knotts will take the role of Felix.

But everything comes at a cost. All tickets for "The Odd Couple" are $12.50. Ten days will never answer the demand of theatergoers even at those prices. I'd like to see the production return next summer.

The Ivanhoe Irish comedy drama "DA" has been selected for five Joseph Jefferson nominations including best production, best direction (JAMES D. WARRING), best guest artist (JOHN MCGIVER), best actor in a leading role (STEPHEN JOYCE), and best actor in a supporting role (ROBERT THOMPSON).

The rewarding production is playing at the Ivanhoe through March 17.

JOHN MACNALLY opens in the BLUE MAX of the HYATT REGENCY O'HARE this Monday. Appearing with the singing Irishman for an engagement through Feb. 16 is comedian BILLY FALBO.

John, who is well known in his native country, opened a tour of the U. S. last fall. He currently resides in Dublin with his wife and two children.

Featured on Friday and Saturday nights in the PLAYROOM of CARSON INN NORDIC HILLS is AL MONTI with his musical quartet. He opens tonight and plays through Feb. 16.

Upstairs in the SKOAL LOUNGE, JOHNNY ROMANO is entertaining every Tuesday through Saturday. Sundays and Mondays it's BILL ZELSDORF and his cordova.

Looking ahead to a Valentine's Day celebration? Perhaps it's not quite as wild as New Year's, but Cupid is getting ready to do his thing at INDIAN HILLS which will host a special dinner dance. Only Cupid is going to have to wait two days because Indian Hills has designated Saturday, the 16th, to celebrate the lovers' holiday.

NOTHING IS sacred, not even a poor working girl's secret, when villains stalk the boards. Alice Orlison and Hank de Groh appear in "Pure As the Driven Snow," melodrama being presented by Village Theatre Feb. 15, 16, 22 and 23.

VT to stage a melodrama

As an antidote to the mid-winter blahs, cynicism and burning social issues, Village Theatre will provide a genuine old-time melodrama the nights of Feb. 15, 16, 22 and 23.

Titled "Pure As the Driven Snow," the three-act comedy, proceeding through a multitude of cornball carryings-on, will try to settle the question of whether or not before the play started the snow-pure heroine actually did drift a little.

Purity Dean, a down-on-her-luck but plucky working girl, will be played by Alice Orlison of Arlington Heights. Her protector, simple but stalwart Leander Longfellow, is Chuck Sears of Mount Prospect. Hank de Groh of Arlington Heights will portray the villainous Mortimer Frothingham, a cur who would stoop so low as to tarnish the name of a good woman (and also indulge in a bit of blackmail, fraud and bigamy).

THE PLAY IS peppered with characters ill-equipped to handle the simplest of life's challenges, much less cope with a life-plot that thickens and thickens. There are the two inn-keepers who almost become inn-keepers, a high-born brother and sister scheduled to inherit the local pickle factory, a social snob and her simpering offspring, hapless guests at the inn, a bungling ex-convict and a woman of mystery.

The melodrama, replete with nostalgic between-act song and dance numbers, will be presented at the Des Plaines Theatre Guild, 620 Lee St. Friday night performances are $2.50 with $1.50 for students. Saturday nights are $3.

Reservations may be made by calling Village Theatre box office, 259-3200.

A MOD VALENTINE

You'll need a half sheet of white construction paper and one and a half sheets of red construction paper to make this mod Valentine.

Cut the white half sheet into half-inch wide vertical strips. Fold the whole red sheet in half to make a card. Glue half of the white strips to the front of the card so it is covered with red and white vertical stripes. Glue the rest of the white strips to the half sheet of red paper in the same way. Let the glue dry.

Cut a big heart from the half sheet. Glue it to the front of your card so that its red stripes are on the card's white stripes. This will work out best if the stripe along the left side of the card is red and the stripe along the left side of the half sheet is white. Write your greeting inside.

Cupid flies in from Germany for wedding of Lynne Gasser

The bridesmaid who played Cupid for Lynne Gasser and Kenneth Mohr flew in from Germany to take part in the couple's wedding Jan. 12 in St. Edna's Church, Arlington Heights. She is the groom's sister, the former Linda Mohr, who now resides in Frankfurt where her husband, John Meyer, is stationed with the Army. John was best man for the wedding.

Lynne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Gasser of Long Grove, and Ken is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mohr, Arlington Heights.

For the double ring service Lynne chose an old-fashioned gown of peau de soie trimmed in Venise lace and seed pearls. A matching Camelot headpiece held her veil.

KATHY CONLON, childhood friend of the bride, was maid of honor and Vickie Tate was a bridesmaid along with Linda. They wore burgundy velvet gowns trimmed in white lace, and carried baskets of white, pink and burgundy roses.

Ushers were Matt Pancratz, Arlington Heights, Bruce Barsanti, George McDonnell, Arlington Heights, and the bride's brother, Bill, Long Grove.

A dinner reception for 300 guests was held at Lancer's in Schaumburg after which the newlyweds honeymooned for a week in Florida. They are now residing in Palatine. The bride, who studied at Knox College, is employed as a secretary for Brite-O-Matic Manufacturing Co., Arlington Heights, and Ken, who studied at Harper, is with Paddock Publications.

For mildew in bathroom try washing soda, borax or bleach

Dear Dorothy: I have a bad mildew problem in the bathroom, especially with the shower. The grout is black as is the area around the window. Unfortunately, this is the only bathroom for a family of five and no heat in it. I've used a small heater but hesitate to use it often due to the energy crisis. I've tried every commercial product with no luck at all. Is there anything I can put on the walls to stop this? — Sheila Bohn Washing soda, borax, chlorine bleach, the cleaner that contains trisodium phosphate — all make solutions to wash off mildew. If you pick washing soda, make the solution strong; if chlorine bleach, make the solution dilute. If any mildew is left on the grout after this cleaning, wipe with a cloth wrung out of a solution of half water, half denatured alcohol. With all this, don't forget rubber gloves. Sprinkle a little borax in the corners of the shower stall to deter mildew from coming back. Normally, this kind of thing happens in the cold months because one can open a window in the summer to get excess moisture out. I'll add that anyone as conscientious as you are about the energy situation will be excused for using the heater when necessary.

ideas, thought I would send you one of mine that I've been using for years. I saw the metal part of the garter from an old girdle onto the corner of a potholder. As the cloth loops always wind up burning off, I have a permanent handle to hang the potholder up. — Fay Potter

Dear Dorothy: If you want to use a lovely house plant as a floral centerpiece and the blossoms are gone, get some glass tubes and blossoms to fill them at a florist's — and place them strategically in the plant. — The tubes are reusable. — A.E.

Two porno films rate as big boxoffice draws

HOLLYWOOD—Here's a shocker. Of the top 50 motion pictures in release during 1973 two of the biggest boxoffice attractions were outright pornography. Like it or not, Americans have a prurient interest in what amounts to stag films. The lines in front of porno theaters are almost a half-and-half mixture of men and women — mostly young, but of all ages.

In its annual survey, Daily Variety, the show business bible, listed the top key-city grossing movies of the year. "Key-city" does not include small town Bijous across the country. They are population centers which set trends and reflect the tastes in films of the majority of city folk.

"The Devil in Miss Jones" placed fifth among all movies in 1973, earning $7.3 million in the 20-34 key cities survey. In 11th place was "Deep Throat" which grossed $4.6 million.

THE NEAREST Disney picture was "World's Greatest Athlete" with a paltry boxoffice gross of $2.4 million.

"The Devil in Miss Jones" and "Deep Throat" are not to be confused with ordinary X-rated films. They are hard core pornography which detail just about every sexual exercise known to man and woman.

"Last Tango in Paris," Marlon Brando's X-rated revulsion, was third in Variety's computerized listing of boxoffice winners with $8.9 million.

But far out in front of all the pictures checked in the key-cities survey was "The Poseidon Adventure" which rolled up an eye-popping $13.7 million in 1973.

Paul: a great influence on Christianity

Editors' Note: Following is one of the last religion columns written by Louis Cassels before his death Jan. 23. Cassels, 52, longtime religion editor of UPI, died of a heart attack at his home near Alken, S.C.

by LOUIS CASSELS

The Christian Church last week celebrated one of the most important events of its history.

It occurred in the year 33 A.D. A zealous young Pharisee named Saul was riding along a dusty highway between Jerusalem and Damascus. He was going to Damascus with warrants to arrest and imprison members of a new Jewish sect called Christians.

Saul regarded Christians as blasphemous heretics. For they claimed the long-awaited Messiah had already appeared in the person of Jesus Christ. Saul felt certain Jesus could not have been the Messiah.

JESUS HAD BEEN ignominiously put to death by crucifixion, and Saul could not believe God would let that happen to the real Messiah.

As Saul approached Damascus, according to his own subsequent account, "a light from the sky suddenly flashed all around him." He was so afraid that he fell to the ground.

Then he heard a voice saying, "Saul! Saul! Why do you persecute me?"

"Who are you, Lord?" Saul asked.

"I am Jesus, whom you persecute."

NEVER HAS A single event more thoroughly transformed a man. From a persecutor of Christians, Saul became the greatest of all Christian missionaries.

To symbolize his new commitment as a faithful and utterly fearless servant of

Cured cancer victim to speak

Georgia Photopulos, a cured cancer patient who underwent 19 operations in her battle against the killing disease, will speak tonight at St. John the Baptist Greek Orthodox Church, 2350 Dempster St., Des Plaines.

The 8 p.m. meeting, sponsored by St. John's PTA, is open to the public.

Mrs. Photopulos will speak on the new Cancer Call-Pak, a 24-hour answering service for cancer patients and their relatives, which provides help and information for persons with questions or fears.

The telephone service was created by Mrs. Photopulos. People in the Chicago area can call 372-6262 for help. Because of Cancer Call-Pak's success the Northwest Suburban Unit of the American Cancer Society is planning to start a similar program in the suburbs.

Mrs. Photopulos will show a film and discuss her personal fight with cancer at tonight's meeting. She also will explain the Call-Pak program.

For further information call 827-5519.

He concentrated especially on the countries of Asia Minor on the eastern end of the Mediterranean, planting Christian churches wherever he went.

WHEN PROBLEMS or dissensions arose in one of his young churches and he was unable to go in person to resolve them, Paul wrote letters to them. Cherished and carefully preserved by the early church, these epistles today form more than half the text of the New Testament.

Although we know much more about Paul's beliefs than his appearance and personality, available evidence and his own writings indicate he was a short, bold-headed, bowlegged man; sensitive, proud and hot tempered; afraid of women and anxious to keep them "in their place" in the church; almost totally devoid of a sense of humor.

He suffered from a chronic disease, probably epilepsy.

No one demonstrated better than Paul the agony of the human condition which he once bewailed by saying: "The good I would do, I cannot do; the evil I would not do, I do."

Paul was capable of great love, magnanimity and forgiveness. But he could also lash out at critics with sarcasm.

ON BALANCE, Paul is not the warm personality that Jesus was. What stands out most vividly about Paul is his absolutely unswerving devotion to his late-discovered Lord and his unshakable conviction that only through Christ could weak and sinful men like himself attain enough grace to be reasonably decent human beings.

A brilliant man by any standard, Paul interpreted the Christian gospel in its infancy with such persuasive lucidity that his imprint has forever remained on Christian teaching.

As Dean Alexander C. Purdy of Hartford Theological Seminary once said: "Paul must be reckoned as second only to his master, Jesus Christ, as a creative personality in Christianity."

Flannery suffers imperfections

Just so you won't think the Flannery convention is perfect we will show a hand where it backfired against its users.

South had no interest in a slam after his partner opened with a Flannery two diamond call, but he wanted to be in a notrump game and got there by the direct method of bidding it.

East wanted a heart lead and was able to call for it by doubling. In general when you double a freely bid notrump game you are asking your partner to lead dummy's best suit and the Flannery two diamonds established hearts as that suit.

South did the best he could after West opened the 10 of hearts. He ducked in dummy in hope that the lead was a singleton, but West was able to lead a second heart. South played dummy's nine. East won with the jack and led the king to knock out dummy's ace.

East was interested in just one thing. He wanted to make sure of three heart tricks in addition to his two aces and this play made sure of them.

Ordinary bidding would probably find North playing three notrump. East would lead a heart but unless he were a seventh son of a seventh son he would not think of leading low and North would romp home with game and rubber.

Agreement

This agreement made and entered into this 3rd day of December, 1973, by and between the Village of Buffalo Grove, a municipal corporation of the State of Illinois (hereinafter referred to as the "Village"), and Metro Systems Corp., an Illinois corporation (hereinafter referred to as the "Company"), witnesses:

WHEREAS, the Company proposes to operate a local transportation system within the Village for the convenience of its citizens, and

WHEREAS, the Village has determined that it is in the best interests of all the citizens of the Village of Buffalo Grove that bus service be maintained, and

WHEREAS, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 24, Section 11-122.1, of the Illinois Revised Statutes, 1967, as amended, the Village has entered into negotiations with the Company in order to provide the citizens of Buffalo Grove with certain bus service.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises contained herein and for other good and valuable consideration, receipt and sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by both parties, the Village and the Company hereby covenant and agree as follows:

1. The Village, to the full extent of its legal authority, hereby grants to the Company as of December 3, 1974, the right to operate a bus service for the purpose of transporting the general public within the corporate limits of the Village as noted on Exhibit "A" attached hereto and as amended from time to time for a period of one (1) year subject to the provisions hereof.

2. This agreement shall, upon mutual agreement by the Company and the Village, be extended for one year period unless either party terminates this agreement in writing no less than thirty (30) days prior to the termination of the original one year term.

3. The Company shall initially provide service for Village residents going to and from the Chicago & North Western Railroad Station in the morning and evening peak hours, five days a week (Monday through Friday), over routes and charging fares set forth in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and made a part hereof. Any change in the routes, hours, or fares shall be shown in supplemental exhibits to be attached.

4. The Village reserves to itself as provided in Chapter 24, Section 11-122.1, the exclusive jurisdiction and control of fares to be charged, service to be provided, routes, types of vehicles and equipment to be used, drivers and operators to be employed; however, the Village does agree, to the extent allowed by law, that it will consult with and give the company reasonable notice of any proposed change in fares, routes, routes, vehicles and equipment.

5. The Company shall have the sole obligation and responsibility for maintenance, repair and upkeep of its buses and equipment and failure thereof shall be cause for cancellation of this agreement.

6. The Company shall comply with Chapter 11-2/3, Sections 7 and 8, referred to in said Chapter 21, Section 11-2/3.

7. If at any time the Company wishes to be governed by the rules and regulations of the Illinois Commerce Commission, it must give advance notice to the Village of such intention, and acquire the written consent of the Village.

8. The Company shall, at its expense, at all time keep in full force and effect general liability insurance covering all of its bus operations in the following amounts per bus operated: And shall have the Village named as an additional insured on all such insurance policies.

9. For Bodily Injury to Property — $100,000.
For Bodily Injury to One Person — $500,000.
For Bodily Injury to Two or More Persons — $1,000,000.

10. The Company hereby agrees to hold harmless the Village for any damage, claim or liability arising from the operations of the Company.

11. The Company agrees to conform to, and abide by all ordinances of the Municipality, and laws of the State of Illinois.

12. The Village agrees to assist the Company in communications with the residents. This assistance

Even the versatile rook sometimes gets picked off

Kings and rooks represent two extremes of mobility. The king is the tortoise of the chess board while the rook, except for the queen, is the most mobile piece in chess. Occasionally the rook, seven league boots and all, will remain bottled up in a corner because it is blocked by a heavy-footed king. The resulting tangle can be fatal.

Diagram 1

In our first diagram we see the ultimate instance of the awkwardly conjoined rook and king. Not only is the rook miserably out of play but the king is deprived of the crucial R1 square for its flight (if necessary). The enemy bishop draws the noose tighter, as it eliminates alternate paths of escape. The king is, all other things being equal, a delicious target for checkmate.

Diagram 2

If you look at our next position (Klov-Lomov), you will see another instance of inept camaraderie between the two pieces. The rook is strangely placed at R2. The white king has been driven to the corner, where it is in a solid box. The white rook at R2 (black has sacrificed his own rooks for this position) is screened from the action by the black knight. Black's threatened checkmates at KB8 and Q8 can only be met at high cost (i.e. ... QxP check). The paraplegic rook at R2, which deprives the king of its own flight square, makes a travesty of white's requirements.

Slow in movement, the king may not be slow in wit. Though it is as rare as a quarterback running 50 yards for a touchdown, the king may on occasion snare a rook. A famous instance is seen in the position in Diagram 3.

Diagram 4
Our first example develops from the position given in Diagram 4. Black seems to be winning imminently because of the pin and double attack on the white knight. But white may liquidate the bishop by a rook sacrifice and then ... After 1. R-B6 check, K-N2; 2. RxB, KxR; white plays 3. K-B3 and the rook is trapped. If 3... R-Q5, white will play 4. N-B5 check, win the rook, and have a simple end-game win.

Basketball drama! Wildcats, Cards collide

A HERALD STAFF REPORT

Big... bigger... biggest — that's the North Division game schedule for the Mid-Suburban League tonight.

The "biggest" showdown has division leader Wheeling at Arlington, presently tied for second place.

Ranking as the "bigger" of the two remaining contests is Hersey, which shares second with Arlington, entertaining Palatine.

Finally, Rolling Meadows will be at Fremd in what qualifies as a "big" game in terms of pride. The Mustangs (1-3) are fighting to get out of last place and Fremd (3-5) is just as eager to keep them there. All games will start about 8 p.m.

Both Arlington (7-2) and Wheeling (8-1) have identical overall records of 14-4. Each has enjoyed a victory over the other, but the Cardinals' meant the most because it was in league play. However, after that surprisingly lopsided (64-45) loss, the Wildcats have been unbeatable.

Meanwhile, Hersey (7-2) can stay in the thick of things if it doesn't start looking past the Pirates (3-6).

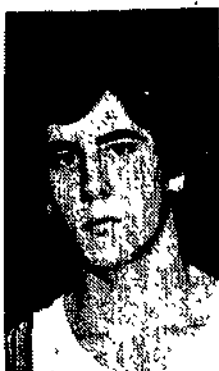

Here's the outlook from each school:

WHEELING AT ARLINGTON

All the marbles may not be in the pot, but this is the seventh time in less than two years that Arlington and Wheeling have met on a basketball court. You can be sure most of the biggest, shiniest and newest agates will be tossed in for this North Division headliner which will be broadcast at 12.7 FM.

Wheeling will be hoping for revenge as will the Cardinals. The latter lost in overtime to the Wildcats in the Centralia tourney consolation finals.

Over the two-season span, the 'Cats own a 4-2 edge in the series, having taken three straight last year after losing their first meeting of the 72-73 campaign. This year the same trend has been established although Card coach George Zig-man would like to see it reversed after tonight.

Bill Pickler

"It's more a do-or-die proposition for us than for them. A loss would give us three in conference and pretty much turn the race into a two-team battle between Wheeling and Hersey.

"Even a win isn't going to put us in command, but at least it would even everyone up at the top of the pack and make Hersey's later games with us and Wheeling more significant."

Neither the Cardinals or the Wildcats won in impressive style Tuesday night, lending many to believe the two teams were looking past those contests to the big hookup this evening.

"I hope that's all it was," Zigman sighed. "We stood around against Fremd in the first half like we didn't even have to earn the win. If we do that against Wheeling there might not be enough points left in the scoreboard for us to recover within the second half."

Arlington will put their usual starting five on the floor — Dan Donahue, Jeff Cleveland, Doug Betters, Jerry DeSimone and Steve Loughman — but that doesn't guarantee any of them a lot of action. Zigman substituted early and freely against the Vikings and at one stage in the first half had only two of his five regulars in the game.

The further we get into the season the less hesitant I get about using the bench. (Jay) Colleton gave us a big boost Tuesday and before that it was (Dennis) Gaare doing the job."

In the first conference meeting, big George Kaage (6-4½) was in foul trouble from the start. He managed to score 15 points, but he was on the bench when he was most needed — as a rebounder, score and floor leader. Kaage must be in there for Wheeling to win.

"We'll be ready for Arlington," said Ecker. "There's no way we'll be doing that (the so-so performance against Palatine Tuesday) against Arlington."

"It's a funny game... I never can figure it out. I figured Palatine let down against Buffalo Grove and with our clash with Arlington coming up, I was scared to death."

Now that the upset possibly has passed, Ecker can concentrate on stopping the Cards' three-pronged attack — fairly balanced scoring, rugged rebounding and speedy guards. The December game saw all three set up the 19-point victory.

Ecker, who also has this nice combination to work with, will be starting Bill Pickler, Bob Westrich, Kaage, Bill Kenney and Scott Keenan.

Everything being considered, it promises to be a dandy showdown between two arch rivals.

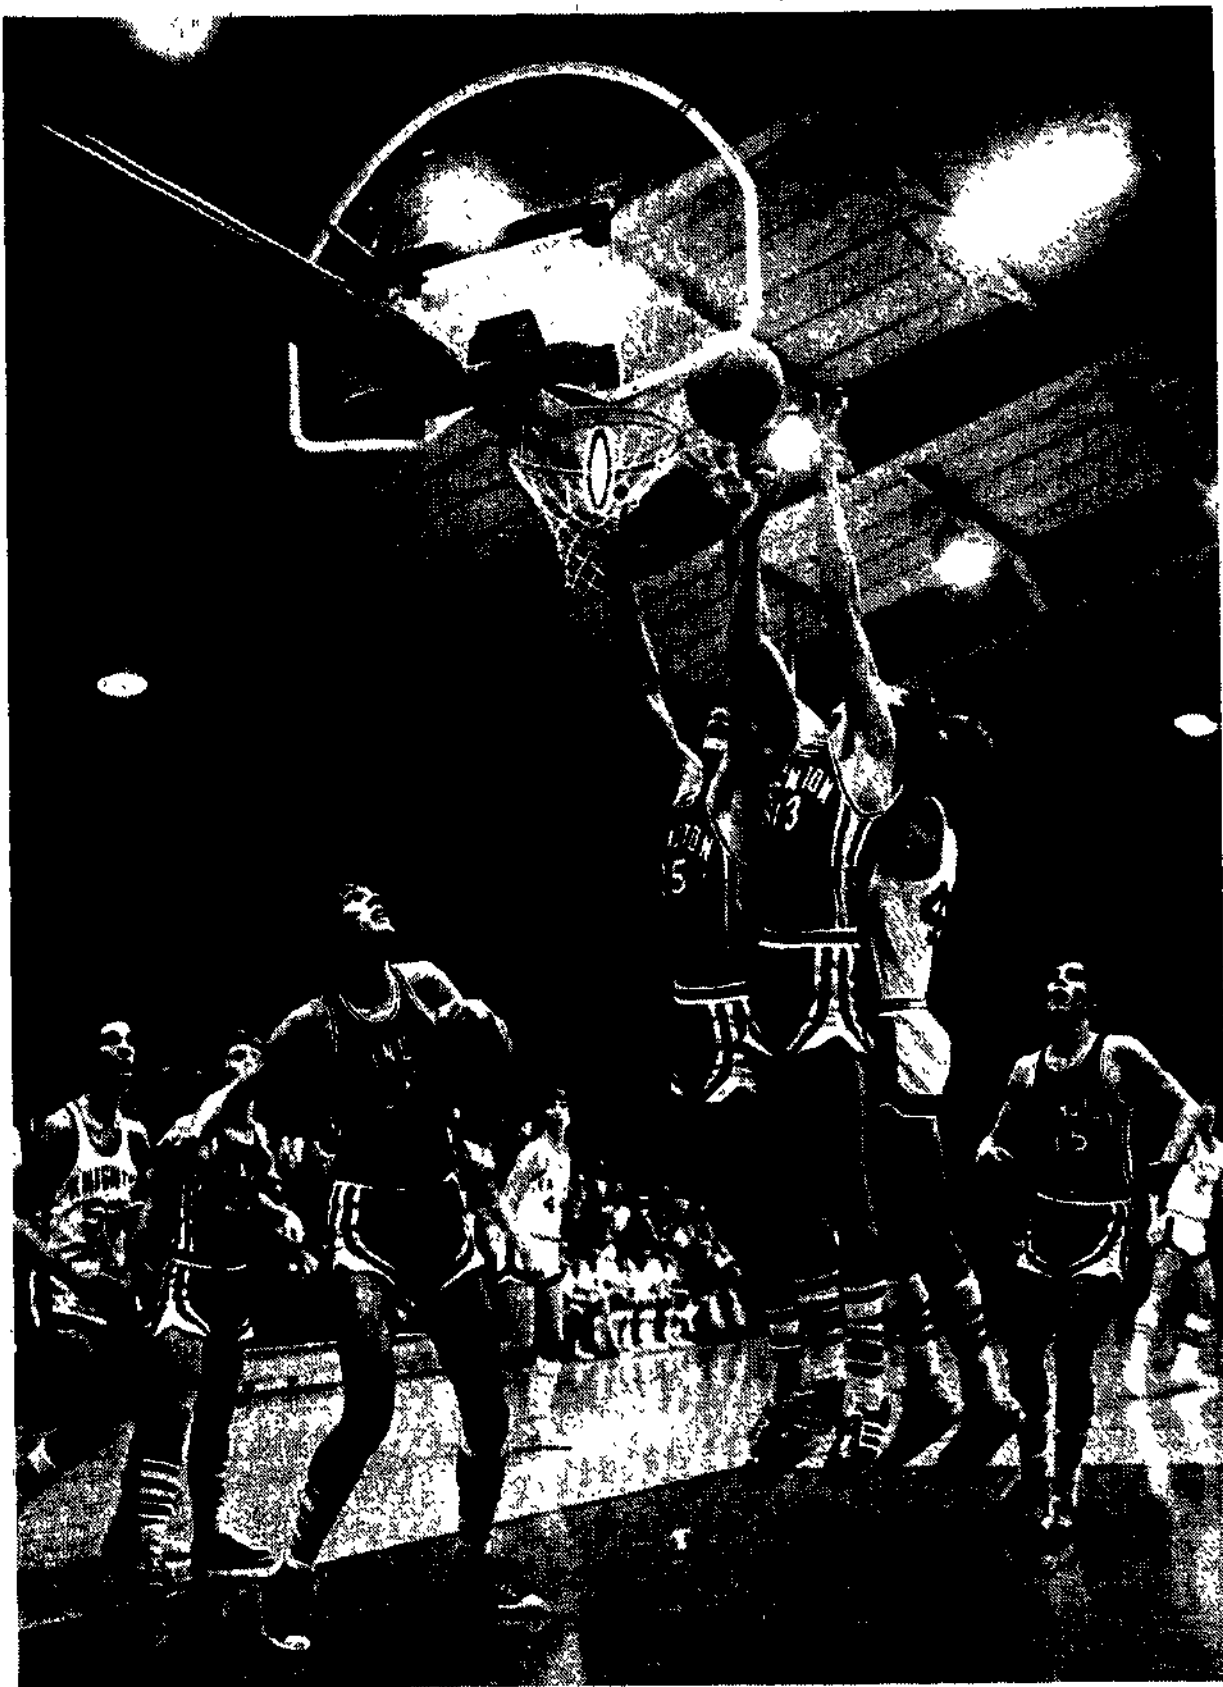

PALATINE AT HERSEY

Hersey's recent jackrabbit sprints out of the starting gate have kept the Huskies in the thick of the North Division title derby. Palatine knows that only too well.

The Huskies have at least doubled the opposition in the first quarter of their last three league games. Hersey spurted past Conant, 13-4, ripped Schaumburg, 20-6 and ripped Rolling Meadows, 30-3 Tuesday night.

It was the same strategy the Huskies employed against Palatine in topping the Pirates, 74-48 in their first go-round.

Crucial battle on WWMM radio

Showdown time!

Wheeling will visit Arlington tonight in the showdown of the Mid-Suburban League North Division, and the WWMM-FM microphones (92.7) will be there.

Wheeling holds an 8-1 league record, and Arlington is 7-2. The two teams have split games this season, Arlington winning in the league and Wheeling in holiday tourney play.

WM Director of Sports Bud Kelly will give the play-by-play and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will offer the color commentary at this dramatic meeting, with the tipoff set for approximately 8 p.m.

Fritz wants to forget 1973 season

Fritz Peterson can't wait for the new season to begin.

He isn't that proud of the old one.

The New York Yankees' lefthander, a 1960 graduate of Arlington High School, says he is facing the 1974 season with a "feeling of real optimism."

That sounds like the kind of talk you hear from every professional baseball player at this time of year, but with Peterson, a veteran pitcher, there is reason to look ahead to 1974 — and forget 1973.

Peterson was involved last spring in the wife-swapping incident with former teammate Mike Kekich that grabbed national headlines. He also won only eight games while dropping 15.

"I know that I'll be in much better shape mentally than I was last season now that all this (his domestic problems) is behind me," says the 32-year-old Peterson, who won 20 games for the Yankees in 1970 and is 109-106 in his career.

Fritz Peterson

Peterson also is excited about the prospect of working with the Yankees' new pitching coach Whitey Ford, a recent addition to baseball's Hall of Fame.

"He told me what he expected of me for the rest of the winter," Peterson reported. "He wants me to begin throwing as soon as I can, easily at first. I'm going to Fort Lauderdale a few weeks before I'm scheduled to report, and I plan to do just that."

"I can't wait to work for Whitey. He knows so much. He was the same type of pitcher as I am — except he was better. He didn't try to overpower hitters and neither do I. There are so many more right-handed hitters in our league than left-handed hitters and I figure Whitey can help me improve against them."

Kickin' it around

by BOB FRISK Sports Editor

Ford has been quoted as saying that Peterson would be better off throwing less pitches. "He's proud of the fact that he can throw six or seven different pitches," says the Hall-of-Famer. "I intend to talk to him and see if I can convince him that he might be better off with just three or four."

Peterson concurs. After all, he won only eight games in 1973 so any advice right now looks good. And you don't usually question somebody who won 236 major league games and lost only 106.

"I think Whitey's right," says Fritz. "I think I'm going to get rid of the curve and screwball. Those were the two pitches that were always getting me in trouble last year, anyway."

Don't be surprised if Fritz Peterson makes a dramatic comeback in 1974.

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH, which is absolutely nothing at this stage almost two weeks later, that 75-foot basket made by Conant's Roger Sander against Hersey should not have counted.

That's the official word now because it did touch part of a permanent gym structure — a cable — and immediately became a dead ball at that point.

If it had been a two-point game, this could have produced a very tense situation because some observers did see the ball hit the cable. Conant won by eight points.

That still takes nothing away from the fact that the ball did find its way into the basket from about 75 feet away. It still goes into the record books as a basket. The officials ruled it that way.

It may have been a dead ball according to the rule books, but it didn't look very dead when it ripped through the net. Official or not, it's still a shot I'll never forget.

A SPORTS COLUMNIST for the Wilmington (Del.) News-Journal came up with his first annual Delaware Scholastic All-Star football selections, an honor list composed of players injured in games, in practice, or off the playing field.

According to Editor and Publisher magazine, columnist Matt Zabitzka listed on his first team offense a high schooler who had a shoulder separation and missed seven games. For corner backs on the defensive first team, he honored a player with a leg broken in two places and another sidelined four games with a broken collar bone. Among special awards was one to a student who cracked a vertebra.

The sportswriter received numerous calls from parents of injured players wanting to know why their sons were omitted. One asked: "My son broke an arm in two places early in the season and couldn't play anymore. Don't you think this entitles him to mention?"

Somehow, this doesn't strike me as that humorous. And I can just see the reactions from coaches in this area if the Herald ever picked a similar team.

Football coaches are very sensitive — with good reason — to any emphasis on injuries in our stories.

OFFICIALS OF THE International High School Track and Field headliner, that annual showcase of schoolboy talent at Prospect High, were happy to hear about that incredible pole vault of 16 feet 1½ inches indoors by Bloom's Tim Johnson.

It always helps attendance to have standouts from Illinois high schools at the International, and Johnson should be one of the featured performers at the June 8 attraction. Another boy from Illinois who will rate with the nation's best this spring is Thornton half-miler Charlie White, who could dip below 1:50 in his specialty.

When he cleared the bar at 16-1½, Johnson broke a national interscholastic indoor record that had stood since 1965. The former mark was 16 feet, ¾ inch produced first by Paul Wilson of Downey, Calif. and equalled last year by Kim Scott of Madison, Wis.

Johnson, third in the state pole vault as a freshman and as a soph before taking the title last spring, waited until the bar was at 15 feet before attempting his first vault the night of his record.

He cleared that with ease, then requested the bar be raised a foot, to 16 feet. He cleared that, but a measurement revealed, a sag in the bar and that he was two inches short of 16 feet.

Johnson tried again after the bar was adjusted and again was successful. This time he had the national indoor record. He pulled on his warmup clothing and headed for the shower.

Johnson's brother Jan, a former NCAA record holder in the pole vault, was third in the Olympics pole vault at Munich.

DID YOU CATCH that tennis story Monday out of Mission Viejo, Calif.?

The story related how Chris Evert beat Billie Jean King 6-3, 6-1 to win the Mission Viejo women's tennis tournament, but the most fascinating part came in the final paragraph of the AP release.

The tournament marked the first time men sportswriters had been invited into women's locker rooms for interviews on the women's pro tennis tour.

Way to go, guys. We're making progress!

It was a rough weekend for area basketball teams... Only two squads posted victories, and one came in a game between locals... Don Neubert hit a three-point play in the closing seconds of an overtime to give Prospect a 45-42 victory over Forest View... The Falcons dumped Glenbrook South in other week-end action 64-53, hitting 22 to 24 free throws.

Fan's forum

Another side to legion controversy

Dear Fans Forum:

Recently many articles have been written praising the accomplishments of past Arlington Heights American Legion teams and expressing disappointment in the post's decision to abandon the program.

I think there is no question about the merits of American Legion baseball. Over the years, it has given the young men of the community an opportunity to compete after their boys' baseball and high school careers have ended.

To this end, the legion program has filled an important gap in the athletic lives of the players that have competed. However, any other program such as Connie Mack, could do the same job.

To me, as a baseball person, I think it would be a big mistake not to offer the opportunity for the young men to play. However, I have several second thoughts about the way Lloyd Meyer has operated his program over the years. You can't argue with the won-lost record and accomplishments of his Arlington Heights Legion team.

But think for a moment. Lloyd has played a lot of politics and has had a wealth of talent from which to draw. He has not been opposed to stop taking boys from one high school attendance area to pick boys from another.

He has even raided the other legion teams in town to try to better his own team. Then there is the thing that bugs me the most. He has recruited young high school underclassmen to fill his roster. Many of these boys have set on the bench rather than playing regularly on their high school team.

Personally, I hope the legion program can be continued, but a strong look should be taken at the above practices. It is my feeling, as well as most high school coaches, that there should be a hands-off policy toward underclass high school players.

The fundamental development of players can be severely hampered by getting too many points of view, by not playing the position they will play the next spring, or still worse, sitting on the bench.

The American Legion program received some criticism last summer — some of which I feel was deserved. There are many important values and character traits that are still passed on to competitors in this age group.

Coaches whose philosophy is to win in any way, at any cost, surely are not helping the players in the long run. The confrontation between coaches and umpires, which has also involved players and fans over the past seasons, has to be a reflection of the coaches.

In closing, I want to again state that it would be a shame not to give the boys who have graduated from high school in Arlington Heights the opportunity to play baseball.

American Legion baseball can do the job with proper guidance of honorable, professional people. This is all the way from members of the local posts to the coach on the field.

I hope the problems with Post 208 can be solved and the boys of our community will be playing again this summer.

THANKS FROM FRITZ

Dear Bob Frisk:
This probably seems odd, but I was just thinking of all the people who have been overly good to me over the years and you are one of the tops.

I just wanted to take a minute to thank you for everything and if there is any way I can help you this coming season, let me know.

Thanks again.

South offers interesting battles tonight; Conant, Prospect tangle

A Herald staff report

Action in the South division of the Mid-Suburban League is dull, meaningless, and likely to induce sleep. Right? Wrong. Look again.

Sure, Conant is 9-0 and a clinch to coast into the divisional playoff. But tonight the Cougars put their 15-1 mark and their No. 3 state ranking on the line against the Prospect Knights, winners of five of their last seven in the MSL, and a team that compares favorably with Conant in height and shooting ability.

Second-place Forest View journeys to Elk Grove to get a firsthand look at the league's hottest property, the Grens' Ken Pollitz. The 6-foot-6 senior has broken the school scoring mark twice in a row while piling up 104 points in the last three games.

And the Schaumburg Saxons trek to Buffalo Grove to meet the Bison, who are on the brink of their first league victory ever.

Here's what to expect in these games, all starting at 8:00:

CONANT AT PROSPECT

The Conant Cougars, 9-0 and in firm command of first place in the South, will get their first real test in a couple of weeks tonight when they face the Knights at Prospect.

Cougar coach Dick Redlinger's team is plagued with illness and injury — guard Lindsey Rose has a bruised wrist and center Steve Irion has the flu. Both are "doubtful" for the Prospect game, according to the coach. Neither played in Tuesday's 60-34 win at Schaumburg.

"If Irion is ready, he'll only be about 25 per cent," Redlinger said. "We really won't know until then."

If the 6-7 senior is unable to play, the Cougar coach said that Ron Sulaski, a 6-4 forward, would get the call. "We'll really need the height against Prospect," Redlinger added.

Jeff Ironside or Gary Oslance will play in the event that Rose is still on the shelf.

Roger Sauder, Dave Sutherland, and Tom Bowen will round out the Cougar lineup.

Conant edged Prospect by five in December, but that was before the Knights reeled off five straight conference wins.

"Prospect is a team a lot like us," Redlinger pointed out. "Perhaps their guards are quicker. Our offense will need work — we'll have to control the ball and take the percentage shot."

The motive for a fourth-straight South division title has been dashed for defending MSL champion Prospect. But the Knights' incentive for Conant lingers on.

"I thought we should have beaten them last time," Prospect head coach Bill Slayton said of Conant's 53-48 triumph. The Knights started quickly in that one, jumping on top, 7-1 and 9-3, only to be tracked down by the Cougars' three-quarter court press and zone defense.

Redlinger designed a 3-2 zone against the Knights in an attempt to shut off Prospect winger Al Black, who's capable of picking a spot on the floor and burning off the bottom of the net.

The Knights, on the other hand, went with their usual man-to-man defense, although they've been showing a tendency to rely on a zone against taller competition.

Center Paul Withey has been the most reliable force on the floor for Prospect. The 6-foot-9 pivotman has averaged 16 points a game in the league and heads the team in rebounds. Black also has a 16-point average and has never failed to achieve double figures.

Guards Mike Quade and Jim Anderson and forward Bob Thompson should join Withey and Black in the starting quintet for Prospect tonight.

Despite its 5-4 record and mild two-game losing streak, Prospect remains the South Division's highest scoring team, averaging over 65 points per outing while yielding 57.

FOREST VIEW AT ELK GROVE

"We just stood around and watched him play," quipped an Elk Grove player in the locker room.

He was referring to Ken Pollitz, who poured in 46 points as the Grenadiers surprised Prospect Tuesday, 68-59. However, the remark wasn't true. And if visiting Forest View believes it, a surprise might be waiting for the Falcons, too.

Although Pollitz is averaging 23.9 of the Grove's 58.8 points per game, the Grenadiers are playing more like a team. Greg Kelley has been coming through as an outside threat, averaging 10.2 over the last four games.

Just as his teammates have been unselfish in getting him the ball, Pollitz is just as adept at finding an open teammate when he's double and triple teamed. The other Grenadiers don't crack double figures often, but they get enough points to take some of the pressure off Pollitz.

Elk Grove played one of its most aggressive games, both offensively and defensively. The smaller Grenadiers drove right at the taller Knights and challenged them. And they proved something, as head coach Bill Parmenter pointed out:

"We've played well (8-3) outside the conference, but we've had trouble in the league. That's why this game was important. Important because we proved we can beat a name ball club."

And another "name" team awaits the Grenadiers — Forest View.

Ted Wissen's Falcons whipped Elk Grove, 58-46, the first time around, and they managed to "hold" Pollitz to 26 points.

Forest View's strength is its tough defense — the Falcons have allowed only 50 points per game to their MSL opponents, the third best average in the league.

But Wissen doesn't know how his team will deal with the Grens' big scorer tonight. "We're still talking about it," the coach related. "Last time we just played him man-to-man, helping out when we could. But he can do everything — inside, outside, rebounding. And he's very physical on the boards. He has the strength to go back up with it. Plus, he can hit from outside."

Wissen's catalog of Pollitz' assets doesn't take into account the Falcons' aggressive starting five — Mike Meyer, Kurt Haaland, Larry Monroe, Craig Brinkman, and Mark Russo — and their ability to make things happen on the court.

But the Falcon coach was cautious in making any predictions. "We saw them beat Elgin-Larkin last Saturday and they're a much improved team," Wissen said of tonight's opponent. "It's going to be tough, I know that."

Forest View is 6-3 in the South, three games behind Conant, and one game ahead of Prospect.

SCHAUMBURG AT BUFFALO GROVE

The first time these teams met, the Saxons topped the Bison, 47-52, but on that night in early December, Brian Allmiller, Buffalo Grove's center, was out with injury. The 6-5 freshman has since shown that he is an integral part of the team.

"Buffalo Grove is coming on strong," Saxon coach Joe Breault said. "When we beat them, they didn't have Allmiller. We've seen them play since then, and they've improved. It will be nip-and-tuck — they could be tough."

Breault's lineup is anchored by three seniors — Ray Kralick, Dave Hill, and Wayne Morgan. But the coach also has some underclassmen whom he depends on. John McIlraith and Ron Geels are two sophomores who have been getting a lot of court time, and they both figure in Schaumburg's future plans. Junior Gary Merchant has shown some promise, and he, too, is in tomorrow's picture.

Schaumburg is one jump ahead of the Bison at this point in the season. The Saxons' win over the Grove is their only conference victory, but it is one more than the Bison have.

"In a couple of years, they'll have a really good ball club," Breault said of the Bison. He hopes Buffalo Grove's maturity doesn't come all at once tonight.

Bison mentor Paul Grady would like to think Breault is right about his team being tough for this contest but he also has a "loser's syndrome" to contend with.

"I just hope our kids haven't stopped believing that they can win. It's been so long."

The record shows Buffalo Grove's last win was against Stevenson on the first day of December and they have lost 12 straight contests since that time. Ironically, the team that started them off on this current swoon was none other than the Saxons.

"Everyone looks at us as being young and on the way up but this Schaumburg team is about in the same boat," Grady pointed out. "Perhaps we have been improving as the season's gone along but I'm sure they've been getting better too."

That being the case, then the difference tonight could well be just how effective Allmiller is against Breault's boys. In his past three outings the young pivotman has poured in nearly 60 points to move in among the league's scoring leaders.

Grady's gang had played two teams very tight before the bubble burst at Forest View Tuesday. Despite 20 from Allmiller, the Bison were stampeded by the Falcons, 58-37, and are in need of regrouping again.

"We're still in search of that elusive consistency. If we can ever nail that down, I'm sure we'll become a respectable ball team."

Cancel women's golf tournament

The Child and Family Services Open won't be held this summer, according to a spokesman for the tournament committee.

Since the U. S. Women's Open will be held in the Chicagoland area this summer, the Child and Family Services people decided to hold off in hosting what was to be the second annual event for the pro golf tour.

Instead, the second annual will hopefully be hosted somewhere in Chicago in the summer of 1975.

In its place, the Herald was told there would be a Pro-Am, one-day tourney. It will be played on Monday, July 22 — the day after the U. S. Open (July 18-21) in La Grange.

The Pro-Am is expected to be held at Mission Hills Country Club in Northbrook.

A trio of down-to-the-wire finishes and one runaway occurred in a rare Wednesday meeting of Mid-Suburban League swim teams.

Elk Grove kept its hopes alive for an MSL title by getting by Hersey, 92.5 to 81.5. In other narrow finishes, winless Buffalo Grove just missed against first-time winner Forest View, 96-79, and Wheeling held off Prospect, 92-80.

Arlington enjoyed a romp over Rolling Meadows, 108-64.

Three MSL meets are scheduled for this afternoon at 4:30 — Wheeling (2-3) at Forest View (4-5), Rolling Meadows (3-2) at Hersey (3-2) and Elk Grove (5-0) at Buffalo Grove (0-5).

Arlington (5-0) was to have met Prospect (1-4) yesterday.

This was how the action went Wednesday:

GRENADIERS IN THRILLER
 "It was a tight one," said an elated Pete Weber, Elk Grove's young head coach. "There was a 20 minute delay after the 50 free-style."

After it was thought that a winner had been determined in the 50 free, it was discovered that the two officials disagreed on the outcome. A complicated method involving a ballot was used with two winners eventually declared. Bob Laure and Steve Banach, it was ruled, tied for first.

There was another tie for third. Both deadlocks would have been eliminated if a fully automatic system with touchpads had been on hand.

Had Hersey taken first and third outright, it might have given Coach Herb Parsons' team the momentum needed to win. The Huskies figured to sweep diving, and they did. Led by Jeff Speakman, the Hersey trio outpointed the Grove's best board men and pulled within one of the Grenadiers, 40.5 to 39.5.

However, the Bollin brothers, Banach and Jim Henry lifted Elk Grove to four of the final six firsts and victory. Brent Bollin added a win in the butterfly (58.2) to his earlier triumph in the 200 free (1:54.5). Brother Scott did the same with his showing in the 100 free (51.2) to go with his individual medley victory (2:07.0).

Banach took the backstroke (1:01.4) — a win that occurred in between victories by Hersey in the 500 free by Chris Tague (5:14.4) and Greg Polcyn in the breaststroke (1:10.1).

The Huskies needed a first and third in the 400 freestyle relay for victory, but the Grens did it instead. The two Bollins, Henry and Banach won (3:38.1).

"All the races were so close it was unreal," said Weber.

The Elk Grove foursome of Jim Cashman, Paul Butchart, Bruce Kinn and Mark Fournier won the medley relay (1:50.9).

FALCONS WIN 1ST
 John Hilary was a happy head coach for a change. After four straight league losses, his young Forest View team managed to defeat an even younger Buffalo Grove squad, thanks to the final relay.

The quartet of Doug Schlak, Kevin Redig, Jim Rohn and Dave Gronke knew it had to finish first for the Bison trailed by only three, 78-75. The Falcons won with ease, 3:49.5 to 4:16.4.

Schlak and Redig were double winners. Schlak won the 50 free (23.1) and the 100 free (51.6); Redig the 200 free (1:58.9) and the 500 free (5:20.6).

Other winners for the View were Luther Abernethy in diving (150.00), Rohn in the butterfly (1:03.2) and Gronke in the breaststroke (1:12.0).

Buffalo Grove had three winners. The 200 medley relay of Steve Melcher, Dan Spaulding, Mike Foley and Dan Woodruff won in 1:57.1. Individual winners were Mike Yasky in the individual medley (2:22.6) and Melcher in the backstroke (1:06.1).

"Our kids did a good job," said losing coach Jim Harrington, who ran out of people to fill event positions. "That was our highest point total."

WHEELING WINS
 Going into the 100 freestyle, things were plenty tense for Wheeling coach Doug Colner. His team trailed 49-45. After that event, the Wildcats were ahead to stay.

Giving their team a lift when it was most needed were Paul Lindquist and Bill Blank. They went 1-2 with Lindquist turning in a 51.7. The latter also captured the 50 free with a very fine 22.9.

Other victories by the Wildcats were Mike Hyde in the butterfly (1:01.4), Bill Modica in the 500 free (5:34.6) and the free relay team of Hyde, Blank, Modica and Lindquist (3:39.0).

Prospect was paced by Brad Busse, who took the individual medley (2:17.6) and breaststroke (1:08.7). He also was the third man on the winning medley relay that included Chris Prinslow, Mike Barone and Steve Forton (1:54.6). Prinslow won the backstroke (1:06.6), Gary Elchhorst the 200 free (2:00.7) and Don Kinnaman the diving (196.15).

CARDS CRUSH MUSTANGS
 When you win 108-64 against one of the better teams in the league, you can't blame the winning coach from talking about his boys.

Don Andersen was naturally pleased with his winning efforts, but he was especially happy over the progress of two Cardinals "who weren't listed among our better swimmers at the start of the season" — Dale Patterson and Dixon O'Brien.

"I said at the start of the season that what was going to make us a good team depended on whether a couple of reserves would come through," said Andersen. Now They're coming on.

Patterson had a first in the 100 free (53.5) and O'Brien anchored the winning freestyle relay team that included Joe Nitch, Patterson and Dan White (3:40.6).

Andersen called the butterfly a "tremendous race" that saw Charlie Dunn winning (56.2). Although he was in a class by himself, the second and fourth flyers were separated by only 2.2 seconds.

Dunn also won the individual medley (2:07.3). Other Card firsts came from Kerman Mack in the backstroke (1:04.9), Nitch in the 200 free (1:51.7), Jeff Haseman in the 500 free (5:22.5) and the medley relay team of Rob Carstens, Mack, Dunn and Dan Stubing (1:47.5).

Winning for Mustang coach Phil Pardun were Gary Grunwald in the 50 free (24.5), Ken Stahnke in the breaststroke (1:08.3) and Jeff Slack in diving (181.85).

Andersen added that he was glad to have his No. 1 diver — Jeff Munk — back. Coming off a long layoff, Munk's services will be needed as the Cardinals attempt to repeat as conference champions.

Road test follows Saturday night

Lions home to battle Notre Dame

by ART MUGALIAN

St. Viator's basketball team continues its quest for the Holy Grail this weekend.

Steve Antrim's Lions are still seeking that elusive first victory of the long season, and they will get two more shots at it, tonight in their own gym against Notre Dame, and Saturday evening at St. Joseph.

There is no guarantee that the Grail exists, and, noble as the quest may be, the Lions may never find it.

St. Viator has played the Notre Dame Dons twice this season and lost twice, 55-47 and 70-4. In the first game, the Lions trailed 70-4 at the first-quarter mark. In the second contest, they stayed close until halfway through the third period when ND drilled 15 straight points.

Against St. Joseph, Antrim's team held a six-point lead until the end of the third quarter when they succumbed to the high-scoring Charger guards.

The Lions will rely on their own high-scoring Terry Keehan this weekend. The senior with the 21-point average netted 30 against St. Joe and 31 in the first Notre Dame game. Keehan's tender ankle, hurt in last week's loss to Holy Cross, will be a matter of concern for Antrim.

"He'll play," the coach said, removing any doubt. "It didn't swell up afterwards."

The Lions didn't hold a practice session Monday and Antrim felt that the layoff helped Keehan's recuperation.

The St. Viator coach was pleased with his team's performance against Holy Cross, even though the Lions suffered an eight-point loss. "We played really well," Antrim noted. "When Keehan came out in the third quarter, we had just caught them. It was a tough break."

Coming in for some praise from their coach were Lions Steve Hansen and Bill Foreman. Antrim also mentioned Glen Girard's contribution. "The big guy does well on offense, but he's got to learn that we need him defensively, too," said the coach.

Antrim views this weekend's games with careful optimism. "I think we are better now than we were then, but, of course, so are they," he said, comparing his team with St. Joe and Notre Dame.

"When you haven't won a game, it's hard to say this, but we're getting better. We're a little more relaxed — we're not so harky-jerky on the court."

"The fans might not see this by looking at the record, but from a coach's standpoint, we're better."

At Elk Grove Bowl

In the Elk Grove Ladies Major league, B&F Blueprint took sole possession of first place, ahead of F&F Construction and Gullett's Lock-Key, who are tied for second. Joyce Avanzo had the top series with a 605-211-181-213. Dot Wilkerson rolled high game, 245, to edge Janet Slack's 242. Other high scores were: Bonnie Hofbauer, 572; Janet Slack, 561; Harriet Neier, 556; Dolores DeBarroll, 552; Dot Wilkerson, 549; Betty Siversen, 541; Anne Castellino, 517; Marciana Smith, 515; Bernice Gross, 514; Doris Sharpe, 511; Dottie Schamrowski, 510; Sue Kaiser, 504; Marilyn Elliott, 504.

Wheeling sophs handle Hoffman in basketball

by MICHAEL MC MEEKIN

The Hoffman Hawks came out on the bottom after their encounter, with the Wheeling Wildcats, losing 70-57. The basketball game was played last Saturday morning at Wheeling.

At the beginning of the game, Hoffman always seemed to be one step behind Wheeling. The Hawks would have been better off if it had stayed that way, but the Wildcats inched up their score slowly with the help of Krueger who scored six out of his 10 points in the first period.

Jim Moore accounted for almost all the Hawks' scoring in the first period with eight out of his 26 points scored at that time. Hoffman's score didn't stack up to Wheeling's, and the end of the first period left the Hawks in the back seat, 11-17.

Even though the Wildcats dominated most of the game, it was never water under the bridge for the Hawks. Twice, once being as late as the third period, the Hawks had an excellent opportunity to tie up the score.

The close of the first half found the Hawks struggling to match Wheeling's advancement, but not succeeding, and they were left behind, 29-33.

In spite of the Hawks' optimistic score of 37-39 in the third period, they couldn't stay in gear, and once again they had lagged behind by the close of the period.

Toward the end of the game, the scores just drifted further apart and Wheeling left the Hawks groping in the dark, 57-70.

Schlick carried the game for the Wildcats as he scored a remarkable 30 points in the game almost half of their total score. Schultz is credited for aiding Wheeling's victory with a 10 point push.

Eight points each went to Paul Harshbarger and Joe Gagewski of the Hawks.

On the overall, Wheeling played an excellent game, and coach Segebrecht said, "They were quick and they were fast and our defense just couldn't keep up with them."

Hoffman will have another stab at the Wildcats before the season is over. The Hawk's next game will be at home Saturday against Buffalo Grove.

GOLD DIVISION
King Mites (ages 7 & 8)
Elmhurst 6, Schaumburg 1
Last year's state co-champs looked as tough as ever as they thumped Schaumburg 6-1. Vince Nielsen scored the only King point on an assist from Scott McKerson and Mike Stevenson.

McArthur Realty Squirts (ages 9 & 10)
Schaumburg 3, Springfield 2
The Squirts were determined to avenge a previous 9-2 loss. The host Kings dumped 23 shots on the Spartans' net and connected on three. Bill Dunne led Schaumburg with an unassisted goal, and assists on the other two. Mike Rucinski and Doug Parham each scored, and Pat Kearley picked up an assist.

The Kings/Spartans record now stands at 2-1 in favor of Schaumburg for the season, and it's quite possible that the two may be going at each other for state championship honors before the season is over.

Schaumburg 5, Hoffman Estates 0
Schaumburg put away Hoffman Estates with less effort than they usually display in a Sunday skate. Defenseman Dan "Ski" Reilly switched to goalie for the first time this season, and left the game with a 0-00 goals against average. Meanwhile, Mike Rucinski and Bill Dunne were tucking away hat tricks for themselves, and Jody Horn, Steve Cilback and John Macchia were adding insult to injury by scoring goals of their own. Horn, Dunne, Rucinski and Cilback also picked up assist points. Ed McKerson, Doug Parham and Carl Davis.

Defenseman Dan Braglia decided to stick to defense after dropping his stick on his first face-off at center. Anyway, Schaumburg extended its Woodfield league record to 15 straight wins and no losses.

Arrow Speed Metal PEE-Wees (ages 10 & 11)
Schaumburg 3, Hoffman Estates 1
Schaumburg outshot Hoffman 22 to 7, but an outstanding goaltending effort by Hoffman kept the game close. The game at times looked more like place-kick than hockey with the puck bouncing back and forth between the blue lines.

The second period of the game ended in a 1-1 tie with Bob Vuzlar scoring for Schaumburg on an assist from Frank Gaurley and Boyd Archibald. Only in the third period could the Kings put the game away with Jon McKerson scoring on a set-up from Dennis Heur- lin and Kevin Ryan.

King Panthers (ages 12 & 13)
Schaumburg 4, Hoffman Estates 1
Hoffman Estates got off to a quick start and had the Kings 1-0 before Schaumburg could get down to business. The Kings, however, were they did, and the checking, and extra-curricular activity added up to nine penalties before the final horn. All of the penalties were dished out during the second period when the teams were more than ready to fight.

Craig Landis kept the Kings rolling, and figured in every goal that was scored. He and Roger Garrison teamed up to feed Todd Vuzlar for the first score. Then it was Landis and Mike Weber assisting Jim Mazzullo. Then Landis scored one of his own with help from Roger Garrison. Finally Landis, combined with Scott Busch, assisted Garrison on the closing goal.

Schaumburg 3, Rock Valley 2
Following an earlier 2-1 win over Rock Valley, the Kings visited the Vawdleys in Rockton and tipped them again 3-2. Todd Vuzlar, Rusty Powell and Rod Wade racked up the Schaumburg scores.

Dunbar Realty Midgets (ages 15 & 16)
Schaumburg 8, Hoffman Estates 8
The Dunbar Realty Midgets are without doubt the most exciting King team ever to hit the ice. They're fast, hard-hitting, and don't, and without question one of the top Midget teams in the state.

Hoffman Estates felt the effects of the Kings as their net was blasted 45 times during the game while the King defense was allowing only five shots to hit goalie Bill Arantz.

Bob Payson led the Kings' scoring with two goals. Dan Culvert, Mike Waggoner and Barry Kozinski also hit the net for Schaumburg. Joe Cicchi assisted twice and Len Lapping and Waggoner each assisted once.

Schaumburg 5, Junior Cougars 4
The flu bug hit the King Juniors, and they had to dip into the Midgets to field a team. And brother, the little brothers really came through.

Mike Fabry and Mouse Pollard must have been out to prove something. They ripped the proud Cougars four goals.

But a couple of former Juniors put the game away when Bob Warner connected with Steve Bird for the score.

Evanston 6, Schaumburg 5
Steve Bird, Bob Harkness, Bill Waller, Dan Culvert and Mouse Pollard were the line. Greg Tatarski was in the net. The flu kept everyone else at home.

These six Kings got together with 15 friends from a top ranked Evanston "AA" hockey team, and got to the business at hand. By the end of the first period, Schaumburg had Evanston down 4-1. By the end of the second period it was 5-1, Schaumburg. But in the third period, the three Evanston lines began to take their toll against the single King line and pumped in five goals. Evanston's winning goal came with only 38 seconds left in the game.

Steve Bird ripped loose for four of the five Kings' goals and Bob Harkness accounted for one. Assists went to Mouse Pollard, who figured in every score. Harkness, and Dan Culvert who picked up two.

Schaumburg 10, Des Plaines 1
The Junior Kings shredded Des Plaines with 39 shots on goal to eight. Steve Bird and Joe Vuglar each scored a hat trick, and Steve Gorfinski struck twice. Other scoring came from Bob Harkness and Ed Flannery. Gorfinski and Bird were also busy helping on assists, with three each, as was Don Neumann.

Bob Harkness picked up two assists, and Ed Flannery, Joe Vuglar and Tom Milhausen each assisted once.

The Kings lost Don Neumann for the balance of the season with an ankle injury suffered during a high school hockey game.

PURPLE DIVISION
King Mites (ages 7 & 8)
Schaumburg 10, Schaumburg 5
Schaumburg 7, Schaumburg 3
The Kings were blanketed twice by top competition. The Shields lead the Polar Dome league, and it appears that they will continue to do so. Gentle Mark Shipbaugh had his hands full stopping 30 of 37 shots on goal.

The Saints blasted the Kings' net 20 times while the Kings could only manage two in return.

King Squirts (ages 9 & 10)
Schaumburg 12, Arlington Jay Coe's 0
A fired up King team rolled over the Arlington Jay's and there was no stopping them. Bill Vuzlar scored the hat trick, with Alex Barber, Tom Anderson and Jerry Slobodnik scoring two each. John Stavin, Mike Malowski and Ed Flynn rounded out the score. Assists were four for Tom Anderson, two for Alex Barber and one each for John Murphy and Bill Waggoner. Scott Gorman earned the shutout for the Kings.

Schaumburg 7, Arlington Heights 0
Hustle and teamwork gave the Kings a big win over Arlington Heights. Jerry Slobodnik scored four times, with John Murphy, Brad Boskie and John Stavin adding one each. Henry Repay assisted three times with Bill Waggoner. Howard Leek, Mike Malowski, Alex Barber and John Murphy assisted once each.

The Kings outshot Arlington 20 to 10. Scott Gorman earned his second shutout within the week.

Dundee 7, Schaumburg 1
Powerful Dundee could not be stopped as the Kings took the loss. Howard Leek spoiled a Dundee shutout by scoring his first goal of the season. Bill Waggoner earned the assist.

King PEE-Wees (ages 11 & 12)
Elmhurst Blades 5, Schaumburg 1
With half the team appearing to suffer after effects of the flu, the Kings made their poorest showing of the season in a return match with the Blades. The Kings had previously dumped the Blades on their own ice. The only Schaumburg goal came from Ted Shipbaugh with assists from Eric Olson and Bob Shipbaugh.

Dundee 3, Schaumburg 1
In their last league encounter with Dundee this season, the Kings' defense and excellent goal tending held the frustrated Demons to only three goals.

The Kings were able to score only once as Bob Shipbaugh struck paydirt with the help of Pete Lidas and Bob Corbel. Mike Oleszewski was in the nets for the Kings who came out on the short end, but who felt the game was a moral victory against an excellent Dundee squad.

King Panthers (ages 13 & 14)
Dundee 9, Schaumburg 1
The Kings just couldn't put it together against long-jumping Dundee. Tim Fluta managed to slip his first goal of the season past the Dundee goalie with assists from Larry Hermannson and Willy Waltz. Gentle Drew Shanks turned back a staggering 45 shots in a fine performance in the net.

King Midgets (ages 15 & 16)
Schaumburg 4, Crystal Lake 3
A fine team effort by defense and offense alike brought home a win for the Kings against Crystal Lake. Leading the scoring for Schaumburg was Jim Ginter with two goals. Tom Blin and Joe Ducote scored one each. Assists came from Jim Perelle and Ducote, with two each, and from Tom Blin and John Blumski with one each. Serge Faldstein turned in another fine performance in net stopping 17 shots.

A tight, hard-hitting game ended in defeat for the Kings against Elk Grove. Jim Perelle, Jim Neuman and Tom Berlo did the scoring for Schaumburg, with John Blumski, Mike Eisenhauer and Jim Perelle contributing assists.

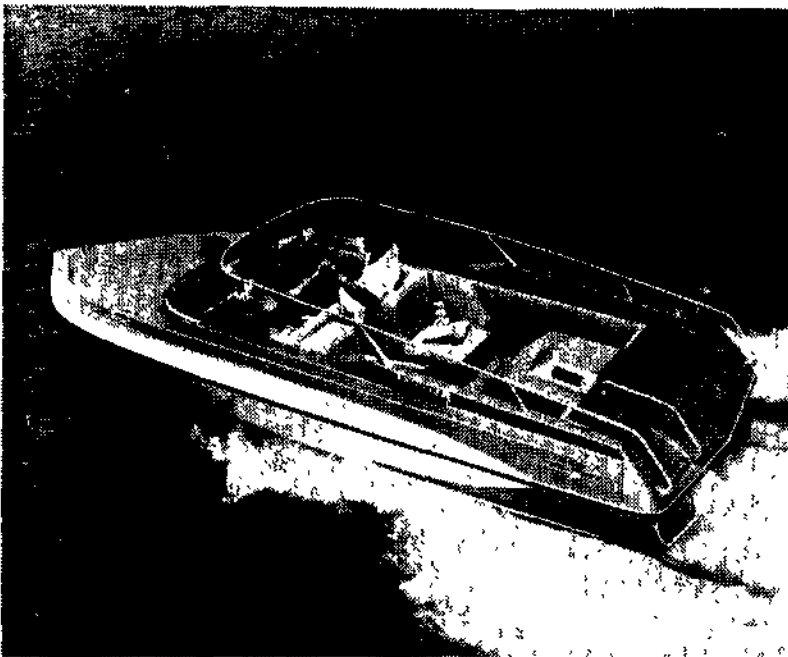

The game was as close as the final score with 16 shots on goal for Elk Grove and 16 for Schaumburg.

Dundee 5, Schaumburg 1
The Kings again had their hands full against Dundee. Mike Eisenhauer drew the only blood for Schaumburg with help from Paul Hardy and Joe Ducote.

Powerful Dundee blasted Serge Faldstein 23 times during the game while Dundee's defense held Schaumburg to 12 shots.

Shields 3, Schaumburg 2
A well-played hard-hitting game by both teams saw the Kings on the losing end of the score against the Shields. An outstanding performance by King goalie Jeff Holtz kept the Kings in the ball game. The Shields had 30 shots on goal, while Schaumburg could muster only nine.

Bruce De Franchi scored unassisted, as did Mark Kenny.

Camp Duncan 'Y' results

Camp Duncan "Y" met its strongest competition on Saturday in taking on the Elgin "Y" swim teams. The meet proved to be the first defeat for the Camp Duncan Dolphins. Coach John Elliot took defeat gracefully as he reviewed the results and applauded his swimmers for breaking a total of 19 team records. The Midgets (age group 9-10) for both boys and girls placed first in all events — including relays. Defeat was a bitter pill to swallow, but times proved the teams are putting forth superior effort toward both cluster and state competitions.

Huskies to host Palatine; Hersey one game from lead

Upon entering the second period, Hersey was already coasting, 33-11.

"If they're hot, they can really be trouble," Hersey coach Roger Steingraber warned. "We handled them pretty easily the first time. We held (Jim) Arden to 10 points and he's the big scorer on their team. They've been a little inconsistent lately, but they must have played well against Wheeling (losing just 64-59 Tuesday night)."

Steingraber was pleased to see some of the scoring burden taken off the shoulders of the MSL's all-time point producer Dave Corzine against the Mustangs.

"Bill Seiler and Tim Conard proved they can help out in that department," Steingraber said. "We had an exceptional shooting night against Rolling Meadows (56.6 per cent), but we could use a couple of other scoring threats in the lineup."

Seiler hit 12 of his 18 points in the blistering first quarter against the Mustangs while Corzine and Conard each combined for 18 in abbreviated appearances.

And speaking of being hot, Palatine's Mark Mara has almost been in a class by himself over the last five ball games.

Known as a super sixth man who comes off the bench early and plays the rest of the way, Mara started against Wheeling and enjoyed his high game of the season — 25 points. All told, the 6-3 front liner is averaging 21.2 points in five games or 106 points.

Over the season, Jim Arden — despite an off night of six points on Tuesday — has carried the top scoring load with a 15.5 average. Also in double figures is Scott Cole with 11.6.

If this trio can click at the same time, any opponent is in trouble.

Jim Maycan, who's known for his fierce rebounding, also helped out in scoring against the 'Cats. The massive 6-2 junior was second behind Mara with 10.

Palatine has had its problems for quite a few years in finishing with a .500 record, although winning the regional title last year made up for its 10-13 record. This group of Pirates would love to turn the trick. In order to do it, they've got to start by knocking off the Huskies. A win would leave them 7-7 on the season.

An upset would mean all the more to them because it would hurt Hersey's chances of winning the North. The problem is beating the Huskies on their home court — a graveyard for visitors.

ROLLING MEADOWS AT FREM'D
Two long conference basketball seasons will be colliding at Fremd tonight when Rolling Meadows comes to town.

The Mustangs will be carrying an eight-game losing streak into the contest; the hosts will be putting a 3-6 mark on the line, including setbacks in six of their last seven league outings.

It's a far departure from the occasion of their first meeting back in early December when both were 1-0 in the MSL.

Are the players themselves as despondent as the record log would indicate?

Frem'd coach Leon Kasuboske for one says no. "Although it might seem surprising, in view of the circumstances, our kids were really up for their game with Arlington last Tuesday. They should be ready again tonight."

Kasuboske could find little to fault his charges in their clash with the Cards. "Except for the one lapse, we battled them even or better than even all the way. I thought our guards (Ken Hanks and Jeff Hanisch) were especially effective in getting through Arlington's press and considering their superior size, I felt we did a decent job on the boards."

If the Vikes can play the Redbirds just about even they should be able to take it to shorter, younger, struggling Meadows, right?

Wrong," observed Kasuboske. "Ken (Arneson) has been going with a bunch of youngsters and they can only get better. They've taken some jumps but this will probably pull them more strongly together. Anyway, our record says that we can't take anyone lightly this season."

But Meadows has been plagued with the bad habit of bringing out the best in its opponents.

Tuesday it was Hersey who rocketed into a 30-3 first-quarter lead and crowned Dave Corzine as the MSL's all-time scorer. Last year Corzine set a single-game scoring record of 48 points — against the Mustangs.

A week earlier Conant enjoyed a 101-point game and anointed Roger Sander with a school scoring mark of 36, again, versus Rolling Meadows.

"I don't know where it will end," sighed Mustang head coach Ken Arneson. "But I hope it's soon, for the kids' benefit. They still haven't given up and that's all I can ask from them. You know we have Wheeling and Arlington coming up right after Fremd."

Despite the Mustangs' 88-50 setback at Hersey, Arneson was buoyed by the promising effort of junior guard Ken Hatfield and the continued steady play of Pat Geegan.

"Hatfield looked good out there," the veteran coach said. "He penetrated well and took some good outside shots (leading the team in scoring with 12 points). Nothing dropped for Pat in that first quarter, but he didn't give up, he just kept coming."

The Mustangs can't help but improve on their 0-for-16 shooting from the floor against Hersey in the first quarter. Meadows was able to stay with Fremd throughout their previous meeting before bowing, 60-49.

"(Randy) Weber and (Doug) Mize are the nucleus of that team," Arneson stated about the Vikings. "They're two of the best one-on-one players in our league. We did a pretty good job on them before (holding both to 18 points total), but then (Bob) Frank had a good night (21 points)."

Could you tell me a little about the little new member of the Partridges? I don't even know his name, but would like you to print his picture, if possible.

P.F.F.

Ricky Segall

Ricky Segall is the young fellow, Ricky, might be called a child prodigy. As a one-year-old youngster, he could sing the words and music of "Hello Goodbye". Now he, at almost five (March 10th), he is an artist. Besides his role on the series, he has recorded some of his songs. His parents surrounded him with contemporary music. Until Ricky was two, his father was a member of a rock and roll group, later becoming a songwriter. His mother and dad later formed their own team and sang in nightclubs.

It was in Nashville that Ricky made his public debut singing in an act with his parents. That's where Paul Tanen, head of Screen Gems music division, first heard him. Eventually the producers of THE PARTRIDGE FAMILY heard him and decided to bring him into the show.

Rick's hobbies are coloring, blocks, electric trains, and numbers he can't read. His parents say he sings for the fun of it and that's how they hope to keep it.

Could you please print a picture of Billy Bixby and include his height, weight, and address? I'd like some information about his background, too.

P.S.
Arlington Heights

Bill, who stands 5'11", is a trim 155 pounds. When Bill was a lifeguard, he was discovered, not by a movie producer, but by an advertising executive who offered him a job starring in industrial films. Bixby thinks that he learned more from the industrial filming than he could have learned doing bit parts in Hollywood.

Bill Bixby

The brown haired and eyed actor quit Berkeley just four credits short of a degree and entered the Army. It was there that he decided to make a career of acting. Bouncing back and forth between Detroit and Hollywood, he finally landed his first TV job in a DOBIE GILLIS segment. He has since appeared in movies and has had three TV series—MY FAVORITE MARTIN, THE COURTSHIP OF EDDIE'S FATHER and THE MAGICIAN. Write Bill in care of NBC-TV, 3000 W. Alameda Avenue, Burbank, Calif. 91505.

Grand jury charges extortion, conspiracy, perjury

U.S. agents arrest Stavros, 5 others

Agents were primed for big arrest

by RICH HONACK

Federal agents were scattered throughout the Wheeling area yesterday morning awaiting word from the U.S. Attorney's Office in Chicago to arrest current and former officials of Wheeling and Cook County.

The first arrest was that of James "Jimmy" Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman. He is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion and extortion.

Stavros' home at 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, reportedly has been under surveillance for several days. When Herald reporters and photographers arrived on the scene at approximately 9 a.m. yesterday, FBI agents were parked half a block from the house.

At approximately 11:10 a.m., Stavros and his wife left the residence by car with the agents following.

WHEN THE STAVROS car turned east on Willow Road and approached the Tri-State Tollway the agents curbed the vehicle. One of the agents asked Stavros to step from the vehicle and began to frisk him.

When asked by The Herald how he felt, Stavros said, "No comment." When asked if he had a "statement for the people of Wheeling," Stavros said "No."

Agents then handcuffed Stavros and walked him to their car. They drove off in the direction of Chicago, while Mrs. Stavros reportedly sought out her husband's attorney. The attorney said Stavros was on his way to surrender at (Continued on page 4)

Former Democratic committeeman James Stavros, who has ruled village government in Wheeling from behind-the-scenes for almost a decade, was indicted Thursday on federal extortion and conspiracy charges.

Stavros, two village officials, two county zoning officials and a former village trustee were named in six indictments returned by a federal grand jury and announced yesterday by U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

The six are accused of extorting a total of $700,000 from several developers and from Wickes, Inc., in return for village zoning approval, permits and other favors between 1968 and 1973, Thompson said.

Others indicted were William Bieber, 43, of 100 N. Sixth St., Wheeling, the village building and zoning director. He is accused of extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury before the grand jury, and filing a false income tax return.

Michael Valenza, 50, of 236 E. Jeffrey Ln., Wheeling, a former trustee who operated as village zoning head for several years while on the village board, Valenza, charged with conspiracy, is head of the village environmental commission.

William Hart, 41, of 912 Garden Ln., Wheeling, a village trustee from 1968 to 1970 and former co-owner with Valenza of Nite and Day Sign Co. Hart, who now is sole owner of the firm, is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with Nite and Day activities.

Nicholas Phillips, 39, of 410 W. Marion St., Prospect Heights, a cousin of Stavros and a $16,680-a-year employee of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals. He is charged with extortion in connection with an alleged $50,000 cash payoff by Wickes to obtain village zoning approval.

Ira Colitz, 58, of 1000 N. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, a member of the county zoning board and former Democratic state representative from Chicago's 12th District. He is also accused of extortion in the Wickes case.

Thompson said the Wheeling investigation will continue and predicted more indictments will be returned in the probe.

When asked what conclusions village (Continued on page 4)

FBI AGENTS NETTED political kingpin James Stavros yesterday shortly after a federal grand jury returned indictments charging him with extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. The agents followed Stavros, who is a former Wheeling Township committeeman, from his Northbrook home to the intersection of Willow Road and the Tri-State Tollway, where he was searched and arrested. Five other officials also were arrested.

They're innocent until proven guilty: Scanlon

by JILL BETTNER

Wheeling village officials yesterday said they were amazed and shocked at the six indictments, but village affairs will continue "business as usual."

"The village fathers are still here and the village will continue to run smoothly," said Village Pres. Ted Scanlon.

Along with Scanlon, The Herald contacted several trustees for reactions to the arrests yesterday of William Bieber, director of building and zoning, and former village trustees Michael Valenza and William Hart. Valenza is current head of the Environmental Commission.

Despite rumors of impending indictments that have been circulating in the village for the past several months, Scanlon and others said yesterday's arrests came as a shock.

"Certainly no one likes this kind of publicity or to get involved in something like this," he said. "You always say it can't happen here, but it has."

DECLINING TO comment on the charges, Scanlon and the rest of the officials contacted said all are innocent until proven guilty.

"Right now they're just charges," the village president said. "They haven't been proven guilty of anything yet. I guess when they go to trial the truth will be brought out."

"The thing we have to remember is that an indictment is not a statement of guilt," added Village Trustee Ron Bruhn.

"Each person is entitled to his day in court."

Scanlon said he may call an executive session at Monday's village board meeting to discuss whether or not Valenza and Bieber will be asked to resign their posts.

VILLAGE MGR. George Passolt believes Valenza and Bieber should be allowed to continue in their positions.

"They're innocent until proven guilty — that's the American system," Passolt said. "It's difficult for me to believe that the sums of money they're talking about have been handed out. It's hard for me to see how somebody could bury $20,000 or $30,000 without some auditor finding out," he added.

Passolt said he doesn't think the indictments will have much effect on the village or its reputation.

"There's been so much in the papers recently that I don't think the indictments will have much effect one way or the other," he said. "Of course, the final outcome could have more effect."

"I guess it will be a black eye for the village if they're proven guilty of something while they were officials," Bruhn commented. "I think it will be almost business as usual with maybe a little more citizen participation. Maybe more people will start attending board meetings and showing interest, particularly in the initial stages of a development in the planning and zoning."

VILLAGE CLERK Evelyn Diens said she was surprised at the persons named in the indictments, and she hopes the arrests will put an end to further rumors and suspicion of additional wrongdoing.

"I think a cloud's been hanging over us simply because of all the rumors that have been flying fast in the village since last summer," Mrs. Diens said. "I would hope this cloud could be lifted now."

"I'm just shook up over the whole thing," said Village Trustee John Koepen. "I pray to God that it isn't true for the sake of the village and for the sake of the people involved."

RICHARD MASSA, 358 Stone Pl., is planning to organize a nonpolitical citizens' group for better government in the village.

Commenting on the indictments, Massa said, "I don't believe the U.S. Attorney's Office would bring this matter to the grand jury without proper evidence nor do I believe that the grand jury would have indicted these people without probable cause."

Massa feels the village board should immediately request Valenza's and Bieber's resignations.

"I believe that Mr. Valenza and Mr. Bieber should be called upon to resign," he said. "If they refuse to do so, I think it is incumbent upon the village board to dismiss them forthwith, or at least suspend them without pay until they are either convicted or vindicated."

Village Trustees Edward Berger, Albert Lang, Donald Jackson and William Hein could not be reached for comment.

New realty office-shop should be open by spring

Construction on the first phase of local realtor Stan Lieberman's office-specialty shop center on Dundee Road in Buffalo Grove is well under way and should be ready for occupancy by late spring.

"Right now, it's moving along well and should be completed on time, weather permitting," Lieberman said yesterday.

The first part of the two-phase project will consist of nine shops and 13 offices. Lieberman said the numbers on each could vary slightly if he finds that one type is easier to rent.

The second phase, he said, will be built later if the first phase is successful. It also will have specialty shops and offices. The exact numbers, however, have not been decided.

AT THE PRESENT time, Lieberman said, about 50 per cent of the shops and offices in the first phase have been rented. Most of the space should be rented by the time construction is finished, he added.

Most of the offices have been rented to doctors, dentists, lawyers and other professionals. The shops will provide a variety of goods and services.

Under the agreement with the village, a tavern, drug store or restaurant cannot be operated on the property.

The center, to be called Buffalo Grove Plaza, is on the north side of Dundee Road, west of Golfview Terrace. Lieberman said the center could be "the most handsome in Buffalo Grove."

Last summer when Lieberman came to the village for approval of annexation and zoning for the second phase, a number of nearby residents voiced objections.

LIEBERMAN'S ORIGINAL plan called for two buildings on the western end of the property. However, he obtained an option to buy additional land to the east and decided to expand the project.

The residents there, said phase two, consisting of one additional building, would be too close to their single-family homes. The proximity of the center to the homes, they said, will infringe on their privacy and damage property values.

The homeowners expressed concern over increased traffic and noise and the unsightliness and odors that could result from the project.

Lieberman has agreed to line his property with shrubbery to screen homes from the rear of his project. In addition, he has agreed to enclose rubbish areas, limit garbage pickups to business hours and require all retail stores in the center to close by 10 p.m.

$2,000 burglary loss

Burglars took $2,000 worth of merchandise Wednesday from the Ronald J. Halperin residence, 901 Green Ridge Rd., Buffalo Grove police said.

Apparently, the burglars broke a window in the rear door to gain entry. Once inside, they took jewelry, stereo equipment, a camera and an electric hair brush, police said.

Waycinden Park residents study annexation move

by STEVE BROWN

Some homeowners in the unincorporated Waycinden Park area are gathering information regarding the feasibility of annexing to the City of Des Plaines.

The Waycinden Park Homeowners' of ficers met Wednesday with Des Plaines Ald. Richard Ward (8th) in an effort to develop additional information regarding the pros and cons of annexation.

Donald Dvorak, president of the homeowners' association, said it is too early to gauge the sentiment of residents in the area.

Supervision ordered in shoplift case

A Des Plaines woman was given six months' court supervision after pleading innocent yesterday to a shoplifting charge.

Phyllis Fosdale, 911 Clark Ln., appeared before Associate Circuit Court Judge Marvin J. Peters and was found guilty.

The woman was taken into custody late last November outside the K-Mart store, 1155 Oakton St., along with two juvenile girls. Police accused them of taking $43 worth of clothing from the store.

A second charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor was ordered dropped by Judge Peters.

Schools will sell $4.4 million bonds

The Maine Township High School Dist. 207 board approved the sale of $4.4 million in general obligation bonds at the Monday board meeting.

The authorized bond sales include $3.3 million for completion of Maine North High School and $600,000 for work needed to bring buildings up to Life Safety Code requirements.

In other action, the board gave tentative approval of a regional service agency to provide special education services for the hearing and visually handicapped.

Group backs independents for school board seats

Two independent candidates will be challenging nominees from the Des Plaines School Board caucus in the April 13 election due to the efforts of a newly-formed citizens group.

Sharon Fridley, an organizer of the "Concerned Citizens," said the group will back a two-man slate for the Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 62 election. Candidates from the group include Mrs. Mary Kinser, 973 Margaret St., and Robert Monte, 2004 Chase.

Mrs. Fridley said the group was formed as "a result of all the trouble within the school district last fall." The Dist. 62 board narrowly averted a teacher strike last November following an 11-month contract dispute. Many parents

He said many factors would have to be seriously considered before any decision could be reached.

SEVERAL OFFICERS of the homeowners' association took part in a meeting last week with Des Plaines officials and representatives of the Citizens' Utility Company, which owns the water system and sewers in the area.

The city has opened preliminary talks with the company to explore the possibilities of purchasing the water system. The proposed purchase is contingent on an annexation agreement with the 520 homeowners in Waycinden Park.

A water-rate hike, which is now being sought by Citizens' Utility, could become the key to determining if the residents seek annexation to the city. The utility company has sought a 100 per cent increase in the sewage rate and a substantial increase in the water rate. Some Waycinden Park residents have joined with other utility customers to fight the increase.

"The water situation has always been a big hangup," Dvorak noted. If the city were to purchase the water system the residents would be connected to the Des Plaines water system. The purchase price of the water system would be paid for over a number of years by the residents.

DVORAK NOTED that a number of other taxes and services which would be provided by the city are now provided by other agencies.

"We have had excellent services from Elk Grove Township," he added.

Ward said yesterday that a lot of research had to be done before a clear picture of the annexation is available.

"We will try to answer all the questions," Ward said. He added that the meeting with the homeowner's officers was very fruitful.

"We realize the ultimate decision on annexation will be based on economic factors rather than intangibles such as police protection," Ward explained.

While the exact purchase price of the water system is not known, consultants have estimated that the system would carry a price tag of about $1.5 million.

In addition to the water and sewer system for Waycinden Park, the city is considering the purchase of water lines in the recently annexed apartment complexes near Elmhurst and Algonquin Roads.

FBI AGENTS NETTED political kingpin James Stavros yesterday shortly after a federal grand jury returned indictments charging him with extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. The agents followed Stavros, who is a former Wheeling Township committeeman, from his Northbrook home to the intersection of Willow Road and the Tri-State Tollway, where he was searched and arrested. Five other officials also were arrested.

Wheeling rocked by arrests of 6 past, present officials

by BOB CASEY and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Former Democratic committeeman James Stavros, who has ruled village government in Wheeling from behind-the-scenes for almost a decade, was indicted Thursday on federal extortion and conspiracy charges.

Stavros, two village officials, two county zoning officials and a former village trustee were named in six indictments returned by a federal grand jury and announced yesterday by U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

The six are accused of extorting a total of $300,000 from several developers and from Wickes, Inc., in return for village zoning approval, permits and other favors between 1968 and 1973, Thompson said.

Others indicted were: William Bieber, 43, of 109 N. Sixth St., Wheeling, the village building and zoning director. He is accused of extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury before the grand jury, and filing a false income tax return.

Michael Valenza, 50, of 236 E. Jeffrey Ln., Wheeling, a former trustee who operated as village zoning head for several years while on the village board. Valenza, charged with conspiracy, is head of the village environmental commission.

William Hart, 41, of 912 Garden Ln., Wheeling, a village trustee from 1968 to 1970 and former co-owner with Valenza of Nile and Day Sign Co. Hart, who now is sole owner of the firm, is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with Nile and Day activities.

Nicholas Phillips, 30, of 410 W. Marion St., Prospect Heights, a cousin of Stavros and a $16,680-a-year employee of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals. He is charged with extortion in connection with an alleged $50,000 cash payoff by Wickes to obtain village zoning approval.

Ira Colitz, 58, of 1000 N. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, a member of the county zoning board and former Democratic state representative from Chicago's 12th District. He is also accused of extortion in the Wickes case.

Thompson said the Wheeling investigation will continue and predicted more indictments will be returned in the probe.

U.S. agents were ready when arrest word came

by RICH HONACK

Federal agents were scattered throughout the Wheeling area yesterday morning awaiting word from the U.S. Attorney's Office in Chicago to arrest current and former officials of Wheeling and Cook County.

The first arrest was that of James "Jimmy" Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman. He is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion and extortion.

Stavros' home at 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, reportedly has been under surveillance for several days. When Herald reporters and photographer arrived on the scene at approximately 9 a.m. yesterday FBI agents were parked half a block from the house.

At approximately 11:10 a.m. Stavros

WHEN THE STAVROS car turned east on Willow Road and approached the Tri-State Tollway the agents curbed the vehicle. One of the agents asked Stavros to step from the vehicle and began to frisk him.

When asked by The Herald how he felt, Stavros said, "No comment." When asked if he had a "statement for the people of Wheeling," Stavros said, "No!"

Agents then handcuffed Stavros and walked him to their car. They drove off in the direction of Chicago, while Mrs. Stavros reportedly sought out her husband's attorney. The attorney said Stavros was on his way to surrender at (Continued on page 4)

Arrest of man may solve motel burglaries here

by JOHN MAES

Police from three suburban departments say they have solved five Chicago motel-room burglaries with the arrest of a Chicago man also believed to be responsible for several break-ins in Des Plaines.

James Costsworth, 25, was in Chicago police custody yesterday, charged with six counts of burglary and one count of possession of burglary tools in connection (Continued on page 5)

Vandals hit church

Vandals caused $190 damage after breaking two windows at Church of the Master, 259 Central Rd., said Des Plaines police.

According to reports, the damage apparently was the work of rockthrowers. Police believe the vandals struck late Friday or early Saturday.

Police say truck (ab)used in burglary

Burglars forced their way into a Des Plaines store when they apparently rammed a small pickup truck into a door, loaded a $1,400 outboard motor onto the vehicle and drove off, said police.

The motor was taken from Nelson Marine, 955 Rand Rd., early yesterday.

According to reports, police responded to an alarm set off about 1:30 a.m. when the burglars struck. When they arrived, police noticed a front door of the building had been pushed in and its windows broken.

Police said there were tire tracks leading up to the smashed-in door. Even though the motor was sitting just inside the door, police said there had to be at least two burglars to cart the 350-pound outboard onto the vehicle.

A hunting knife valued at $5 and some checks were taken when burglars made their way into the home of Ronald Seiler, 1981 Dean St., according to reports.

The break-in was discovered about 5:15 p.m. Wednesday and police said the burglars removed a screen in a window on the south side of the house to gain entry.

Burglars tried unsuccessfully to break into Hynes Pharmacy, 809 Lee St., according to reports. Pry marks were found on a rear door Wednesday but police said the burglars were unable to crack the bolt-locked door.

2-way radios taken from cement trucks

Burglars made off with some $3,000 worth of radio equipment after entering 10 cement trucks in a yard outside Meyer Materials, 58 Wolf Rd., Des Plaines police reported.

According to reports, the burglars used wrenches to dismantle the two-way radio devices but there were no signs of forced entry to the trucks.

Police said Tuesday the trucks were probably burglarized last weekend.

Arlington Nike missile base may end operations soon

by JOE SWICKARD
Funding for the Arlington Heights Nike Base is expected to be eliminated in the federal budget to be presented to Congress Monday.

According to sources in Washington, the facility will be shut down some time between April and December of this year.

The Pentagon refused to confirm or deny the reports of the pending halt of operations that have circulated for the past several months.

The same source, however, said all Nike-Hercules missile installations manned by the National Guard, such as the Arlington Heights base, will be closed except for some more advanced facilities in Florida.

A Pentagon briefing of the Defense Department budget is planned for noon Saturday in Washington. However, specific base closings will not be formally announced until Monday, when the full budget reaches Capitol Hill.

THE NIKE-HERCULES facilities originally were going to be phased out over a period of years, The Herald was told. But late last year the Army decided in favor of shutting down the bases during 1974, the sources said.

All inquiries at the Nike base were referred to Fort Sheridan, which operates the base as a satellite facility. A spokesman at Arlington Heights would only say, "It's just a rumor, that's all."

A spokesman at Fort Sheridan said, "I can't verify this. It's news to me."

Federal civil service workers and National Guardsmen work at the Nike site and if the base is abandoned, will be forced to transfer to other stations or find new jobs.

An information officer with the Army Air Defense Command, Colorado Springs, said, "I can't substantiate that information. You can expect some definite word shortly with the budget announcements due this Saturday."

PENTAGON-WATCHERS, however, said it was significant that the Army refused to deny the reports outright. In the past, base commanders and Army officials have termed Arlington Heights "vital to the air defense of the Chicago metropolitan area."

The base is part of the air defense corridor protecting the lower Great Lakes population and industrial centers from missile attack. The site has served in the past as a prisoner-of-war-camp, a training air field and an equipment depot for the National Guard.

The Arlington Heights Park District has been engaged in a 10-year struggle to have land at the base declared surplus. In the past year, the parks have gained title to 13 acres there.

The parks recently engaged a golf course architect to prepare plans for a course on the rest of the 125 acres. Fifty-two of those acres were previously held by the Navy for use as housing, but scrapped plans in the face of strong local protests.

THOMAS THORNTON, park district director, said of the possible closing of the base, "That's good. We had thought it was going to happen. That's why we had our architect make plans for all the land and not just the bit we've gotten so far."

Army Times, a newspaper aimed toward Army personnel, carried a story several months ago indicating the Nike-Hercules bases were slated for closing. Since then, the publication has reported that unions representing civilian employees of those facilities have expressed concern for their positions.

"Should funding for the base be cut off as expected, the future of the site is still uncertain. Under Federal regulations, other branches of the armed forces, as well as other governmental agencies, could lay claim to it before it is declared surplus."

Judging by past timetables of declaring land surplus, this process could take six to 18 months to complete.

From Des Plaines jeweler

$3,125 in jewels stolen

A thief escaped with five diamonds worth $3,125 from a Des Plaines jewelry store after grabbing a box of jewels from a store clerk and fleeing.

Des Plaines police said the thief entered the Wahl Jewelry store, 1514 Miner St., Wednesday afternoon and asked a store clerk if he could look at some diamonds in a display case.

As the clerk took the box from the case the thief reached over, grabbed the jewels and ran from the store, according to accounts given by police.

The clerk told police she chased the thief as he ran through a gangway and jumped into a waiting late model, white auto. The car headed down the alley toward Lee Street.

THE THIEF WAS described as about 35 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall weighing about 165 pounds with sandy colored hair. Police said he wore a three-quarter length coat. The driver of the getaway car was described only as a woman with platinum-blond hair.

Police were checking leads into the case yesterday.

Police also said yesterday thieves stole $300 cash belonging to the landlord of a Des Plaines rooming house.

The landlord, Donald Wickman told police someone apparently used a key to take the cash kept in a coin compartment in a washing machine at the house, 1530 Park Pl.

Police said the theft occurred Monday. Detectives were questioning two local men about the incident Thursday but no charges were filed.

with motel room burglaries in Chicago, reportedly netting several thousand dollars in cash.

Rosemont Police Det. John Wilczynski said Coatsworth is being charged with two burglaries at the O'Hare Inn occurring last December where television sets were stolen from hotel rooms.

Schiller Park police also said they want Coatsworth in connection with two similar type burglaries in that town. Hillside authorities told The Herald yesterday Coatsworth is being tied to a television set burglary at a Holiday Inn there.

DES PLAINES police said Coatsworth also admitted six television set burglaries from the Holiday Inn at Mannheim Road and Touhy Avenue and from the Royal Court Inn, 1750 S. Elmhurst Rd.

Coatsworth, a former employee of a Chicago Holiday Inn on Lake Shore Drive, was arrested Jan. 18 inside another inn at 1 S. Halsted St., in Chicago after a manager recognized him as the man who tried to break into a room earlier last month.

According to Chicago Police Burglary Investigator Barry Moran, Coatsworth would keep room keys turned into him while working at Lake Shore Drive Inn and use them to enter the guest rooms in various suburban and Chicago motels.

Moran said some 400 room keys, many of them from out-of-state inns, were in Coatsworth's possession when he was arrested.

MORAN SAID an accomplice, Gary Menke of Hammond, Ind., assisted Coatsworth in many of the burglaries. Menke turned himself over to Chicago police Wednesday night.

Coatsworth and Menke face more than 20 counts of burglary, said Moran which include the Chicago and suburban incidents. Both men will appear on all the charges Feb. 20, in Cook County Circuit Court in Chicago.

Mount Prospect charges annexation 'unfounded'

The Village of Mount Prospect has charged in a legal brief that the City of Des Plaines' annexation of property sought by both towns is "without basis in law or fact."

The five-page brief was filed this week in response to Des Plaines' lawsuit challenging Mount Prospect's annexation of property at the corner of Elmhurst and Algonquin roads that had been annexed earlier by Des Plaines.

A hearing on the case is scheduled for Feb. 11 before Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne. However, the case may not be heard, because the two communities have begun negotiating an out-of-court settlement.

Representatives of the two municipalities met for 2½ hours this week and have scheduled another meeting for next week to further consider settling their boundary dispute out of court.

In its legal brief, Mount Prospect described documents filed by Des Plaines for its Nov. 26 annexation of a 30-acre parcel as "misleading, inaccurate and deficient in many respects."

Mount Prospect charges that various legal technical mistakes were contained in the legal notice filed by Des Plaines prior to its annexation, thus making the annexation "void ab initio and no bar to the Mount Prospect annexation of Dec. 18."

The property involved contains the Terranova and Waterfall restaurants, Colonial apartments and a service station.

Both suburbs are anxious to claim the property for tax benefits.

Probe ordered in robbery case

A presentence investigation has been ordered for two Chicago men charged with robbing a Des Plaines drive-in restaurant last month and fleeing with $98 in cash before their capture in Park Ridge.

Maine West band concert Sunday

The Maine West High School music department will present its annual combined band concert Sunday at 3 p.m. in the school auditorium.

The concert will feature the combined cadet and intermediate bands, the jazz band and the concert band. The concert will be under the direction of Robert Kuite, music department chairman and director of bands, and Paul Magnusson associate director of bands.

Admission to the concert is $1 for adults and 75 cents for students. Music Booster and Golden Ager passes will be honored for admission.

Henry Cellak, 25 and Chester Kanafoski, 24, appeared yesterday before Associate Judge Marvin J. Peters who ordered the probe. Judge Peters continued the matter to Feb. 28 when the results of the background investigations will be known.

According to reports, Kanafoski ordered a manager of the Henry's Drive-in, Mannheim and Higgins Roads, Jan. 10 to hand over the cash after showing him he was wearing a pistol.

Radio descriptions of the two and their getaway car were later picked up by Park Ridge police who spotted the car and pulled the two over.

Cellak reportedly surrendered, but Kanafoski disregarded orders to come out of the auto until additional police arrived and surrounded the auto.

A loaded rifle and pistol were later found in the auto resulting in an unlawful use of weapons charge being brought against Kanafoski by Park Ridge police.

Cellak is currently free on bond but Kanafoski was returned to county jail after the court appearance where he is being held on $25,000 bail.

Ex-North center Brown might enroll at Maine East

by MIKE KLEIN

The important question will not be who won, or even how they played the game, when Maine East's varsity basketball team visits Maine North this evening.

Rather, it could center around Derrick Brown's status as a potential student-athlete at Maine East.

Until early January, Brown was a student and varsity basketball player for coach Jerry Nelson at Maine North. Now, it appears he might fill the same role for Paul McClelland at Maine East.

Last month, Brown and two others were dismissed from Maryville Academy, their residence, after illegal possession of firearms charges were placed against them.

It seems that Brown was allegedly holding a pistol in his Maryville locker for another youth who had bought it from a third Academy resident.

All three were subsequently released from Maine North which educates all Maryville students of high school age. North has a policy that stipulates dropping all students who are excused from Maryville, according to principal Robert Wells.

Now, it appears Brown can enroll at Maine East if he obtains legal guardianship.

Brown has a court date next Thursday on the firearms charge but his guardianship matter could be decided before that, according to John Benka, Maine Township Dist. 207 assistant superintendent of general administration.

"We have some indication that there may be some action sooner," Benka said. He indicated there are few other roadblocks to Brown's enrollment at Maine East.

"We still don't have validation from the court or its agency recognizing that guardianship has been established," Benka said on Wednesday. "When we have that, we're prepared to make a move for any student."

"Our interest is to make sure we do everything possible to encourage every student to stay in school and see it through to the end."

Since Brown left the Norseman varsity, the club has lost to Highland Park, Glenbrook South, Oak Park and New Trier West. Tonight's game is the rematch of a 56-50 decision won by East in early December.

Neither club has a record worth noting. East is 2-5 in the CSL North division and 8-11 overall. North is 1-6 and 3-11.

"This game has always got something behind it. We don't want to lose to Maine North in the conference," East coach McClelland said. "We've never lost to them in our lives and don't want to be known as the first Maine East team that did."

Brown had little effect in that last game, getting only two points. McClelland was impressed with North's Mike Wilson who hit 16 points.

"Wilson just tore us up," McClelland said. "The real surprise was the way he scored from the outside. It's not just that he took the shot, but he took it with confidence that he could make it."

Maine East guard Keith Larson will cover North's George Kaufman, third leading Central Suburban scorer with a 19.8 average. He had 12 points in the first East-North game.

"I've yet to see him score big," McClelland said. "Sure he's a good offensive player, but if you throw a tough defense around him, he can be stopped."

Maine East's Demos are looking for renewed firepower from guard Mark Mahoney. He has not scored well recently, just a 6.5 CSL average, after a strong surge in the Niles Township Holiday Tournament.

"He's a junior but he doesn't have a lot of weight," McClelland said. "When they throw a real concentrated defense at him, Mark's not strong enough yet to overcome it."

"Also, remember Larson's been in-and-out. When they're both playing, what are you going to do, defense them both? I don't think so. There's no question that Larson's ability helps Mahoney."

Larson, making a strong run at All-CSL honors as is Kaufman, has been pronounced well after a long bout with the flu. He'll carry a 15.8 league average into tonight's eight o'clock game.

Tonight's other local Central Suburban game, also at 8 p.m., finds Maine West a decided underdog at Maine South in the rematch of South's 63-49 win in December.

The Hawks are 7-6 in Central Suburban play and 14-1 overall before the weekend. They've got a non-conference game at home tomorrow against Waukegan. Maine West carries a 2-5 league mark and 4-12 record into tonight's game.

When the clubs met before, West's Doug Myers had his season high with 23 points. The closest he's come since is 19 points against Niles East last weekend.

Myers will carry a 16.1 CSL average into the game with teammate Steve Zucarni just behind at 16.0. South's top scorers have been league runner-up Pete Boesen (20.2) and Pete Schmelzer, tied for third at 17.2.

Maine South won that first game with West despite having Boesen foul out with 7:26 to play. The Warriors were unsuccessful in their bid to catch-up that night and have faced continuous problems all season.

"If I had a winning ballclub, I'd probably push 'em harder. These kids need encouragement," West's Gaston Freeman said.

"We must control the ball better in situations. Maybe I should say controlling the game rather than the ball," he continued. "You say controlling the ball and the kids will start slowing it down."

"Did you see that UCLA game? How many times did the ball go back out to the point? They had that TV camera right on the pointman. When it didn't work, they went right back to the point. That's what I mean by controlling the game."

Freeman said the club's lack of success has been due, in part, to a lack of offensive rebounding. About playing Maine South, he said, "I'll tell ya, we'll show up. We'll give 'em a whale of a ballgame."

Another test for Hawks: Whitehead, Waukegan at Maine South tomorrow

by MIKE KLEIN

Bob Joor begged indifference and Bernie Brady preferred to discuss a game he should win easily. But you can bet their instincts will change Saturday night when Joor's Waukegan Bulldogs challenge Maine South.

Non-conference games are rarely job savers but sometimes they can be darned exciting and this one should fit the bill.

The idea is that Waukegan at Maine South this weekend might preview sectional finals next month at Northwestern University's McGaw Hall. The survivor there, of course, goes downstate.

And that makes this "exhibition" rather interesting. But you'd hardly know it!

"Right now, I'm not even thinking about it," Waukegan's Joor said this week. "We've got a game Friday night where we're playing Proviso East for first place in our (Suburban) league."

"I'm not talking to the kid about Maine South. They know it's on our schedule and that's about it."

It's much the same with Maine South's Brady who claimed, "We must stress our first game with Maine West (tonight), more than Waukegan. As soon as you start forgetting that first game, you'll lose it."

Joor's Bulldogs, led by All-Area center candidate Jerome Whitehead, will defend their 14-4 overall mark and 3-2 Suburban league record tonight against Proviso.

Waukegan's only failures are against four real toughies: Thornridge (79-70), Proviso East (78-61), Chicago Heights-Bloom (70-52) and New Trier East (65-62).

All but the last, less occurred during December when, Joor admits, his club was weak against a good pressing defense, such as Maine South uses, and very low on the experience chart. But the Bulldogs haven't lost since Jan. 11 against New Trier.

"We play three juniors at guards quite a bit so if we're going to do any good, they've got to grow up a bit," Joor said. "We'll know after the next couple weeks, but this team could be an exceptional ballclub. We've got six games to go and five are very meaningful."

Aside from Proviso and Maine South this weekend, New Trier East and Oak Park also lie ahead. Waukegan could meet New Trier a third time in sectional play.

What can be expected Saturday night of the Bulldogs? "We know they're big and they're good but not real fast," said Maine South's Brady. "We hope to put some pressure on them. They've got a couple real good kids in Whitehead and (Ralph) Sims."

Whitehead averages 16.2 points and 12 rebounds; Sims 17.8 points and nine rebounds. They'll be matched against Hawks Pete Boesen and Pete Schmelzer.

Onto more Central Suburban News: Glenbrook North erased some theories that it has been coming unglued lately with Tuesday night's destruction of Highland Park, 78-57, on the road.

The Spartans scored 54 second half points after trailing, 35-24, at the break. Glenbrook outdid the Giants, 25-8, in the third period to reach 16-1 overall and 8-0 in league games.

"We're not falling apart," insisted Dan Perry whose club hadn't played a decent game in almost three weeks. "The kids took a real good look at the competition we've had lately — Warren, Maine East without (Keith) Larson and Glenbrook South."

"Maybe it's not very nice to say, but I don't think the kids were too enthusiastic about those games, just playing well enough to win."

"This was the first game since New Trier West where we've had any emotion at all." That was also a road win, 59-58, on Jan. 11.

Perry made one change Tuesday, switching CSL leading scorer Ted Govedarica (24.3) from point to wing at both ends of the floor. Mark Fusello took over out front.

Govedarica's league scoring has sagged of late with only one game over 19 points since Dec. 7 when he had 33 against Highland Park.

Here's what the change produced: Govedarica sank 13-of-21 field goal shots while adding five free throws from 31 points. "We've asked an awful lot of the kid, perhaps too much," Perry said. "He's still a pretty classy ballplayer."

Spartan guards Govedarica and Fusello had 48 points against the Giants as Fusello hit for 17 when all but two scored after halftime. Glenbrook doesn't have a CSL game tonight, only a Suburban League crossover at Morton East tomorrow.

How to beat Maine South (7-0) remains an important topic in the Central Suburban race. Ron O'Connor might have the answer after his Deerfield Warriors lost, 51-49, last weekend.

"Man-to-man, all the way, all over the floor," O'Connor said of his defense. "We have a player (Randi Veach) who is standing defensively on a dribbler and wore (Tim) Bopp down bringing up the ball."

"By the second half, all Bopp wanted to do was get it across the line and get rid of it. Then, Tom Skiffington did an outstanding job on Boesen," O'Connor said.

"Skiffington didn't block any shots, but he kept Boesen away from the basket and always had a hand up when he was shooting. Boesen did not shoot the fourth quarter. It didn't even look like he wanted to shoot." Boesen had seven points.

It was a remarkable effort by Deerfield when you consider Maine South's Boesen and Schmelzer had just two offensive rebounds. They totaled 11 at both ends.

Despite the loss, O'Connor insists, "It's obvious that what we did worked against Maine South." The Warriors get another chance on Friday, March 1. Niles North might create problems for Maine on Friday, Feb. 15.

January's best quote has come from Niles West coach Billy Schurr: "We're small and we're slow but we can't shoot." The Indians are 0-7 in CSL games and 3-13 overall before tonight's home game with Deerfield.

His statement, however, doesn't allow for senior guard Jim Zoros who's had recent league games of 18, 21 and 17 points. He has come on strong opposite guard Marty Block since breaking the index finger on his right hand during the post-Christmas Niles Township Holiday Tournament. Zoros missed two weeks before returning with a 21-point effort against Maine West.

Eight players had their best CSL scoring totals of the year last weekend, led by New Trier West's John Lewis with 25 points.

Others were Niles East's Don Diamond (23) and Len Weinstein (21), Highland Park's Dave Ruben (18), Glenbrook South's Keith Nystrom (17), Glenbrook North's Fusello (17), Maine East's Mike Cohen (12) and Maine South's Tom Flerentine (11).

Our weekend picks: Went 6-1 this past week for a 31-11 mark. Tonight, it could be New Trier West 15 over Glenbrook South, Niles North eight over Niles East, Maine East six over Maine North, Maine South 17 over Maine West and Deerfield 12 over Niles West.

On Tuesday night, make it Niles North 21 over Glenbrook South and Maine West 14 over Maine North.

Hersey to bus gym fans to Hinsdale

With the memory of snapping Hinsdale Central's incredible five-year gymnastics dual-meet winning streak still fresh in their minds, Hersey's strongmen will try to duplicate that feat Saturday at the Red Devils' fieldhouse beginning at 7 p.m.

Hersey is sponsoring buses to the meet for all boosters, students and parents at $50. Tickets are now available in the main office, but must be purchased by 1 p.m. Friday to confirm reservations. The bus will leave at 5:30 p.m.

Elk Grove defeated Hinsdale last week, 147-44 to 144-99 while Hersey was registering 150-81 in a triumph over Conant. The Huskies' tally represents the best score in the state this year.

Residents, village 'will cooperate' on service fees

Four years of arguments about fire and ambulance protection fees and contracts may be drawing to a close. Yesterday, officials of the Itasca Meadows Homeowners Association in unincorporated Elk Grove Township and Elk Grove Village officials met and agreed to cooperate.

Association officials stressed they want to pay for fire protection service from Elk Grove Village and only ask that it be a fair taxation. Village officials pledged they will not force annexation on the unincorporated area and will not increase the $42-a-year fee unless village residents' taxes also go up. Both will work for legislation that would tax unincorporated areas for fire protection. The village and the homeowners' representatives will meet again tomorrow.

The meeting came in the aftermath of a tragedy Jan. 6: the death of an Itasca Meadows mother of five, Mrs. Jean Pettee, of 277 Martha St. The family lived in the subdivision about six blocks away from the Elk Grove fire department, but contracted with the Roselle Fire Department six miles away.

RESIDENTS OF THE area pay no fire tax to any municipal body and have the option to go without fire protection or contract with whomever they choose. Last night the association officers said they would rather support legislation that would allow the township to tax them and then contract for fire protection, rather than collect fees from individual homeowners.

Since 1970, Itasca Meadows homeowners from the subdivision of about 40 homes and village officials have met repeatedly in an attempt to agree on fire protection and ambulance fees. Since Mrs. Pettee's death, a village policy that provided service only if it were contracted for has been changed and the village now provides service and bills later.

AT ONE TIME, both Itasca Meadows and Elk Grove Village were served by the Roselle Fire Protection District, about seven miles away. When the village of Elk Grove created its own municipal fire department it disannexed from the Roselle district. In 1964, a petition disannexed the Itasca Meadows area as well, and according to Ed Hofert, Elk Grove Village attorney, the court order directed the village to make fire and ambulance service available.

However, there were still no provisions for taxation and Elk Grove Village continued to provide the service free until October of 1972.

The village then decided to serve only those who would contract, but Itasca Meadows residents balked at that first $84-a-year price tag, complaining it was more than village residents paid, and went instead to the Roselle Fire Protection District.

Pettee death records to go to investigators

Testimony and records pertaining to the death of an Elk Grove Township woman will go before the February grand jury for deliberation.

A spokesman for Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey said investigators are seeking to determine if official misconduct or reckless misconduct was committed by Elk Grove Village in the handling of the Pettee incident.

Mrs. Jean Pettee, of 277 Martha St., in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, eight months' pregnant with her sixth child, died of a massive blood clot in her lungs Jan. 6. She was pronounced dead at Alexian Brothers Medical Center three blocks away from her home and her child died a short time later. Her husband had called nearby Elk Grove Village for ambulance service and the call was referred to the Roselle Fire Protection District with which Pettee contracted for emergency service.

The village and fire department have been criticized for a village policy that directed the fire chief to respond to uncontracted emergency calls only in a life-or-death situation. According to that same policy, people in nearby unincorporated areas received fire and ambulance service only if contracted for. Since the incident, the village changed the policy to provide service on a serve now, pay later plan.

Village officials have handed over fire department records for that day and have provided the state's attorney with background information concerning the village's policy.

Several fire department personnel were subpoenaed and have given testimony. The state's attorney investigators have listened to tapes of Pettee's calls and the village's response.

Elk Grove Village lowered the yearly fee to $42 in 1972, but bitter arguments between the two left hard feelings and Itasca Meadows residents stayed with the Roselle district.

Homeowners association representatives will have a meeting tomorrow morning at 9:30 a.m. to ask members how, and if, they should contract with Elk Grove for fire protection.

FBI AGENTS NETTED political kingpin James Stavros yesterday shortly after a federal grand jury returned indictments charging him with extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. The agents followed Stavros, who is a former Wheeling Township committeeman, from his Northbrook home to the intersection of Willow Road and the Tri-State Tollway, where he was searched and arrested. Five other officials also were arrested.

Wheeling rocked by arrests of 6 past, present officials

by BOB CASEY and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Former Democratic committeeman James Stavros, who has ruled village government in Wheeling from behind-the-scenes for almost a decade, was indicted Thursday on federal extortion and conspiracy charges.

Stavros, two village officials, two county zoning officials and a former village trustee were named in six indictments returned by a federal grand jury and announced yesterday by U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

The six are accused of extorting a total of $300,000 from several developers and from Wickes, Inc., in return for village zoning approval, permits and other favors between 1968 and 1973, Thompson said.

Others indicted were: William Bieber, 43, of 100 N. Sixth St., Wheeling, the village building and zoning director. He is accused of extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury before the grand jury, and filing a false income tax return. Michael Valenza, 50, of 236 E. Jeffrey Ln., Wheeling, a former trustee who operated as village zoning head for several years while on the village board. Valenza, charged with conspiracy, is head of the village environmental commission.

William Hart, 41, of 912 Garden Ln., Wheeling, a village trustee from 1968 to 1970 and former co-owner with Valenza of Nite and Day Sign Co. Hart, who now is sole owner of the firm, is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with Nite and Day activities.

Nicholas Phillips, 39, of 410 W. Marion St., Prospect Heights, a cousin of Stavros and a $16,680-a-year employee of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals. He is charged with extortion in connection with an alleged $50,000 cash payoff by Wickes to obtain village zoning approval.

Ira Colitz, 58, of 1000 N. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, a member of the county zoning board and former Democratic state representative from Chicago's 12th District. He is also accused of extortion in the Wickes case.

Thompson said the Wheeling investigation will continue and predicted more indictments will be returned in the probe.

U.S. agents were ready when arrest word came

by RICH HONACK

Federal agents were scattered throughout the Wheeling area yesterday morning awaiting word from the U.S. Attorney's Office in Chicago to arrest current and former officials of Wheeling and Cook County.

The first arrest was that of James "Jimmy" Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman. He is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion and extortion.

Stavros' home at 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, reportedly has been under surveillance for several days. When Herald reporters and photographer arrived on the scene at approximately 9 a.m. yesterday FBI agents were parked half a block from the house.

WHEN THE STAVROS car turned east on Willow Road and approached the Tri-State Tollway the agents curbed the vehicle. One of the agents asked Stavros to step from the vehicle and began to frisk him.

When asked by The Herald how he felt, Stavros said, "No comment." When asked if he had a "statement for the people of Wheeling," Stavros said, "No!"

Agents then handcuffed Stavros and walked him to their car. They drove off in the direction of Chicago, while Mrs. Stavros reportedly sought out her husband's attorney. The attorney said Stavros was on his way to surrender at

Drug education

College credit granted area teachers for 14-week course

by KATHERINE BOYCE

"I've been doing drugs since I was 14," said a 19-year-old student from Elk Grove High School. He said he turned to drugs as an escape from "family hassles."

Another student, 19, said he started taking drugs after moving to Illinois when he was 17. "I had no friends to speak of. I had no one to turn to. I guess that's why I did it," he said.

The comments of both students were tape recorded two years ago by Dick Penley, coordinator in the cooperative work program at Elk Grove High School. The tape was played last week for High School Dist. 214 teachers who enrolled in a class to learn about teen-age drug abuse.

PENLEY AND fellow cooperative work program coordinators Richard Hemme and Robert Anderson put together the 14-week program for teachers last month and the University of Illinois agreed to offer the course for two semester hours of graduate credit. The classes, which began last week, will feature experts on drug abuse as guest speakers.

There are 25 Dist. 214 teachers and board member Jack Costello attending the class this semester. Costello volunteered to attend the class after the Dist. 214 board heard a plea from a mother of a young drug user who said the district's

Teachers learn about drugs in 14-week course

Penley, Hemme and Anderson feel that the more a teacher knows about the causes and effects of teen-age drug abuse, the more he can help students with drug problems. They believe all teachers can be more effective if they help a student with his personal problems before they try to help him learn a particular academic subject. Teachers teach students, said Penley, they don't teach subjects.

THE DIFFICULTY with helping a student with a drug problem is that many teachers know very little about drugs, said Penley. "What we don't know, we fear. Through education we can remove the ignorance and therefore remove a great deal of the fear attached to that unknown quantity," he said.

Hemme hopes the class will make teachers "more aware that teen-agers have pressures and problems they can't cope with." Teachers should "teach the heart and soul instead of just the academic," he said.

In helping students with drug problems it is necessary to disassociate the act from the person, Penley said. "Just because somebody does something 'bad' doesn't make him a bad person," he said. One philosophy of teaching he said he fights is "teach the best and shoot the rest."

THE THREE teachers don't profess to be experts on drug abuse, but they do want to share their experiences with teachers and counselors in the class.

Penley said their experience in helping students with drug problems comes from the close relationship between the cooperative work coordinator and the student. Work program classes are small, he said, and the coordinator is the student's contact with the outside world and with his job. When problems arise, "The kid most normally turns to the coordinator," he said. "When you work with kids through a personal relationship, they develop a high degree of trust, they confide in you."

By listening to experts on drug abuse, and talking together, Penley hopes the class may find some answers to the drug problem in the schools today.

The need for a drug abuse program for teachers came to a head last fall when Penley appeared before the board of education with a student in his class who was being expelled for selling drugs. The board asked what it could do to help solve the drug problem, said Penley, and

"as a result of that request from the board I thought the time was right."

"Communities are beginning to pull their heads out of the sand," Penley said. People are realizing that drug abuse is "a tremendous social problem."

THE CLASS will spend 45 minutes listening to the guest speaker each evening, they will break for a half hour discussion over coffee, and use the last 45 minutes for a question and answer period.

The class spent all of its first session listening to the tape of students. The students explained why they started taking drugs, what kind of drugs they take and how it "affects them, and the difficulty they face when they try to go 'straight.'" One of the students said, "a couple of guys I used to hang around with" got him started on drugs. He said he has smoked marijuana, taken speed (amphetamines) downers barbiturates and "junk" (heroin). "It expanded your mind. It didn't make you think of the real things of life," he said.

AFTER TAKING drugs one student said, "I would always be shaking and nervous. I'd stay away from people. I'd hide off in a corner." Later he stopped using drugs as often because "I've found true friends. People who care about me. People I care about," he said.

One student said he looked into a mirror after taking drugs. "I saw different things happening to my face. One time I saw blood dripping down my face."

Towards the end of the tape Penley said one of the students seemed upset. "I'm worried about the parents and the kids," said the student. "I'm trying to think of something to get a closer relationship between parents and kids in this village."

WHEN PARENTS find out that their child is taking drugs "they don't want to face up to reality," said one student. "They always say we can't face up to reality. They can't when they find out. When we confess, when we want to go straight, society puts us down every time."

Guest speakers for the remaining weekly sessions include a pharmacist, a mental health agency spokesman, a school official, juvenile officer, lawyer, law enforcement agent, and Larry Buckman, newsman for WLS-TV who will talk about a series of stories he did recently on the sale and use of drugs in Chicago. The class will also visit a rehabilitation center for drug addicts and listen to a panel discussion among parents.

Review plan 'will speed' felony cases

by JOHN MAES

Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey told some 30 area police officials a new felony review system in suburban court districts will aid police in bringing charges against suspected felons and moving cases through the courts.

"We're trying to cure a pet peeve," said Carey in an address at the Des Plaines Elks Club Wednesday. "And that's the slowness with which matters move through courts."

Under the system recently expanded to suburban county court districts, an assistant state's attorney on 24-hour call reviews felony charges in suburban arrest cases.

The attorney advises police on what felony charges to file. The plan is expected to "scope down" the time it takes to decide whether to file charges and which cases are worthy of felony charges, according to Assistant State's Atty. Robert Best.

The system also is expected to speed up issuance of police search and arrest warrants.

CAREY TOLD POLICE officials he hopes the plan, along with the new 30-day ruling governing time limits on hearings in suburban courts, will speed cases through the courts.

Under the ruling, handed down by Chief Circuit Court Judge John Boyle, preliminary hearings on felony charges must be held within 30 days of a person's arrest.

The felony review system has been in operation in the circuit court district in Chicago since February of 1972 and was expanded to cover suburban courts in the county last December.

Gino Divito, chief of the state's attorney's general prosecutions division told The Herald after yesterday's luncheon the plan has been working "extraordinarily well" in the Chicago court district.

Northwest suburban felony reviews will be handled from the Third Municipal Court District operating out of Niles.

PRIVATE-DUTY NURSING offers the challenges of hospital work and better hours. Medical Help nurse Joe Anne Rasmussen prepares shot.

Rent-a-nurse

New service gives alternative to hospital

by LINDA PUNCH

Employees call it "rent-a-nurse" but clients see Medical Help Services as a welcome alternative to extended hospitalization or long term nursing home care.

The Des Plaines based nursing service — organized last summer by James Majers — is the first of its type in the Northwest suburbs. It offers private duty medical care ranging from live-in companions and nurses aides to practical nurses and registered nurses. Majers works with representatives from all four Northwest suburban hospitals to provide care for convalescing patients.

MAJERS, formerly employed in personnel work, established Medical Help Services "because it looked like there was a need for it."

"Finding the right nurse for a specific need can sometimes be difficult," Majers said. "Our business is to provide skilled medical help for health and home care." Medical Health employees work in varying situations from private duty nursing in the home to hospital staff relief. Majers estimates that 60 per cent of his work is at home patient care.

"Many stroke or cancer patients don't want to go into a nursing home. In many cases, hiring a nurse is cheaper and in a long run the patient is happier," he said.

MAJERS said all his employees are screened, insured and bonded. Rates are determined on a sliding scale depending on the type of care required by the patient.

"I know about every case the girls go on. I've either checked with the doctor on serious cases or talked with the family on cases requiring custodial care," he said.

In addition to filling the need for private duty nursing care, Majers has also taken advantage of an untapped source of medical health — housewives and students who can't work full-time because of restrictive schedules.

Freedom of choice in hours and type of work is the major advantage of working for the private nursing service, according to Joanne Rasmussen, the mother of three. A former staff nurse at Lutheran General Hospital, Mrs. Rasmussen said she "kind of fell into" the Medical Help job.

"I applied here and went on a case for three days; I wound up staying," she said.

MRS. RASMUSSEN, who has worked both in private homes and as a substitute staff nurse, said the job "has good things and bad things."

"The best thing is I can say when I want to work. I can work every day or not at all," she said. "Nobody hangs over my head like they do in a hospital situation."

Nurses aide CoDeil Hilligoss is another housewife who chose Medical Help over fulltime work at a hospital or nursing home.

"I'm always home on weekends with my husband — if I want to go on vacation all I have to do is let Mr. Majers know," she said.

NURSES ALSO have the opportunity to choose the type of nursing they prefer, from maternity and convalescent to in-home care and geriatric.

"I do enjoy the freedom to be able to choose cases," she added. "I can turn them down if I don't think they're suitable for me."

A one-on-one situation also allows nurses to develop a "very nice rapport" with the patient, according to Mrs. Rasmussen.

"Of all the jobs, I really like private duty care best — you get to know the patient and you feel like you're giving them good care," she said.

Kindergarten supervisors ride buses

The kindergarten bus program for Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 has begun, with four supervisors starting this week and six ready to start Monday.

Ronald Ruble, assistant superintendent of personnel and transportation, said about 20 applications have been received. Ruble said applications still will be accepted because about 10 more persons will be hired.

The program was launched when Hanover Park residents called for improved bus safety after the death of Robyn Bradshaw, who allegedly was struck by the bus on which she had been riding. The residents started their own volunteer supervisor program for a bus carrying their children to Adolph Link School in Elk Grove Village. The volunteers still are working.

RUBLE SAID the aim of the program not only was to increase safety for children boarding and leaving the bus, but also to free the bus driver from distraction from noises and action by the children. The supervisors will give verbal notice to children who misbehave and then issue discipline slips to the appropriate principal if the naughty actions persist, Ruble said.

The supervisors also will assist children in crossing the street and account for all children at each stop before the bus will be allowed to move, Ruble said.

The supervisors will check all windows and doors and not permit students to provoke distracting noise, actions or stand in the aisle while the bus is moving, Ruble added. Women supervisors who have preschool children will not be allowed to take them on the bus.

Ruble said he talked with women who said they would not be a supervisor for the older children because the women are "probably fearful of discipline problems."

THE BOARD of education approved the program only for buses carrying kindergartners because it will not require a major budget revision and because members feared not enough persons would be interested in the job to fill posts in other buses. The Hanover Park residents had asked for bus supervision for students under fifth grade.

Ruble said the women are paid $3 per trip, with 25 cents going to fringe benefits.

Any person interested in applying for supervisor is encouraged to call the school district office at 885-4200.

Voter registration ends Friday at 5 p.m.

Voter registration will close in Elk Grove Village at 5 p.m. today, according to Deputy Clerk Fay Bishop.

Mrs. Bishop said registration will reopen March 21 after the March 19 primaries and registrations will be accepted until Sept. 21.

People who wish to register must reside in the village 30 days. Old registration rules required a 30-day village, 60-day county and one-year state residency.

"The new ruling just says that people have to live in the village 30 days," Mrs. Bishop said.

Those under 18 years of age whose birthday would fall on the date of the primary or just before it are also eligible to register, added Mrs. Bishop.

Registration is accepted from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily in the clerk's offices at the municipal building, 901 Wellington Ave.

$5,000 allocated for historical society

Elk Grove Township has allocated $5,000 from its federal revenue sharing funds to help the Mount Prospect Historical Society.

The board of auditors budgeted the money to cover part of the costs of renovating the old St. John's Lutheran Church School building on Linneman Road in Mount Prospect.

Clarence Schlaver, president of the Mount Prospect Historical Society of Elk Grove and Wheeling townships, said St. John's has donated the use of the building on the society's pledge to renovate the building as needed.

Bike, nature trail to be extended soon; bid accepted

Palatine's bicycle, hiking and nature trail will be extended nearly 1½ miles this summer.

The low bid of $74,336.50 from Robert R. Anderson Co. for the construction of approximately 7,500 feet of the trail was accepted by the Palatine Park District Board of Commissioners this week. Two other bids were received on the project.

The extension will be from Smith Street west a short distance and then north to Dundee Road. Completion is scheduled for Aug. 1.

Park Director Fred P. Hall said he is hopeful the Palatine Trail will be completed by the end of the summer except for a quarter-mile stretch on Hicks Road. Park district officials are currently negotiating with developers of Old Madrid at Northwest Highway and Hicks Road for right-of-way for the bike path. Hall indicated the only question is whether the bike path will be constructed on the north or south side of Salt Creek.

The Hicks Road stretch of the bike trail will be done in conjunction with improvements on Hicks Road by the Illinois State Highway Department. Construction on Hicks Road is expected to start this summer.

The Palatine Trail runs east-west through Palatine from Winston Park to Deer Grove Forest Preserve. The trail, 4.7 miles when completed, was approved by voters as part of the $1.4 million referendum in October, 1972.

NIKE DEFENSE room 10 years ago. The base will reportedly be shut down this year because of Defense Department budget reductions.

Arlington Nike missile site may halt operations soon

by JOE SWICKARD

Funding for the Arlington Heights Nike Base is expected to be eliminated in the federal budget to be presented to Congress Monday.

According to sources in Washington, the facility will be shut down some time between April and December of this year.

The Pentagon refused to confirm or deny the reports of the pending halt of operations that have circulated for the past several months.

The same source, however, said all Nike-Hercules missile installations manned by the National Guard, such as the Arlington Heights base, will be closed except for some more advanced facilities in Florida.

A Pentagon briefing of the Defense Department budget is planned for noon Saturday in Washington. However, specific base closings will not be formally announced until Monday when the full budget reaches Capitol Hill.

THE NIKE-HERCULES facilities originally were going to be phased out over a period of years. The Herald was told. But late last year the Army decided in favor of shutting down the bases during 1974, the sources said.

All inquiries at the Nike base were referred to Fort Sheridan, which operates the base as a satellite facility. A spokesman at Arlington Heights would only say, "It's just a rumor; that's all."

A spokesman at Fort Sheridan said, "I can't verify this. It's news to me."

Federal civil service workers and National Guardsmen work at the Nike site and if the base is abandoned, will be forced to transfer to other stations or find new jobs.

An information officer with the Army Air Defense Command, Colorado Springs, said, "I can't substantiate that information. You can expect some definite word shortly with the budget announcements due this Saturday."

PENTAGON-WATCHERS, however, said it was significant that the Army refused to deny the reports outright. In the past, base commanders and Army officials have termed Arlington Heights "vital to the air defense of the Chicago metropolitan area."

To base is part of the air defense corridor protecting the lower Great Lakes population and industrial centers from missile attack. The site has served in the past as a prisoner-of-war camp, a training air field and an equipment depot for the National Guard.

The Arlington Heights Park District has been engaged in a 10-year struggle to have land at the base declared surplus. In the past year, the parks have gained title to 13 acres there.

The parks recently engaged a golf course architect to prepare plans for a course on the rest of the 125 acres. Fifty-two of those acres were previously held by the Navy for use as housing, but scrapped plans in the face of strong local protests.

THOMAS THORNTON, park district director, said of the possible closing of the base, "That's good. We had thought it was going to happen. That's why we had our architect make plans for all the land and not just the bit we've gotten so far."

Army Times, a newspaper aimed toward Army personnel, carried a story several months ago indicating the Nike-Hercules bases were slated for closing. Since then, the publication has reported that unions representing civilian employees of those facilities have expressed concern for their positions.

Should funding for the base be cut off as expected, the future of the site is still uncertain. Under Federal regulations, other branches of the armed forces as well as other governmental agencies could lay claim to it before it is declared surplus.

Judging by past timetables of declaring land surplus, this process could take six to 18 months to complete.

FBI AGENTS NETTED political kingpin James Stavros yesterday shortly after a federal grand jury returned indictments charging him with extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. The agents followed Stavros, who is a former Wheeling Township committeeman, from his Northbrook home to the intersection of Willow Road and the Tri-State Tollway, where he was searched and arrested. Five other officials also were arrested.

Wheeling rocked by arrests of 6 past, present officials

by BOB CASEY and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Former Democratic committeeman James Stavros, who has ruled village government in Wheeling from behind-the-scenes for almost a decade, was indicted Thursday on federal extortion and conspiracy charges.

Stavros, two village officials, two county zoning officials and a former village trustee were named in six indictments returned by a federal grand jury and announced yesterday by U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

The six are accused of extorting a total of $300,000 from several developers and from Wickes, Inc., in return for village zoning approval, permits and other favors between 1968 and 1973, Thompson said.

Others indicted were: William Bleber, 43, of 100 N. Sixth St., Wheeling, the village building and zoning director. He is accused of extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury before the grand jury, and filing a false income tax return.

Michael Valeza, 50, of 236 E. Jeffrey Ln., Wheeling, a former trustee who operated as village zoning head for several years while on the village board. Valenza, charged with conspiracy, is head of the village environmental commission.

William Hart, 41, of 912 Garden Ln., Wheeling, a village trustee from 1968 to 1970 and former co-owner with Valenza of Nite and Day Sign Co. Hart, who now is sole owner of the firm, is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with Nite and Day activities.

Nicholas Phillips, 39, of 410 W. Marion St., Prospect Heights, a cousin of Stavros and a $16,000-a-year employee of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals. He is charged with extortion in connection with an alleged $50,000 cash payoff by Wickes to obtain village zoning approval.

Ira Colitz, 58, of 1000 N. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, a member of the county zoning board and former Democratic state representative from Chicago's 12th District. He is also accused of extortion in the Wickes case.

Thompson said the Wheeling investigation will continue and predicted more indictments will be returned in the probe.

U.S. agents were ready when arrest word came

by RICH HONACK

Federal agents were scattered throughout the Wheeling area yesterday morning awaiting word from the U.S. Attorney's Office in Chicago to arrest current and former officials of Wheeling and Cook County.

The first arrest was that of James "Jimmy" Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman. He is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion and extortion.

Stavros' home at 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, reportedly has been under surveillance for several days. When Herald reporters and photographer arrived on the scene at approximately 9 a.m. yesterday FBI agents were parked half a block from the house.

WHEN THE STAVROS car turned east on Willow Road and approached the Tri-State Tollway the agents curbed the vehicle. One of the agents asked Stavros to step from the vehicle and began to frisk him.

When asked by The Herald how he felt, Stavros said, "No comment." When asked if he had a "statement for the people of Wheeling," Stavros said, "No."

Agents then handcuffed Stavros and walked him to their car. They drove off in the direction of Chicago, while Mrs. Stavros reportedly sought out her husband's attorney. The attorney said Stavros was on his way to surrender at

Two tennis courts for Locust Park

Two tennis courts will be constructed at Locust Park in Palatine during the summer.

The low bid of $14,500 from Robert R. Anderson Co. was accepted by the Palatine Park District Board of Commissioners this week. The bid was one of three received for the project.

Construction of the two tennis courts is scheduled to be completed by Aug. 1. The tennis courts will be the first improvements made at Locust Park which is located a quarter-mile west of Rohlwing Road between Stark and Morris drives.

There are currently 11 tennis courts in Palatine and four of them are lighted.

Zajonc to head campaign

Valukas committeeman bid under way

Backers of Anton J. Valukas began their campaign bid to unseat Palatine Township Republican committeeman Bernard E. Pedersen with an organizational meeting attended by about 40 persons Wednesday night.

Fred Zajonc, Palatine village trustee, emerged as campaign manager for Valukas. Pedersen has charged that the "Volunteers for Valukas" are made up largely of members of the Palatine VIP Party, which has opposed regular Republican organization candidates in local elections.

At the meeting in the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn, Zajonc distributed literature which will be circulated on behalf of Valukas, which charges that Pedersen has been "totally ineffective" in promoting qualified candidates from Palatine

Anton J. Valukas

Township for county or state offices. "The incumbent's only claim to fame was his own election as a delegate" to the 1972 Democratic National Convention, the letter charges. It notes that the last time that the Cook County Republican Central Committee considered a candidate from the township was when Valukas won slating for the circuit court in 1968.

VALUKAS BACKERS also charged that candidate selection and other decisions have been controlled by Pedersen's "hand-picked executive committee." They said Pedersen operated the township organization without bylaws for candidate selection until Valukas called for participation in such decisions by all township Republicans.

They also charged that Pedersen ignored Republicans living in Rolling Meadows until Valukas began to encourage their participation in the GOP organization.

Among those who spoke at the Valukas meeting was Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer. Meyer's participation in the Valukas campaign has been criticized by Pedersen because Meyer does not live in Palatine Township.

The Valukas literature also criticizes Pedersen for holding two elected offices, as committeeman and as township assessor, a part-time $8,000-a-year position.

PEDERSEN HAS charged that the VIP Party, which he says is behind Valukas' candidacy, is a coalition of Republicans, Democrats and independents which is seeking to take control of Republican affairs in the township.

The final paragraph of Valukas' literature is a reminder that voting in the Republican primary election, at which Pedersen or Valukas will be elected, carries no obligation to vote Republican in the November general election.

The contest, originally scheduled Feb. 2, is open to boys and girls 6 to 15 years old. There will be 10 different divisions with trophies awarded to the first three finishers in each race. The winners of each race will be eligible to compete in the regional speed skating competition in Rolling Meadows Feb. 23. The contest was postponed because of the condition of the ice.

Registration forms for the contest are available at the park district office, 262 E. Palatine Rd. There is no entry fee. For further information call 359-0256.

South Little League signup Saturday

Palatine South Little League will hold its second registration tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Slade Street fire station in downtown Palatine.

All boys living south of the North West-ern Ry. tracks and eight years of age by Aug. 1 are eligible to participate. Boys who are registering for the first time are requested to bring their birth certificate. All boys must be accompanied by at least one parent. All parents are expected to participate in the activities of the league by accepting a voluntary work assignment.

League officials said because of rising costs for field development and improvement, equipment and other supplies, it is necessary to increase the registration fee to $20 a family, for both the Little League and Senior League programs. In addition, each boy that is registered is required to sell one book of $10 raffle tickets.

Township officials weigh highway woes

Wheeling Township Highway Comr. Arthur E. Olsen and Palatine Township Highway Comr. Robert L. Bergman agreed to expand coordination of the departments' operations.

Another meeting between Maine Township Highway Comr. Edward Koehler and Elk Grove Township Highway Comr. Alfred Stiel is being planned to discuss similar coordination.

FIREMEN FOUGHT a fire yesterday at International Village apartments in Schaumburg. The blaze caused estimated damage of $3,000. This is the second fire reported at the complex in the past two months.

A study of mass transportation possibilities in Palatine Township is being organized by the township board of auditors, with a feasibility report scheduled for June.

Township auditors Gary Price and Don Beilm are coordinating the newly organized Palatine Township Transportation Council. The council, which will have seven members, is being formed now. Official appointments are expected within the next two weeks.

"It's basically for our region," Price said of the scope of the study. One possibility that will be considered is local buses for rush hour and shopper transportation.

The council's report is due back to the township board by its first meeting in June. According to federal revenue sharing guidelines, funds coming to the township may be used for transportation.

Adult services unit head interim librarian

Jane Trimborn, head of the adult services division with the Palatine Public Library, was named recently as interim administrative librarian for 90 days.

Mrs. Trimborn's appointment will take effect when Mrs. Grove leaves the Palatine library, 149 N. Brockway St., early next month. Mrs. Grove submitted her resignation Jan. 9, to take effect in 30 days.

Palatine library board members are accepting applications for administrative librarian, the top supervisory employee of the library.

Mrs. Grove headed the Palatine library for two years, a period that included voter approval of a $1.3 million referendum last November.

Mrs. Trimborn has been employed at the library for 14 months.

City undertakes survey to figure bus service need

A bus service may be provided for Rolling Meadows residents if the results of a city transportation survey indicate a need.

A voluntary survey is being taken among city residents to determine if a bus would be used, how often, to what locations and what time of day it would be used.

Residents are being asked to contact the city hall to make their opinions on the matter known.

In addition, city officials have scheduled a presentation Feb. 26 from Claude Luisada, who operates Metron Systems Corp., a commuter bus service currently serving Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove.

Luisada met with Mayor Roland Meyer Thursday to discuss the proposal for the first time. He said Meyer indicated that if the city survey shows sufficient interest, the bus system could be started soon.

Luisada said four types of bus service could be provided, including commuter service to train depots, a city commuter service for residents who live and work in Rolling Meadows, a dial-a-bus service and a shuttle service that could take shoppers to the Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg.

THE SYSTEM probably would be an outgrowth of the Arlington Heights operation and would therefore be easier to implement quickly, according to Luisada.

He said fares for the system were not discussed yesterday but indicated they would probably be similar to those charged in Arlington Heights.

Fares charged there are $15 for the monthly railroad commuter service, $1 for a one-way single fare and $1.50 for a round-trip single fare. The village commuter service for local workers is the same as the railroad commuter charges.

The dial-a-bus fares include $20 for an unlimited monthly pass, $15 for an unlimited pass for youths under 18, $13 for an unlimited monthly pass for persons over 55, 50 cents for single one-way fares and 75 cents for round-trip single fares.

Luisada emphasized that the Rolling Meadows system will only be considered if residents indicate a need for it. "Basically, it is my opinion that a municipal government has difficulty in deciding the feasibility of something if people don't indicate what they want," he said.

RESPONSE TO the city survey to date has been minimal. City Mgr. James Watson said this week only about a dozen persons have responded so far.

Meyer said yesterday he has received only two responses, one by telephone and one by mail. He added, however, "if the interest is there, we'll be looking into it."

The city has taken similar surveys in the past but response was always poor, Watson said. He said most who answered past surveys said they would use a bus system only occasionally. He added, however, that the gas shortage may be a factor in changing past patterns of response.

Nike missile site operations may end this year

by JOE SWICKARD

Funding for the Arlington Heights Nike Base is expected to be eliminated in the federal budget to be presented to Congress Monday.

According to sources in Washington, the facility will be shut down some time between April and December of this year.

The Pentagon refused to confirm or deny the reports of the pending halt of operations that have circulated for the past several months.

The same source, however, said all Nike-Hercules missile installations manned by the National Guard, such as the Arlington Heights base, will be closed except for some more advanced facilities in Florida.

A Pentagon briefing of the Defense Department budget is planned for noon Saturday in Washington. However, specific base closings will not be formally announced until Monday when the full budget reaches Capitol Hill.

THE NIKE-HERCULES facilities originally were going to be phased out over a period of years. The Herald was told. But late last year the Army decided in favor of shutting down the bases during 1974, the sources said.

All inquiries at the Nike base were referred to Fort Sheridan, which operates the base as a satellite facility. A spokesman at Arlington Heights would only say, "It's just a rumor, that's all."

A spokesman at Fort Sheridan said, "I can't verify this. It's news to me."

Federal civil service workers and National Guardsmen work at the Nike site and if the base is abandoned, will be forced to transfer to other stations or find new jobs.

An information officer with the Army Air Defense Command, Colorado Springs, said, "I can't substantiate that information. You can expect some definite word shortly with the budget announcements due this Saturday."

PENTAGON-WATCHERS, however, said it was significant that the Army refused to deny the reports outright. In the past, base commanders and Army officials have termed Arlington Heights "vital to the air defense of the Chicago metropolitan area."

The base is part of the air defense corridor protecting the lower Great Lakes population and industrial centers from missile attack. The site has served in the past as a prisoner-of-war camp, a training air field and an equipment depot for the National Guard.

The Arlington Heights Park District has been engaged in a 10-year struggle to have land at the base declared surplus. In the past year, the parks have gained title to 13 acres there.

The parks recently engaged a golf course architect to prepare plans for a course on the rest of the 125 acres. Fifty-two of those acres were previously held by the Navy for use as housing, but scrapped plans in the face of strong local protests.

THOMAS THORNTON, park district director, said of the possible closing of the base, "That's good. We had thought it was going to happen. That's why we had our architect make plans for all the land and not just the bit we've gotten so far."

Panel urges approval for nursing home

A 200-bed nursing home for the elderly proposed for a 4.3-acre site on E. Frontage Road near Central Road School has received a recommendation for approval from a special Rolling Meadows zoning commission.

The commission voted 4-2 Wednesday to recommend rezoning of the land to allow developer Friedrich Walter to construct the facility. The dissenting votes came from commissioners Bernard Macklin and Patricia Jacobsen who thought the approval would constitute spot zoning.

The plan must be reviewed and approved by the city council before the home can be built.

Several residents living in the area of the proposed home attended Wednesday's public hearing to question Walter about provisions he would make to control flooding if the facility is built.

Flooding has been an extreme problem for homeowners near the site. The vacant land on which Walter is proposing to build is partial flood plain.

Walter, who is an engineer, has said he has met with City Engr. James Muldowney on the flooding matter and has said provisions can be made to control water runoff from the project.

NONE OF THE residents present at the meeting formally objected to Walter's plan, but they did express concern about the flooding question.

Ald. Fredrick Jacobsen (5th), who represents the ward in which the home would be located, told the commission he had no formal objections to the plan pro-

FBI AGENTS NETTED political kingpin James Stavros yesterday shortly after a federal grand jury returned indictments charging him with extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. The agents followed Stavros, who is a former Wheeling Township committeeman, from his Northbrook home to the intersection of Willow Road and the Tri-State Tollway, where he was searched and arrested. Five other officials also were arrested.

Wheeling rocked by arrests of 6 past, present officials

by BOB CASEY and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Former Democratic committeeman James Stavros, who has ruled village government in Wheeling from behind-the-scenes for almost a decade, was indicted Thursday on federal extortion and conspiracy charges.

Stavros, two village officials, two county zoning officials and a former village trustee were named in six indictments returned by a federal grand jury and announced yesterday by U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

The six are accused of extorting a total of $300,000 from several developers and from Wickes, Inc., in return for village zoning approval, permits and other favors between 1968 and 1973, Thompson said.

Others indicted were: William Bieber, 43, of 100 N. Sixth St., Wheeling, the village building and zoning director. He is accused of extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury before the grand jury, and filing a false income tax return.

Michael Valenza, 50, of 236 E. Jeffrey Ln., Wheeling, a former trustee who operated as village zoning head for several years while on the village board. Valenza, charged with conspiracy, is head of the village environmental commission.

William Hart, 41, of 912 Garden Ln., Wheeling, a village trustee from 1968 to 1970 and former co-owner with Valenza of Nite and Day Sign Co. Hart, who now is sole owner of the firm, is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with Nite and Day activities.

Nicholas Phillips, 39, of 410 W. Marion St., Prospect Heights, a cousin of Stavros and a 16,680-a-year employee of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals. He is charged with extortion in connection with an alleged $50,000 cash payoff by Wickes to obtain village zoning approval.

Ira Collitz, 58, of 1000 N. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, a member of the county zoning board and former Democratic state representative from Chicago's 12th District. He is also accused of extortion in the Wickes case.

Thompson said the Wheeling investigation will continue and predicted more indictments will be returned in the probe.

U.S. agents were ready when arrest word came

by RICH HONACK

Federal agents were scattered throughout the Wheeling area yesterday morning awaiting word from the U.S. Attorney's Office in Chicago to arrest current and former officials of Wheeling and Cook County.

The first arrest was that of James "Jimmy" Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman. He is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion and extortion.

Stavros' home at 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, reportedly has been under surveillance for several days. When Herald reporters and photographer arrived on the scene at approximately 9 a.m. yesterday FBI agents were parked half a block from the house.

WHEN THE STAVROS car turned east on Willow Road and approached the Tri-State Tollway the agents curbed the vehicle. One of the agents asked Stavros to step from the vehicle and began to frisk him.

When asked by The Herald how he felt, Stavros said, "No comment." When asked if he had a "statement for the people of Wheeling," Stavros said: "No!"

Agents then handcuffed Stavros and walked him to their car. They drove off in the direction of Chicago, while Mrs. Stavros reportedly sought out her husband's attorney. The attorney said Stavros was on his way to surrender at

A study of mass transportation possibilities in Palatine Township is being organized by the township board of auditors, with a feasibility report scheduled for June.

Township auditors Gary Price and Don Bellini are coordinating the newly organized Palatine Township Transportation Council. The council, which will have seven members, is being formed now. Official appointments are expected within the next two weeks.

"It's basically for our region," Price said of the scope of the study. One possibility that will be considered is local buses for rush hour and shopper transportation.

The council's report is due back to the township board by its first meeting in June. According to federal revenue sharing guidelines, funds coming to the township may be used for transportation.

ward Army personnel, carried a story several months ago indicating the Nike-Hercules bases were slated for closing. Since then, the publication has reported that unions representing civilian employees of those facilities have expressed concern for their positions.

Should funding for the base be cut off as expected, the future of the site is still uncertain. Under Federal regulations, other branches of the armed forces as well as other governmental agencies could lay claim to it before it is declared surplus.

Judging by past timetables of declaring land surplus, this process could take six to 18 months to complete.

Zajonc to head campaign

Valukas committeeman bid under way

Backers of Anton J. Valukas began their campaign bid to unseat Palatine Township Republican committeeman Bernard E. Pedersen with an organizational meeting attended by about 40 persons Wednesday night.

Fred Zajonc, Palatine village trustee, emerged as campaign manager for Valukas. Pedersen has charged that the "Volunteers for Valukas" are made up largely of members of the Palatine VIP Party, which has opposed regular Republican organization candidates in local elections.

At the meeting in the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn, Zajonc distributed literature which will be circulated on behalf of Valukas, which charges that Pedersen has been "totally ineffective" in promoting qualified candidates from Palatine Township for county or state offices.

"The incumbent's only claim to fame was his own election as a delegate" to the 1972 Democratic National Convention, the letter charges. It notes that the last time that the Cook County Republican Central Committee considered a candidate from the township was when Valukas won slating for the circuit court in 1968.

VALUKAS BACKERS also charged

Anton J. Valukas

that candidate selection and other decisions have been controlled by Pedersen's "hand-picked executive committee." They said Pedersen operated the township organization without bylaws for candidate selection until Valukas called for participation in such decisions by all township Republicans

They also charged that Pedersen ignored Republicans living in Rolling Meadows until Valukas began to encourage their participation in the GOP organization.

Among those who spoke at the Valukas meeting was Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer. Meyer's participation in the Valukas campaign has been criticized by Pedersen because Meyer does not live in Palatine Township.

The Valukas literature also criticizes Pedersen for holding two elected offices, as committeeman and as township assessor, a part-time $8,000-a-year position.

PEDERSEN HAS charged that the VIP Party, which he says is behind Valukas' candidacy, is a coalition of Republicans, Democrats and independents which is seeking to take control of Republican affairs in the township.

The final paragraph of Valukas' literature is a reminder that voting in the Republican primary election, at which Pedersen or Valukas will be elected, carries no obligation to vote Republican in the November general election.

Panel urges approval for nursing home plan

vided the flooding matter was considered.

Walter told the commission plans for the home are tentative since his purchase of the land will be contingent on approval of the rezoning request. He has said the project will probably be a 200-bed facility which he would own but which would be managed by hired personnel.

The recommendation for approval of Walter's proposal comes two weeks after another nursing home proposal was unanimously turned down by another special city zoning commission.

THAT PLAN proposed the construction of a nursing care facility on Kirchoff Road west of Ill. Rte. 53. The proposal, presented by Roskamp Enterprises which operates nursing homes in Illinois and Wisconsin, was turned down by the commission after residents from the Plum Grove Countryside and Winthrop Village subdivisions spoke against the plan.

Both subdivisions border on the proposed site.

The Roskamp plan must still go before the city council for final action.

There are two other nursing home plans which are also pending before the city. One is from the Manor Care Inc. firm of Silver Springs, Md. which is seeking to build a facility on Kirchoff Road next to the Brookwood Apartments.

The other is from Dr. Douglas Finlayson of Palatine who wants to build a nursing care facility next to a medical clinic he is building on Hicks Road and Winnetka Avenue in the city.

The city presently has no nursing home

Township officials weigh highway woes

Highway commissioners from Palatine, Wheeling and Maine townships met recently to compare winter highway maintenance problems and discuss increased cooperation between the departments.

Wheeling Township Highway Comr. Arthur E. Olsen and Palatine Township Highway Comr. Robert L. Bergman agreed to expand coordination of the departments' operations.

Another meeting between Maine Township Highway Comr. Edward Koehler and Elk Grove Township Highway Comr. Alfred Steil is being planned to discuss similar coordination.

$1,825 sought for city entry in flower show

An expenditure of $1,825 to fund city participation in the upcoming Chicago Flower and Garden Show will be sought from the Rolling Meadows City Council.

The funds will be used to pay for supplies, payment of personnel to man the city booth at the show and transportation to and from the show at McCormick Place.

Total cost of the project, however, may eventually total up to $2,527, since the city may have to spend up to $702 in salaries and expenses for city employees involved in the show.

The local Recycling, Ecology and Beautification Committee had originally requested the $1,800 after the show's officials offered free booth space to the committee to participate in the annual event.

THE REB COMMITTEE had attempted to reduce the original cost figure at the request of city officials, but subsequent study and cost projections hiked the figure back to the $1,800 range.

The latest cost projections were submitted Wednesday by the committee to members of the public information and education committee of the city council.

The appropriation would allow the city to participate in the annual show sponsored by the Chicago Horticultural Society. The show is planned this year to run from March 23 to March 31. In the past it has attracted 500,000 persons annually.

City officials have looked favorably on the REB committee's request because they say the show will provide the city with a good avenue for publicity. Ald. Daniel Weber (4th) repeated support for the project Wednesday.

"It's a worthwhile project," he said. "There are so many other projects we put money into and never get any return on. This is probably the first real PR job the city has done. We'll get much exposure out of it."

Schaumburg short of funds for new police station

STIRLING MORITA

The Village of Schaumburg needs more money to construct a new police station estimated to cost $2.2 million.

The village originally allocated $1 million of capital improvements money for the project. Trustee Herb Aigner said about $175,000 left over from construction of the civic center is available. The total left the village far short of estimated costs for building and site construction and furnishings, although these have been overstated to allow for inflation or contingencies.

Loebel, Schlossman, Bennett & Dart, architects for the police station, presented preliminary drawings and cost figures Wednesday to the Schaumburg Police and Fire Committee. The committee referred the cost estimates to John Coste, village administrator, for further study. He is to return the construction cost report to the committee Feb. 26. The committee will present it to the village board that same night.

AIGNER SAID THE money lacking for the police station site could be taken from the capital improvements fund for this year, if the board approves. But he added three other projects also are under consideration. They are a third fire station, the second phase of the civic center and an addition to the public works garage.

If money can not be squeezed from the 1974 budget, the board might have to look to a bond referendum or a village tax, Aigner said.

Basic building construction costs for the 28,900-square-foot facility are estimated to be $1,093,500. Furniture and equipment for a firing range, jail, lockers, telephone system, radio tower and communications equipment will cost about $344,200.

COSTS FOR SITE work, including a 144-car parking lot, a circular driveway, sidewalks, grading, landscaping, sprinkler system, lighting and sewers were estimated at $462,651.

Other project costs of $163,317 include architects fees, soil borings and fulltime site supervision. Sidewalks around the building would cost $6,100, and the total includes $134,000 for contingencies.

Groundbreaking is expected in the fall, and completion may not be until spring of 1976. Construction of the one-story station will be on a 26-acre site donated to the village by Campanelli Brothers builders. It is east of Schaumburg High School on Schaumburg Road.

The station will be built on a hill overlooking a lake. About half the site is buildable. The Schaumburg post office may be constructed on the same site.

MUCH OF THE landscaping costs are for seeding 10 acres between the station and Schaumburg Road.

The ground floor is to house four main sections — a courtroom, administration, a lockup section and police facilities. The courtroom is designed to hold 198 persons, and there are separate chambers for clerk, judge, state's attorney, defense attorneys and detention cells.

Policemen's lockers would be in a basement along with a five-man pistol range, 10-car garage and a multi-purpose room for training exercises.

The station was planned for expansion of the rapidly growing department, Chief Martin Conroy said.

Village hears resident sing runoff blues

by PAT GERLACH

Schaumburg Village Administrator John Coste agreed yesterday to investigate storm sewer drainage and street erosion problems reported to The Herald this week by a Meadow Knolls resident.

Walter Lamno, 1216 Laurel Ln., says he has been frustrated by drainage problems in attempts to landscape his front yard for the past two years. He also claims he can't consider paving his driveway until improvements are made.

"I have planted grass seed a couple of times and it has all washed away. The job cost me $490," Lamno said.

He believes problems are caused by water coming up from a neighbor's storm sewer and running across the front of his property.

"But I have written and telephoned the public works department and Mr. Coste and nothing has ever been done," Lamno said.

IN ADDITION, he says, he is "sick and tired" of replacing driveway gravel. He claims streets have eroded "as much as two feet deep" in some places.

Coste said he had no recollection of complaints coming in from Lamno, but agreed to check village files as soon as packing boxes have been unpacked at the new civic center.

He pointed out that the village began moving from the Great Hall complex yesterday to begin operation Monday at the new building at 101 Schaumburg Ct.

"As soon as possible, I will check the files and see that an inspection of the area is made," Coste said.

Carsello urges Morrissey quit Dem committee post

John J. Carsello, candidate for Schaumburg Township Democratic committee, has called for the resignation of incumbent John F. Morrissey, charging that Morrissey is trying to hold the committee post by keeping other candidates off the ballot.

"His record is the worst I've ever seen," said Carsello in a prepared statement.

"For six years, he has had the GOP laughing all the way to the polls and again, as he has in the past, Morrissey has challenged good Democratic candidates' petitions in order to keep them off the ballot in a free and open election," the statement said.

CARSELLO WAS referring to Bill Holmes, a veteran Democratic worker, challenged off the March 19 ballot by Morrissey because his nominating petitions carried more than the maximum legal limit of signatures. Holmes is running as a write-in candidate.

Carsello said he refused Morrissey's invitation to co-sign the Holmes challenge. Carsello noted that the incumbent had the same opportunity to challenge him "with his trumped-up charge that I took a GOP ballot in 1972 which would have disqualified me."

That move, Carsello said, would have put Morrissey "on the ballot unopposed and a sure winner."

"I the first place, I have not been committee man for six years, I think it's more like 4 1/2," Morrissey said. Herald records show Morrissey was appointed committee man in September 1968, and

William Hart, 41, of 912 Garden Ln., Wheeling, a village trustee from 1968 to 1970 and former co-owner with Valenza of Nite and Day Sign Co. Hart, who now is sole owner of the firm, is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with Nite and Day activities.

Nicholas Phillips, 39, of 410 W. Marion St., Prospect Heights, a cousin of Stavros and a $16,680-a-year employee of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals. He is charged with extortion in connection with an alleged $50,000 cash payoff by Wickes to obtain village zoning approval.

Ira Collitz, 58, of 1000 N. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, a member of the county zoning board and former Democratic state representative from Chicago's 12th District. He is also accused of extortion in the Wickes case.

Thompson said the Wheeling investigation will continue and predicted more indictments will be returned in the probe.

U.S. agents were ready when arrest word came

by RICH HONACK

Federal agents were scattered throughout the Wheeling area yesterday morning awaiting word from the U.S. Attorney's Office in Chicago to arrest current and former officials of Wheeling and Cook County.

The first arrest was that of James "Jimmy" Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman. He is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion and extortion.

Stavros' home at 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, reportedly has been under surveillance for several days. When Herald reporters and photographer arrived on the scene at approximately 9 a.m. yesterday FBI agents were parked half a block from the house.

WHEN THE STAVROS car turned east on Willow Road and approached the Tri-State Tollway the agents curbed the vehicle. One of the agents asked Stavros to step from the vehicle and began to frisk him.

When asked by The Herald how he felt, Stavros said, "No comment." When asked if he had a "statement for the people of Wheeling," Stavros said: "No!"

Agents then handcuffed Stavros and walked him to their car. They drove off in the direction of Chicago, while Mrs. Stavros reportedly sought out her husband's attorney. The attorney said Stavros was on his way to surrender at (Continued on page 4)

Driver charged with manslaughter

A 39-year-old Elgin man was charged yesterday with involuntary manslaughter after a two-car, head-on crash in Schaumburg Wednesday night in which another Elgin man was killed.

Alberto Cedillo, 574 Ann St., Elgin, also was charged with improper lane usage and driving while intoxicated. Cedillo, the driver of one of the cars, was reported in fair condition yesterday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Arturo Dela Fuente, 28, of 1139 Leewood Dr., Elgin, was pronounced dead on arrival at the same hospital. He was the driver of the other vehicle.

The mishap occurred about 10:15 p.m. on Golf Road just west of Jones Road, police said. The westbound Cedillo car allegedly struck the eastbound Dela Fuente car head-on in the eastbound lane police said.

Dela Fuente was a computer operator for the North American Philips data center, Skokie. He is survived by his wife, and 3-year-old daughter.

Cedillo is scheduled to appear at 1:30 p.m. March 6 in the Schaumburg branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Two youths charged after home vandalism

Two 19-year-old Hoffman Estates men were charged with unlawful possession of a weapon and criminal damage to property after they were apprehended in a car by Hoffman Estates police near the scene of vandalism to a home.

Charged were Brian Bowen, 106 Alpine and Carlo Torsello, 224 Hillcrest Blvd. Police said the men had a knife and a pipe in their auto. Each posted $2,000 bond for appearance March 15 in the Hoffman Estates branch of Cook County circuit court.

Carsello urges Morrissey quit has held the office since.

MORRISSEY SAID he never extended an invitation to join in the Holmes challenge. During an accidental meeting with Carsello and his workers at the county clerk's office, some of Carsello's supporters wanted to enter the challenge, Morrissey said.

"But one of Carsello's workers advised against the move because of mechanical difficulties, since it was the last day to object," Morrissey said.

He contends his record in the township is "just about the best in the whole Northwest suburban area in terms of Democratic votes cast."

Morrissey suggested Carsello look at neighboring townships to find a worse situation, stressing the local party is making constant improvements.

Morrissey believes Hoffman Estates is the only Cook County community in which Democrats ran a village slate against GOP candidates. This happened in 1971.

"I did not want to run unopposed. I think an election is a good and healthy experience for the party as long as there are not too many bitter feelings aroused," he said.

Conant Boosters' meeting

The general meeting of the Conant Booster Club for February will be held at 8 p.m. Monday in the school, 700 E. Cougar Trail, Hoffman Estates, instead of on Tuesday as originally planned. The stage band will perform.

Bank confirms plans to build 6-story facility

The Mount Prospect State Bank has confirmed reports circulating for months that it will seek to build a six-story bank building just east of its present facility. The bank has petitioned the Village of Mount Prospect to rezone a chunk of property at the southwest corner of Maple Street and Busse Avenue for the new bank.

Bank president Richard Padula said yesterday present plans call for a six-story building, plus a basement and mechanical penthouse. Total height will be 96 feet.

The bank's moving is considered a key step in the revitalization of downtown Mount Prospect. The present bank building, at the southwest corner of Busse Avenue and Emerson Street, will be put up for sale, and the Village of Mount Prospect is expected to be the first in line to consider buying it.

The village has expressed interest in taking over the two-story structure for village administrative offices, and is reviewing a floor plan of the building.

THE NEW-BANK building will provide considerably more space than the present facility, which was built in 1959 and expanded in 1964. The three present structures — the bank, a data processing center and drive-in bank — total 23,000 square feet. The new bank and the present drive-in, which will be retained, will contain 77,000 square feet.

Some 222 parking spaces for employees and customers will be provided.

Padula said he hopes construction can begin this spring, with completion scheduled for early 1975.

The rezoning request will be heard by the Mount Prospect Zoning Board of Appeals at 8 p.m. Feb. 15 in the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

A house at 107 S. Maple St. was demolished yesterday, to make way for a house currently at 102 S. Maple St., which will be moved there. The Christine Busse house at 103 S. Emerson St., meanwhile, will be shifted to 107 S. Maple St.

Stated for demolition are houses at 100, 104, and 106 S. Maple St., which have been purchased by the bank.

Padula said the new bank will cost "several million" dollars to construct.

FBI AGENTS NETTED political kingpin James Stavros yesterday shortly after a federal grand jury returned indictments charging him with extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. The agents followed Stavros, who is a former Wheeling Township committeeman, from his Northbrook home to the intersection of Willow Road and the Tri-State Tollway, where he was searched and arrested. Five other officials also were arrested.

Village suit: Des Plaines annexation 'unfounded'

The Village of Mount Prospect has charged in a legal brief that the City of Des Plaines' annexation of property sought by both towns is "without basis in law or fact."

The five-page brief was filed this week in response to Des Plaines' lawsuit challenging Mount Prospect's annexation of property at the corner of Elmhurst and Algonquin roads that had been annexed earlier by Des Plaines.

A hearing on the case is scheduled for Feb. 11 before Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne. However, the case may not be heard, because the two communities have begun negotiating an out-of-court settlement.

Representatives of the two municipalities met for 2½ hours this week and have scheduled another meeting for next week to further consider settling their boundary dispute out of court.

In its legal brief, Mount Prospect described documents filed by Des Plaines for its Nov. 26 annexation of a 30-acre parcel as "misleading, inaccurate and deficient in many respects."

Mount Prospect charges that various legal technical mistakes were contained in the legal notice filed by Des Plaines prior to its annexation, thus making the annexation "void ab initio and no bar to the Mount Prospect annexation of Dec. 18."

The property involved contains the Terranova and Waterfall restaurants, Colonial apartments and a service station.

Both suburbs are anxious to claim the property for tax benefits.

Wheeling rocked by arrests of 6 past, present officials

by BOB CASEY
and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Former Democratic committeeman James Stavros, who has ruled village government in Wheeling from behind-the-scenes for almost a decade, was indicted Thursday on federal extortion and conspiracy charges.

Stavros, two village officials, two county zoning officials and a former village trustee were named in six indictments returned by a federal grand jury and announced yesterday by U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

The six are accused of extorting a total of $300,000 from several developers and from Wickes, Inc., in return for village zoning approval, permits and other favors between 1968 and 1973, Thompson said.

Others indicted were: William Bleber, 43, of 100 N. Sixth St., Wheeling, the village building and zoning director. He is accused of extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury before the grand jury, and filing a false income tax return.

Michael Valenza, 50, of 236 E. Jeffrey Ln., Wheeling, a former trustee who operated as village zoning head for several years while on the village board. Valenza, charged with conspiracy, is head of the village environmental commission.

William Hart, 41, of 912 Garden Ln., Wheeling, a village trustee from 1968 to 1970 and former co-owner with Valenza of Nite and Day Sign Co. Hart, who now is sole owner of the firm, is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with Nite and Day activities.

Nicholas Phillips, 39, of 410 W. Marion St., Prospect Heights, a cousin of Stavros and a $16,680-a-year employee of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals. He is charged with extortion in connection with an alleged $50,000 cash payoff by Wickes to obtain village zoning approval.

Ira Colitz, 58, of 1000 N. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, a member of the county zoning board and former Democratic state representative from Chicago's 12th District. He is also accused of extortion in the Wickes case.

Thompson said the Wheeling investigation will continue and predicted more indictments will be returned in the probe.

Self-awareness

Puppets have their hangups, too — and kids can learn from them

by LUISA GINETTI

Two stage personalities are waiting to make their teaching debuts at Bond School in Mount Prospect, and although they have no established teaching credentials, Principal Glenn Erickson believes each will be a valuable addition to the school staff.

The two professorial candidates are a walrus and an ostrich named Wally and Bertha, puppets who will be used to help children develop a more positive self-image.

The "Wally, Bertha and You" program, as it is called, is a project in motivational learning designed to help students become better acquainted with each other and build confidence both within and before a group.

Wally and Bertha are used as "ice-breakers" who personify certain traits and characteristics which are common to many people. Wally, for example, is a shy bumbling green walrus who talks with a lisp but is nonetheless proud and responds to praise.

BERTHA IS A yellow and orange ostrich who fancies herself an opera star although her voice is not of high quality. She is very theatrical and dramatic, yet fears being before large groups and when she's afraid, she runs away and buries her head.

Bertha and Wally thus challenge each other with their personalities, but in the presence of a third party, usually a teacher, they are used to balance each other and demonstrate to students that being different does not mean being worthless.

"The program stresses concentration on positive aspects of people rather than negative aspects," Erickson said. "We want children to share their feelings and discuss how things can be made better."

Use of the puppets is only part of the motivational program. Before children are even exposed to Wally and Bertha, they take part in discussion and pantomime activities to build self-confidence and self-awareness in themselves.

Wally and Bertha are then used in dialog situations to increase students' response and participation.

AS YET, THE two performers have not been used at the school. Erickson said he is awaiting completion of a stage for the puppets, but he added that Wally and Bertha will probably begin their work this month.

Until then, the two characters hang in the principal's office in plain sight of visitors, including the students. If children ask about the puppets, they are told all about Wally and Bertha, so the two are already known throughout the school.

The Wally and Bertha program, developed as part of W. Clement Stone's Combined Motivational System, is not the only puppet program in operation at the school.

Pre-schoolers and kindergarten students participate in the DUSO program, Developing Understanding of Self and Others, and the Peabody Language De-

Police wrapup

Masked gunman breaks into home

A gunman wearing a stocking over his head was reported to have broken into a Mount Prospect home Wednesday night where a 14-year-old boy was alone. The boy was not injured, and nothing was reported taken.

The boy, Phillip Mikula, 914 Tower Dr., told police he heard the sound of glass breaking and additional noise on the first floor of the house Wednesday night. When he started to leave his upstairs bedroom to investigate, the boy said a man with a nylon stocking over his head and a gun in his hand entered the room.

The man reportedly asked whether police had been called and whether there was any money in the house. Phillip told police he responded no to both questions. The gunman then told the boy "sit over there," motioning toward a corner of the room. The youth complied, and the gunman left the room. The boy called police 20 minutes later.

The gunman was described as 18 to 20 years of age, 5-8 to 5-10 and 160 to 165 pounds, wearing a brown cardigan jacket.

Entry to the house was gained by breaking a window in the back door and reaching in to turn the door knob, police said. Neighbors reported seeing nothing unusual.

Burglary nets jewelry

Three rings valued at $500 were reported taken Wednesday night from the Joseph Buban home, 1224 W. Sunset Rd., Mount Prospect. Entry was gained through a kitchen side door, which was pried open. In addition to the jewelry, a $2 bill and three Kennedy half dollars were taken.

Accidents hurt two

Two women were injured, neither seriously, in separate auto accidents Wednesday night in Mount Prospect.

The first accident occurred at 8:38 p.m. on Huntington Commons Drive. A car driven by Mary M. Blandford, 28, of 1380 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect, southeast bound on the ley road, slid into a car driven by Betty A. Hall, 32, of 710 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Blandford was taken to Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, where she was treated and released. Her auto sustained $800 damage to the front end. The Hall car received $350 in damages. No tickets were issued.

The other accident occurred around 11:19 p.m. on Elmhurst Road south of Golf Road. Maureen Ward, 25, of 1747 W. Devon, Chicago, was making a right turn from a driveway at 1100 S. Elmhurst Rd., when her car was struck by a tractor driven by Ivan F. Baker, 51, of 1405 Mayfair Rd., Champaign. Ms. Ward was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital. Her car sustained $900 damage to the rear end; the Baker vehicle received $300 in damages. Ms. Ward was ticketed for failure to yield the right-of-way. She will appear in the Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court March 27.

Gas uncertainty may hurt season at race track

A new cloud has drifted into the otherwise sunny forecast this summer for Arlington Park Race Track. Uncertainty over summer gasoline supplies, especially on weekends, may hurt track owners' expectations for a big season.

Arlington Park Race Track Pres. Jack Loomer admits he is worried about the summer gas supplies, even though the Chicago and North Western Ry. makes Arlington Park reasonably accessible to nondrivers.

"I hope they (the fans) can get there. I hate to even think about it if they can't," says Loomer.

The Illinois Racing Board has awarded Arlington Park the season's choicest summer racing dates. The track is slated to open June 8 and will continue through Sept. 7. Included are two traditionally big racing weekends — Fourth of July and Labor Day.

Owners are hoping the good dates will reverse last year's profit loss when Arlington Park opened in mid-April and closed July 24.

A gasoline shortage could hurt Arlington Park in another way, Loomer said. The transportation of horses may also be affected.

"They've got plenty of horses now in Florida. And most of them came from New Jersey, New York and here," Loomer said. "After the meet closes down there, I expect they'll come north."

But the horses that come to the area will probably stay in the Midwest this summer, he predicted. The shuttling of horses between New York, Chicago and California simply may not be possible.

Cage team in tourney

The Mount Prospect Park District's high school basketball team will compete in the Illinois Parks and Recreation society state tournament Feb. 9 and 10 in Lake Forest.

The 10 team members, from Forest View and Prospect High Schools, will compete against 15 teams. The local squad is coached by Rick Pyle.

velopment course, both of which utilize puppets.

THESE PROGRAMS, Erickson said, are in line with the over-all goal now being stressed in Dist. 26 try to humanize education. "We are looking for different ways to teach children because we know that there are other ways to learn besides the printed word," Erickson said. "We want to reach children to make them responsible for their own learning. What Johnny does to math is just as important as what math does to Johnny."

Another project the school is planning will take place in March when students, teachers and parents participate in a mini-Renaissance Fair.

The concept of the fair is to bring together a variety of skills, including music, art, social studies and others, to create a new learning approach. The March 25 program is being planned in conjunction with Urban Gateways of Chicago, a firm which will supply costumes and equipment for the program, and the school PTA.

"The program calls for total school involvement," according to Erickson. "The school will be turned into the village of Bondville, depicting the time of the Renaissance and Wheeling High School's Madrigal singers will perform and then discuss the Renaissance with the students."

Smell anyone with gas on his breath?

Seen anyone lately with the smell of gasoline on his breath? A case of gas siphoned from a car was reported this week in Mount Prospect.

Jan Poluchowicz, 1901 Wood Ln., told police his 1974 Ford Mustang II had three-quarters of a tank of gas when he parked it in his driveway late Tuesday night. By Wednesday morning, the tank registered one-quarter full, and the gas cap was laying in the driveway.

Poluchowicz said he heard a car in the neighborhood around 11 p.m. About $3 worth of gas missing.

Courts uphold students' rights, teachers advised

by LUISA GINETTI

Trends in the law show courts are tending more and more to uphold the constitutional rights of students in cases involving free speech and due process, according to Leo Hennessey, Cook County deputy assistant superintendent.

"Teachers should know the law because the laws directly affect what happens in the classroom," Hennessey said last week in a talk before eighth grade teachers from Prospect Heights Dist. 23.

"Students have a right to an education and we have to be careful to give it to them," Hennessey said.

Several landmark Supreme Court decisions within the past few years have brought about the increasing awareness in student rights, Hennessey said.

IN ONE CASE, involving the question of whether a student could exercise his freedom of speech by wearing a black armband to protest the Vietnam War, the Supreme Court ruled for the student.

"In writing for the majority in the case involving John Tinker (the student who wore the armband and was disciplined for doing so by the principal), Abe Fortas said in effect that students and teachers do not leave their rights at the schoolhouse gate," Hennessey said. "The ruling went on to say that as long as the student's action does not materially interfere with conducting school business, he cannot be denied his rights."

Hennessey also referred to a 1965 Supreme Court ruling in the case of Gall vs. Arizona which declared that laws and Constitutional rights apply to children as well as adults.

The ruling established that Gerald Gall, 15, could not be arbitrarily sent to reform school for making obscene phone calls, without having recourse to a hearing and appeal under the 14th Amendment's due process clause.

"Teachers and administrators should remember two important rules when disciplining students. Students in school are considered persons and students are entitled to the freedom of their own views," Hennessey said.

HENNESSEY ADDED, however, that teachers should not be afraid to press charges against a student who has threatened or intimidated him. "In Cook County teachers are considered preferred citizens, which means that any action committed against them is a felony," Hennessey said.

"If criminal charges should be pressed against a student, a teacher should not be afraid to do so, and his school administration should back him up."

"In some cases if you don't press charges, it could lead to more serious trouble," he said.

Corporal punishment should not be considered an alternative to discipline, however, Hennessey said. "The idea that corporal punishment is justified through the doctrine of in loco parentis (in place of the parent), has almost bitten the dust," Hennessey said. "Teachers are no longer considered stand-ins for parents and the best way to protect yourself is to know the law."

Nike missile base operations may stop this year

by JOE SWICKARD

Funding for the Arlington Heights Nike Base is expected to be eliminated in the federal budget to be presented to Congress Monday.

According to sources in Washington, the facility will be shut down some time between April and December of this year.

The Pentagon refused to confirm or deny the reports of the pending halt of operations that have circulated for the past several months.

The same source, however, said all Nike-Hercules missile installations manned by the National Guard, such as the Arlington Heights base, will be closed except for some more advanced facilities in Florida.

A Pentagon briefing of the Defense Department budget is planned for noon Saturday in Washington. However, specific base closings will not be formally announced until Monday when the full budget reaches Capitol Hill.

THE NIKE-HERCULES facilities originally were going to be phased out over a period of years. The Herald was told. But late last year the Army decided in favor of shutting down the bases during 1974, the sources said.

All inquiries at the Nike base were referred to Fort Sheridan, which operates the base as a satellite facility. A spokesman at Arlington Heights would only say, "It's just a rumor, that's all."

A spokesman at Fort Sheridan said, "I can't verify this. It's news to me."

Federal civil service workers and National Guardsmen work at the Nike site and if the base is abandoned, will be forced to transfer to other stations or find new jobs.

An information officer with the Army Air Defense Command, Colorado Springs, said, "I can't substantiate that information. You can expect some definite word shortly with the budget announcements due this Saturday."

PENTAGON-WATCHERS, however, said it was significant that the Army refused to deny the reports outright. In the past, base commanders and Army officials have termed Arlington Heights "vital to the air defense of the Chicago metropolitan area."

The base is part of the air defense corridor protecting the lower Great Lakes population and industrial centers from missile attack. The site has served in the past as a prisoner-of-war camp, a training air field and an equipment depot for the National Guard.

The Arlington Heights Park District has been engaged in a 10-year struggle to have land at the base declared surplus. In the past year, the parks have gained title to 13 acres there.

The parks recently engaged a golf course architect to prepare plans for a course on the rest of the 125 acres. Fifty-two of those acres were previously held by the Navy for use as housing, but scrapped plans in the face of strong local protests.

THOMAS THORNTON, park district director, said of the possible closing of the base, "That's good. We had thought it was going to happen. That's why we had our architect make plans for all the land and not just the bit we've gotten so far."

Army Times, a newspaper aimed toward Army personnel, carried a story several months ago indicating the Nike-Hercules bases were slated for closing. Since then, the publication has reported that unions representing civilian employees of those facilities have expressed concern for their positions.

Should funding for the base be cut off as expected, the future of the site is still uncertain. Under Federal regulations, other branches of the armed forces as well as other governmental agencies could lay claim to it before it is declared surplus.

Judging by past timetables of declaring land surplus, this process could take six to 18 months to complete.

FBI AGENTS NETTED political kingpin James Stavros yesterday shortly after a federal grand jury returned indictments charging him with extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. The agents followed Stavros, who is a former Wheeling Township committeeman, from his Northbrook home to the intersection of Willow Road and the Tri-State Tollway, where he was searched and arrested. Five other officials also were arrested.

Wheeling rocked by arrests of 6 past, present officials

by BOB CASEY and AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Former Democratic committeeman James Stavros, who has ruled village government in Wheeling from behind-the-scenes for almost a decade, was indicted Thursday on federal extortion and conspiracy charges.

Stavros, two village officials, two county zoning officials and a former village trustee were named in six indictments returned by a federal grand jury and announced yesterday by U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

The six are accused of extorting a total of $300,000 from several developers and from Wickes, Inc., in return for village zoning approval; permits and other favors between 1968 and 1973, Thompson said.

Others indicted were: William Bieber, 43, of 100 N. Sixth St., Wheeling, the village building and zoning director. He is accused of extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury before the grand jury, and filing a false income tax return.

Michael Valenza, 50, of 236 E. Jeffrey Ln., Wheeling, a former trustee who operated as village zoning head for several years while on the village board. Valenza, charged with conspiracy, is head of the village environmental commission.

William Hart, 41, of 912 Garden Ln., Wheeling, a village trustee from 1968 to 1970 and former co-owner with Valenza of Nite and Day Sign Co. Hart, who now is sole owner of the firm, is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion in connection with Nite and Day activities.

Nicholas Phillips, 39, of 410 W. Marion St., Prospect Heights, a cousin of Stavros and a $16,600-a-year employee of the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals. He is charged with extortion in connection with an alleged $50,000 cash payoff by Wickes to obtain village zoning approval.

Ira Colitz, 58, of 1000 N. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, a member of the county zoning board and former Democratic state representative from Chicago's 12th District. He is also accused of extortion in the Wickes case.

Thompson said the Wheeling investigation will continue and predicted more indictments will be returned in the probe.

U.S. agents were ready when arrest word came

by RICH HONACK

Federal agents were scattered throughout the Wheeling area yesterday morning awaiting word from the U.S. Attorney's Office in Chicago to arrest current and former officials of Wheeling and Cook County.

The first arrest was that of James "Jimmy" Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman. He is charged with conspiracy to commit extortion and extortion.

Stavros' home at 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, reportedly has been under surveillance for several days. When Herald reporters and photographer arrived on the scene at approximately 9 a.m. yesterday FBI agents were parked half a block from the house.

WHEN THE STAVROS car turned east on Willow Road and approached the Tri-State Tollway the agents curbed the vehicle. One of the agents asked Stavros to step from the vehicle and began to frisk him.

When asked by The Herald how he felt, Stavros said, "No comment." When asked if he had a "statement for the people of Wheeling," Stavros said: "No!"

Agents then handcuffed Stavros and walked him to their car. They drove off in the direction of Chicago, while Mrs. Stavros reportedly sought out her husband's attorney. The attorney said Stavros was on his way to surrender at (Continued on page 4)

BOLI makes its case for Arthur Avenue work

The Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) last night attempted to convince property owners about the merits of improving Arthur Avenue between Davis Street and Central Road.

The improving of the street includes the paving and the installation of gutters, curbs and water sewers. The cost of the project was estimated to be approximately $335,000.

Howard Johnson, attorney for the Charles Bruning Co., Division of the Addressograph Multigraph Corp., 1800 W. Central, Mount Prospect, questioned whether the improvements would be for public benefit as claimed by BOLI. Six property owners were present last night at an informal hearing.

"If this is for the public good why couldn't more funds be pulled from the public," asked Johnson, adding that the Bruning Company would bear approximately $69,000 of the costs.

BOARD MEMBERS told Johnson that every property owner is expected to improve and provide upkeep of the streets in front of their properties, and that everyone should pay his fair share.

BOLI President Russell Colvin added that the Bruning company never had to pay frontage costs on Central Road, nor the upkeep costs of Arthur Avenue.

"Every street that goes in is of some benefit to the village as a whole, but there is a special benefit for the people in that particular area," added Kenneth Stonesifer, attorney for BOLI. "You use other streets in Arlington Heights."

Colvin also urged the property owners to agree to the project and finance it by private contract rather than by special assessment.

"There are several advantages to private contract," said Colvin, adding that all owners must agree to the project in order to participate.

OWNERS COULD save from 10 to 15 per cent of the costs by private contract, Colvin said. The village serves as the agent to seek bids and oversee the project, he said.

The sooner the paving gets underway, the more owners will save by not delaying. "The costs of materials are skyrocketing," Colvin said. Currently the cost estimate is about $50 per foot, compared to approximately $40 several months ago.

Gas uncertainty may hurt track

A new cloud has drifted into the otherwise sunny forecast this summer for Arlington Park Race Track. Uncertainty over summer gasoline supplies, especially on weekends, may hurt track owners' expectations for a big season.

Arlington Park Race Track Pres. Jack Loomer admits he is worried about the summer gas supplies, even though the Chicago and North Western Ry. makes Arlington Park reasonably accessible to nondrivers.

Owners are hoping the good dates will reverse last year's profit loss when Arlington Park opened in mid-April and closed July 24.

Seniors' housing site 'open issue'

A site for senior citizens' housing in Arlington Heights is still an "open issue," Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh said yesterday.

Residents in the 400 block of North Dunton Avenue have been notified that their property is no longer being considered as a possible location for the 119 units of seniors housing that have been approved by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

"We've had some informal discussions with some property owners," he said. "But there is nothing I can report."

He said there was no deadline by which time a site had to be selected.

Homeowners and their neighbors objected to the first proposed location at Evergreen, Dunton, Fremont and St. James streets. As a result of their protests, Walsh said the block was dropped from consideration.

Caucus seeks candidates for school board seats

EDITOR'S NOTE: Because of a mechanical error the story on the Dist. 21 caucus was omitted from yesterday's Herald. The story is being run in its entirety.

The School Dist. 21 general caucus is seeking candidates to fill the two school board seats available in the April election.

A five-member screening committee, made up of delegates from nonpolitical organizations in the district, was elected this week. The screening committee plans to interview candidates and make recommendations for endorsements by the general membership before Feb. 27, the first day candidates may file to participate in the election.

The three-year terms of Arlington Heights board members Jack Lane, 33112 N. Volz Dr., and Jeremiah Crise, 611 W. Hintz Rd., will expire this year. Crise has said he plans to seek reelection to his third term on the board. Lane also intends to run for a second term.

PROSPECTIVE SCHOOL board candidates interested in receiving the support of the general caucus should contact the chairman of the screening committee, Mary Ellen Feldman, 688 Lakeside

Other members of the screening committee include Bob Terberry, 269 W. Wayne Pl., Wheeling; Diane Nicholson, 574 Bernard Dr., Buffalo Grove; Lana Samsky, 2 Hawthorne Ct., Buffalo Grove; and Sandy burrows, 2323 N. Dryden Pl., Arlington Heights.

The three alternates elected to the screening committee are Susan Rose, 174 Timberhill Rd., Buffalo Grove; Carol Wrabl, 894 Sussex Ct., Buffalo Grove; and Debbie Laurie, 1200 Palm Dr., Wheeling.

The general membership of the caucus this year includes 45 representatives of community organizations with 14 of them serving as delegates from local PTA, PTO and PTC groups.

According to Mrs. Frank Sacco, caucus corresponding secretary, 35 members of the caucus will be eligible to vote on school board candidate endorsements.

The voting will be conducted at the next general meeting of the caucus, set for Feb. 20.

Bill to standardize house members asked

A proposed village ordinance would require house numbers on every building within the Village of Arlington Heights.

The ordinance, requiring numbers in a "permanent location and of such size and shape as to be easily visible" was requested by the fire department which has had difficulty finding some addresses.

The law is scheduled for passage at Monday's village board meeting.

100 YEAR LIFE EXPECTANCY NOT UNLIKELY

Experts on longevity predict a "youth pill" may be available within our lifetime. This could result in an average lifespan of 100 years.

Besides taking a "youth pill" various other factors can effect the rate of aging. These are said to include balanced nutrition, proper exercise and relaxation. The pattern of modern society which fosters overeating or depending on quick valueless snacks; lack of exercise, due to mechanical advancement; emotional strains and stresses contribute to how fast our bodies get old. If you want the machine, which your body actually is, to function efficiently give some thought to these facts and you may have discovered your own "youth pill."
